DUFFY PERSECUTED, SAY MANY WITNESSES

They Corroborate Justice Gaynor's Charges Against Commissioner Bingham.

BOY HAS SAVED TWO LIVES

Lawyer Towns Says He Will Bring Action for Libel Against Bingham on Behalf of Duffy.

George B. Duffy, the Brooklyn youth, about whom the charges brought against Police Commissioner Bingham and the department by Supreme Court Justice William J. Gaynor have centred, told Mayor McClellan the story of his experiences with the police yesterday. He was accompanied to City Hall by his parents, Mirabeau L. Towns, the Brooklyn lawyer, whom Justice Gaynor has interested in the case, and a dozen witnesses, including the pastor of the church attended by the Duffys, two of his former school teachers, his present and past employers, and men who have known the boy all of his life.

They all testified before the Mayor that the youth is honest, industrious, and in no way a criminal. The Mayor himself, in the course of the hearing, brought out the fact that the boy has saved two persons from drowning and refused to accept rewards and Carnegie hero medals.

Several of the witnesses denied that the young man knows or ever associated with Alfred Collier, a convicted criminal, with whom he has been connected by Commissioner Bingham. After the hearing Mr. Towns declared that a suit for libel might arise out of this latter charge.

When young Duffy arrived at City Hall with his party a crowd of several hundred persons were gathered about the steps, waiting to get a glimpse of him. So great was the crush that Police Lieut. Kennel, attached to the Mayor's office, escorted the party around to the back of the Hall, where they entered by the rear door, thus escaping the crowd.

The hearing before the Mayor was private and what happened was learned principally from Mr. Towns.

Mayor Asked Many Questions.

"The Mayor was very fair," said he, "and asked all his questions in an unbiased and kindly manner. He made it clear at the start that the boy was not on trial and that he was simply conducting an investigation into the charges brought against Commissioner Bingham and his men.

"The Mayor allowed me to ask several questions to bring out points that I considered important and treated us all in a courteous manner. The fact of young Duffy's two rescues was brought out by the Mayor himself, which showed that he is pretty familiar with the case and the boy's history.

"We went into all of the instances of the boy's connection with the police, commencing with his first arrest, in June, 1907, and running down to last month. In each case the boy was discharged, as every one knows. In fact, no real charges were brought against him. His rights have been violated by the police, and he was photographed and measured by them contrary to the law, which says that this shall be done only after the conviction and sentence of the prisoner. Why, the boy was never even charged with anything more serious than vagrancy or obstruction of the streets.

"Commissioner Bingham has tried to create a diversion by charging that the young man has been the associate of degenerates and criminals. This is a gratuitous libel, and we shall proceed civilly on it. The boy's character was testified to by no less than a dozen persons, who declared that his conduct had always been exemplary and that his associates are people enjoying the highest standing in the community in which he lives, which is one of the oldest Irish settlements in Brooklyn.

"One of the men who were rescued from drowning by the boy was Jerome Horowitz, who weighs more than 200 pounds. He lives at 105 Manhattan Avenue, Brooklyn, and was pulled out of the surf at Coney Island after the boy had supported his weight for more than 300 yards. The other rescue was that of a man named Frank Walsh. Duffy pulled him out of Clare Lake, Putnam County.

Say the Boy Is Popular.

"The witnesses testified that the boy is popular, is invited everywhere to social functions in his community, and is always welcome at the houses of the best people in the neighborhood."

Andrew Sherman, Principal of Public School 15, which young Duffy attended, was one of the witnesses heard by the Mayor. He spoke highly of the boy's character; said that he had never known him to tell a lie or be guilty of any worse offense at school than some mischievous prank.

It was brought out that after leaving school the boy went to work for the Commercial Union Assurance Company in Brooklyn, going from there to the office of Edward B. Smith, a broker, at 7 Wall Street. The Mayor was told that while at the latter place Duffy got a reward for finding and restoring to the owner 200 shares of stock.

The boy was employed later by the Mallory Steamship Company, and then went to the Stevens Milk Company, for which he is still working. George Slaughter, one of the officers of the company, and A. Elsner, the foreman under whom he works, both testified that they have found him to be an industrious, conscientious employe. They said he collected from $250 to $350 a week for the company and that his accounts have always been correct.

Father McAteer of the Church of Our Lady of Mercy and formerly pastor of St. Agnes's, where he baptized the boy, said that he had known him and his family for a long time. He said he was familiar with the circumstances of the different arrests of the boy and declared that in his opinion they were all unwarranted.

Father Flynn, head of St. Paul's Parochial School, which young Duffy at one time attended, could not be present at the hearing, but he sent a letter to the Mayor in the boy's behalf.

Witnesses for Duffy.

Among others who testified to the boy's good character and morals were Bart S. Snyder, an advertising agent and neighbor of the Duffys; John Dalton, another neighbor; John E. Larney, a coal merchant, whose place of business is near the boy's home; John Kelly, who lives in an adjoining house; John Slater, a friend of the family; William F. Powers, a boyhood friend and schoolmate of the young man, and Edward Mullen, another old friend.

The hearing lasted for three hours. As the party left the hall they were surrounded by the crowd, which had remained about City Hall during the hearing, and the boy was cheered repeatedly.

The Mayor is not yet ready to discuss the case, but said later in the day that he expects to announce his decision to-

TAFT SCARES AN OFFICIAL.

Wright Medals Were Not to be Ready —They Will Be Ready.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—President Taft by personal use of the long-distance telephone to-day spurred a Federal bureau into action, incidentally scared an official half out of his wits, and made certain that the Government medals intended for presentation to Orville and Wilbur Wright will be ready by June 17, the day of the celebration at Dayton, Ohio.

Representative Cox from Ohio, who hails from the Dayton district, called Gen. James Allen, Chief of the Signal Corps, to-day to ascertain how the manufacture of the medals was getting along. Gen. Allen told him the medals could not be turned out in time, for Supt. Landis of the Philadelphia Mint had reported that the dies had been ruined.

Mr. Cox agitatedly sought the White House, where he poured his tale into the sympathetic ear of the President.

"Can't get 'em ready, eh," said Mr. Taft grimly. "We'll see about that."

In a minute the President had directed his telephone operator to connect him with Supt. Landis in Philadelphia, and soon afterward there was a conversation, which, according to report, ran something like this at the White House end:

"Hello, hello, is this Mr. Landis? How do you do? This is Mr. Taft. Why aren't the Wright medals to be ready for the celebration at Dayton, Ohio? What's that? W-e-l-l, I think I'm entitled to know. I'm rather interested. Oh, yes, I'm frequently guilty of taking an interest in the affairs of the Mint. No, I don't think it is unusual. You see, Representative Cox has just reported to me at the White House—why, yes, this is President Taft. You didn't know it? Now, tut—tut—tut, don't apologize. That's all right. You'll have them ready? Fine. Good-bye."

In the absence of advices from Philadelphia it is not known whether Supt. Landis has yet recovered from the shock. The President is said to have laughed heartily over the affair.

BAD LIGHTS AT ANNAPOLIS.

Cadets' Weak Eyes Thus Explained—System to be Changed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Officials of the Navy Department are now thoroughly aroused over the physical condition of the cadets at Annapolis. Their showing, as compared with the cadets at the Military Academy, suffers severely. Failing eyesight and heart troubles have become so frequent that the special board now at work to ascertain the causes has been reinforced by the addition of Surgeon Gen. Rixey.

The board is still pursuing its investigation, but the members already have reached the conclusion that the lighting system at the Academy is to blame for the failure in eyesight. The lights in the Naval Academy lack certain color rays, making the lamps give out a blinding glare of white light so intense as to be highly injurious. Secretary Meyer announced to-day that the whole system would probably be changed before the next class enters.

The cause of the increase in heart trouble is puzzling the board, however. The young men successfully pass a rigorous examination before entering the Academy, and some of the officers are inclined to attribute the deterioration to an excess of enthusiasm in the pursuit of athletics. Every healthy young man, on entering the Academy, strives to "make" the football, baseball, and track teams. It is intimated that this overdoing of exercise has a deleterious effect on the heart of a growing youngster.

The class just graduated, and which is to undertake its two years of prescribed service at sea before its members receive their commissions as officers, lost over sixty members during its progress through the Academy. After the eliminations had progressed for three years, it was found that 25 of the 180 remaining members had to be rejected on physical grounds, while three were set back because they failed in their mental examinations. It is understood that these three were suffering from trouble with their eyes and could not pursue their studies as assiduously as their more fortunate classmates.

Twelve of those who were rejected as physically unfit were declared incurable, and their resignations were requested.

NEW PRESIDENT FOR UNION.

Dr. Richmond Says He Wants Athletic Students Who Will Govern Themselves

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., June 7.—In the presence of Gov. Hughes and representatives of many of the important universities and colleges in the East, including President Woodrow Wilson of Princeton and President M. Woolsey Stryker of Hamilton College, the Rev. Dr. Charles Alexander Richmond, former pastor of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, of Albany, was formally inducted into office to-day as President of Union College and Chancellor of Union University.

Dr. Silas B. Brownell, President of the Board of Trustees of Union College, presided, and after prayer by Dr. Stryker introduced Gov. Hughes. The Governor lauded Union for what it has done in the educational field and predicted even greater achievements under its new leadership.

Dr. Wilson discussed the problems and duties of a college President. "It is characteristic of our school systems," said he, "that they lack system. America is very eager just now for disinterested counsel, and it is because they think they will receive it from college that college Presidents are called upon to speak so much."

Dr. Richmond, after being formally installed, announced that he would welcome the day when all questions of discipline would be dealt with by the students themselves.

The time and thought given to college sports will be limited only by the prior demands of college work.

TEST FOR THE TORRENS LAW.

Question of the Registration of Land Titles to Come Up in Brooklyn Court.

In the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, next Monday there will be heard a test case under the new Torrens law for the registration of land titles. The matter will get before the court in a dispute over the attempt of Thomas T. Duffy of 69 South Fourth Street, Brooklyn, to register under the provisions of this law his title to a lot at 113 Decatur Street, Brooklyn.

The belief obtains in realty circles that one of the title insuring companies is backing those who are opposing Mr. Duffy's efforts to register the title, which is the first to be offered for registration under the new law in Kings County.

MRS. EDDY SHOWN TO REPORTERS

Kept Fifty Feet from Her Carriage, but Recognize Head of Christian Science Church.

WAVES HER HAND TO THEM

Mrs. Gilbert, Who Made Charges, Declares That Nothing but Personal Interview Will Satisfy Her.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 7.—Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, head of the Christian Science Church, is not dead, according to a committee of newspaper men who have known her for several years, and who were allowed to see her to-day. As to the other charge of Mrs. Della M. Gilbert of Brooklyn, N. Y., that Mrs. Eddy is "a helpless, mindless puppet in the hands of conscienceless men," the committeemen do not report because they saw the Christian Science leader only for a moment and at a distance of fifty feet.

The exhibition of Mrs. Eddy to the newspaper men was deftly contrived by Alfred Farlow and the others of the innermost circle, and was carried out in a somewhat theatrical manner.

A dozen men were in the party, and they were entertained by Mr. Farlow and Mrs. Eddy's secretary, Adam H. Dickey, in the library of the residence. Their conversation was interrupted by a voice from the corridor, which announced:

"Mrs. Eddy is about to step into her carriage, and you gentlemen will have to hurry if you want to see her."

The writers stepped quickly out through the doorway to the drive and started for the porte-cochère under which Mrs. Eddy's carriage could be seen standing. They had gone about thirty feet when they were stopped by Mr. Farlow and Mr. Dickey, who stood in the driveway with bared heads. It was evident that the reporters were supposed to go no further. The stopping point was about fifty feet from the carriage.

Hardly had the reporters reached that point and were watching the house door intently, waiting for Mrs. Eddy to step out, when the carriage started up. Mrs. Eddy had taken her place in the carriage before the reporters had been called.

As the carriage turned into the main driveway, toward the street, it showed a broadside to the reporters. On the box holding the reins was Frank E. Bowman, the coachman, and at his side Calvin E. Frye. Within were seated Mrs. Laura E. Sargent, who for twenty-five years has been Mrs. Eddy's constant companion, and at her left sat Mrs. Eddy.

Mrs. Eddy was gowned in violet silk, with a white boa about her neck. The ends of the boa were of purple silk. As the carriage drove slowly past the reporters at a distance, Mrs. Eddy leaned forward into sight. She had, evidently, been prepared for the exhibition.

As she leaned forward, Mr. Dickey announced: "That, gentlemen, is Mrs. Eddy."

Mrs. Eddy smiled faintly in recognition and lifted her left hand, which was clad in a white kid glove, and waved mechanically toward the group of reporters. Then she sank back out of sight.

Reporters who have seen Mrs. Eddy during the past few years have no doubt that it was she.

Later Mr. Dickey gave out this statement for Mrs. Eddy:

To Whom It May Concern:

I have the pleasure to report to one and all of my beloved friends and followers that I exist in the flesh and am seen daily by the members of my household and by those with whom I have appointments.

Above all this fustian of either denying or asserting the personality and presence of Mary Baker Eddy stands the eternal fact of Christian Science and the honest history of its discoverer and founder. It is self-evident that the discoverer of an eternal truth cannot be a temporal fraud.

The cause of Christian Science is prospering throughout the world, and stands forever as an eternal and demonstrable science, and I do not regard this attack upon me as a trial, for when these things cease to bless they will cease to occur.

And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are called according to His purpose. What shall we then say to these things? If God be for us, who can be against us?

Some comment has been aroused by a note which the head of the Christian Science cult sent to-day in answer to an invitation extended by the Christian Science Board of Directors to attend the annual meeting. It read:

June 5, 1909.

The Christian Science Board of Directors:

Beloved Students: I thank you for your kind invitation to be present at the annual meeting of the mother church on June 7, 1909. I will attend the meeting, but not in propria persona. Watch and pray that God directs your meetings and your lives, and your leader will then be sure that they are blessed in their results. Lovingly yours,

MARY BAKER EDDY.

Just what this language was intended to convey is matter of speculation.

The Board of Directors of the mother church late to-day elected William P. McKenzie President, Stephen A. Chase of Fall River Treasurer, and John V. Dittemore of New York clerk, the latter succeeding William B. Johnson, who resigned.

The report from Boston that a number of newspaper men were to be permitted to see Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy so that they might be assured she was really alive made little impression on Mrs. Della M. Gilbert, who issued the letter to Christian Scientists on Saturday charging that Mrs. Eddy was either dead or unsound mentally.

Mrs. Gilbert said last night that it would make no difference to her how often newspaper men were permitted to see a person alleged to be Mrs. Eddy.

"That would not make it she," said Mrs. Gilbert, "and I will never be satisfied nor will I withdraw from the fight until I myself have been permitted to see Mrs. Eddy. I know her, and I could not be deceived by any one posing as her."

Mrs. Gilbert said that she was tired of talking about the case, and would say nothing more except that she had received a long-distance telephone message in response to her call sent out on Saturday from one whose name she would not reveal, but who, she said, had told her that he was in a position to prove that Mrs. Eddy was no longer alive.

PROF. ROSSIGGNOLI ROBBED.

Thief Takes Medals, Rare Old Coins, and Other Valuables.

Articles whose sentimental value, the owner says, is "more than all Carnegie's millions," were stolen last night from 138 West Thirty-first Street, the home of Nicolas Rossiggnoli, instructor in clay modeling and statuary at Cooper Union, by a thief who gained entrance to the professor's rooms by bodily forcing the door. The exact value of the stolen goods is not known by the police. Mr. Rossiggnoli, who is 83 years old, was prostrated by his loss.

The robber got away with a silver medal which was pinned on the old instructor's breast at Cooper Union at the close of the last season's class work in commemoration of his long and faithful services. There was another silver medal he received in 1853 at the National Academy of Sculpture at Marseilles, France; a pair of opera glasses, a small box of rare old coins that took a lifetime to gather, and all of which have a big value, were also taken. Even the old instructor's citizenship papers were taken, including some notes given by several people for loans, and which are of no value to any one else.

BOY FATALLY HURT BY AUTO.

Policeman Thought He Wasn't Much Hurt and Let the Car Get Away.

Chester Giffen, 10 years old, of 158 West Twenty-fourth Street, was knocked down by an automobile driven by a man who gave the name and address of Edward Murphy, 407 West Thirty-eighth Street, in front of 240 West Twenty-second Street, yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock. Policeman Loeb of the old West Twentieth Street Station permitted "Murphy" to go on, thinking that the boy was not much hurt. The boy died, however, at 11:15 o'clock last night in New York Hospital of intercranial hemorrhages.

Young Giffen was playing with some companions when struck. He was picked up and seemed able to walk and talk without effort. Dr. Monroe of the New York Hospital, who was called by Policeman Loeb, said that Giffen was suffering from shock only, and took him to the hospital.

In the car with the chauffeur were two women, who got out to assist young Giffen. The number was 68,262 N. Y. When the police learned that the boy was in a serious condition, Detective McManus was sent to the address given by the chauffeur, and found that no person by the name of Murphy was known there.

WON'T REMOVE CLARKSON.

Report That Taft Will Let Surveyor of the Port Serve Out His Term.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—It is reported that there is a new shift in the slate for the New York Customs Service, and that Gen. J. S. Clarkson will be permitted to serve out the remainder of his term as Surveyor of the Port, instead of being replaced by George W. Aldridge of Rochester.

Soon after Mr. Taft became President it was reported that Gen. Clarkson would not be long in following Col. Fowler into the discard. The understanding then was that Aldridge had been agreed upon as his successor.

But there was a hitch in the plans somewhere and Gen. Clarkson has managed to hold his job. Now the report is that he will be able to complete his term, which has still about a year to run. It is his second term, however, and he cannot hope for more than to be allowed to complete it.

This information is accompanied by the further report that when Gen. Clarkson does relinquish his place it will not be George W. Aldridge who succeeds him, but a man whose name has not yet been connected with the post.

FIREBUG BLAZE IN HAT SHOP.

$20,000 Damage in Orange Factory Where Workers Are on Strike.

The hat factory of Prowe, Quinlan & Moore at Mechanic Street and Essex Avenue, Orange, N. J., was damaged to the extent of $20,000 at midnight last night by a fire which is supposed to be of incendiary origin. The factory has been fighting a strike of operatives ever since January. It is an open shop.

The blaze was discovered by the night watchman, who did not notice it until the whole south side of the main factory building, a frame structure four stories in height, was in flames. Another frame building and a brick structure make up the plant. It is in the centre of a thickly populated German district and is surrounded by frame structures.

FUNSTON FIRES ON BURGLAR.

Intruder in His Room Had Fired First —Neither Hit.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., June 7.—Brig. Gen. Frederick Funston, Commandant of the army service schools at Fort Leavenworth, engaged in a revolver fight with a supposed burglar in his quarters at the post early to-day. The man escaped and Gen. Funston was unharmed.

Gen. Funston had gone to bed late. He lay awake in bed for an hour. Then a closet door opened and a man stepped forth. The General saw him and reached under his pillow for a revolver. The intruder saw the motion and fired. The bullet pierced the mattress near the General, who leaped to his feet. He turned on the lights and fired three shots as the man fled.

"I believe he was a burglar," said Gen. Funston, "waiting until I was asleep to rifle my pockets."

SALEM COALS IN FIVE HOURS.

Scout Cruiser on Way to Canary Islands Makes Good Coaling Record.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., June 7.—Although the scout cruiser Salem, with Commander Albert L. Key, U. S. N., which sailed for the Canary Islands this afternoon from the Naval Coaling Station to join the scout cruisers Chester and Birmingham, did not break the coaling record at the station, her record is an excellent one.

At 2 o'clock this afternoon the Salem had taken 1,040 tons of coal aboard, the crew taking three-quarters of an hour for luncheon. The actual coaling time was five hours and thirty-five minutes. This included the work of taking on board an outfit of torpedoes from a lighter from the torpedo station.

PARIS EMBASSY GOES TO ROBERT BACON

Accepts Post After It Is Made Clear That White Will Not Be Retained.

TAFT MADE OFFER EARLY

Objection to White Failure to "Know an American When He Sees One"—Bacon Once Morgan's Partner.

PARIS, June 7.—Private advices received here from Washington state that Robert Bacon, ex-Secretary of State, has accepted the Ambassadorship to France and that he will succeed Henry White at the end of the year. Mr. Bacon, when the post was first offered to him, declined to accept it, preferring that Mr. White should be retained as Ambassador, but, finding that President Taft had resolved in any event to replace Ambassador White, finally agreed to accept the position.

Rumors of Mr. White's approaching retirement, which have been current here for months, cause genuine regret, especially in official circles where he is particularly persona grata, and among the members of the American Chamber of Commerce, where it was felt that his experience would count for much in the difficult tariff negotiations between the two countries, which are considered inevitable, after the passage of the new American Tariff bill.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—The Paris dispatches regarding the selection of Robert Bacon, former Secretary of State, to be Ambassador to France in place of Henry White are confirmed here. The post was offered to Mr. Bacon very early in the Taft Administration, but Mr. Bacon then declined it, principally because, being a friend of Mr. White, he was not willing to displace the present Ambassador. But it was made clear to Mr. Bacon subsequently that no matter whether he accepted the place or not Mr. White could not retain it.

Mr. White is paying the penalty, so it is reported, for an offense given to Mr. and Mrs. Taft long ago, when he refused them a courtesy while they were traveling abroad. He is charged with falling short of the qualification of being able to "know an American when he sees one," which is declared to be an essential of diplomatic service under this Administration.

When the fact that Mr. White was to go under any circumstances was pointed out, Mr. Bacon was induced to reconsider his declination, and has now accepted the post. It is understood that his nomination will go to the Senate before very long.

Robert Bacon was born in Massachusetts forty-nine years ago. After being graduated from Harvard in the same class with ex-President Roosevelt, Mr. Bacon entered the banking business in Boston. Here he acquired a thorough financial training, which afterward aided him greatly during his membership in the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. Mr. Bacon resigned as foreign representative of that firm in 1903 and spent the following two years traveling through Europe.

In 1905 he was called home to accept the post of Assistant Secretary of State. Here he served with distinction and was frequently the companion of President Roosevelt out of office hours. He went to Porto Rico in 1908 and succeeded in settling the property dispute there between the Church and State. Mr. Bacon's work in this matter was highly regarded in diplomatic circles in Washington. President Roosevelt tendered him the Ambassadorship to Germany in 1907, but this he declined saying that he preferred to stay at home.

When Secretary Root resigned from the State Department one month before the expiration of his term to take up his Senate duties Mr. Bacon was nominated by President Roosevelt to succeed him. The Senate confirmed this nomination, and Mr. Bacon served until March 4. Mr. Bacon speaks French very fluently.

MORE DIPLOMATS TO GO.

Probably Ten, Whom Knox Disapproved, to be Replaced Soon.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 7. — Another shake-up in the minor officials of the Diplomatic Corps is promised within the next day or so, when Secretary Knox will make public a number of changes among the Secretaries to embassies and legations.

There are to be eight or ten, according to report, and while they will not be of vast importance, they indicate the intention of the Administration to undertake a complete reform in the Diplomatic and Consular Service. The places pay from $1,200 to $2,000 a year. It is expected that a majority of the new attachés will be chosen from the list of candidates who went through a thorough oral and written examination by the State Department officials some time ago.

Secretary Knox has had his eye on several attachés whom he does not believe are either suited to the work or have their hearts in it.

TAFT AGAIN A VICTOR.

Makes Highest Individual Score in Golf Game and Wins Easily.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—President Taft added still another to his string of golf victories this afternoon when, with Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, he defeated Senator Bourne and Capt. Butt on the Chevy Chase Golf course. The score was 5 up. The President again tallied the highest individual score during the match.

The weather was ideal and the links were in excellent condition. The President returned to the White House at 7 o'clock.

Mrs. Russell Leaves $383,000 to Charity

WARWICK, R. I., June 7.—Public institutions and Episcopal Church organizations will received $383,000 and individuals will get $1,015,200 under the will of Mrs. Henry G. Russell of Providence, which was filed for probate here to-day. Upward of twenty institutions, all located in Providence, will benefit. LONDON, June 7.—E. H. Harriman, on board the Kaiser Wilhelm II., which called at Plymouth to-day, declined to discuss the question of attempting to float in Europe a $150,000,000 bond issue for his railway lines. He merely said that he could float such an issue easily in America in five minutes if it were necessary.

He made a reassuring statement concerning his health, and his friends strenuously deny that he is seriously ill. Mr. Harriman is on his way to Paris, where he will meet James Stillman. He will afterward go to Vienna to consult a medical expert, and intends to spend three months in Europe.

SPOIL ASQUITH'S PORTRAIT.

"Votes for Women" Pasted Across Royal Academy Painting.

LONDON, June 7.—The suffragettes, it appears, have carried the up-to-date advertising methods which have made them famous into the very temple of British art. Unable to induce Prime Minister Asquith to lend his voice to their cause, they have forced him to lend his countenance—at least a painting of it.

A portrait of Mr. Asquith by S. J. Soloman, one of the features of the Royal Academy, was defaced to-day by the pasting across it of the familiar legend "Votes for Women."

NEW YORK WOMAN HURT.

ZURICH, June 7.—An automobile, in which Mr. and Mrs. Bager of New York and two others were traveling over the road from Schwamendingen to Zurich, fell over an embankment to-day and was completely demolished.

Mrs. Bager suffered injuries to the spine and a fractured clavicle, and was removed to a hospital. The others escaped with slight injuries.

Such a project, the traders declare, is impracticable.

BONUS FOR LOYAL CARMEN.

Philadelphia Rapid Transit to Divide $25,000 Among Them.

PHILADELPHIA, June 7.—At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company to-day Clarence Wolf resigned as a representative of the city on the board and was elected to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of George H. Earle. He was also elected Vice President to succeed George D. Widener, who resigned from that office, but retains his membership on the board.

As a reward for the men who remained loyal to the company and operated cars during the strike, $25,000 was appropriated and will be distributed.

NARRAGANSETT PIER, R. I., June 7.—The anti-gambling element in this town won a close election here to-day, electing its entire ticket, headed by Capt. Harry B. Kane of New York and Narragansett, by small margins.

This ticket was opposed by a fusion ticket of the Democrats and Republicans. John H. Hanan of New York was prominent among the supporters of Capt. Kane's candidacy.

BOYS' SYMPATHETIC STRIKE.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., June 7.—Forty boys of the Centennial School went on a strike to-day because they said their teachers were riding in street cars against which there is a strike of motormen and conductors.

JACK LONDON COLLAPSES.

Victim of No Less Than Five Tropical Diseases, He Writes Friend.

HONOLULU, May 29.—That Jack London has lost his health through tropical diseases and may never regain it is the information given out by Mr. E. S. Goodhue of this city, who has received a long letter from the novelist, who is in a hospital at Sydney, Australia.

London specifies five diseases from which he suffered when he reached Sydney. Of two of these he was cured by operations, but still has malarial fever and a curious nervous complaint, which attacks him periodically, making him as helpless as a child. ONE DROWNS, TWO RESCUED.

New York Carpenters at Work on Columbia Dormitory Capsize Rowboat.

Special to The New York Times.

WINSTED, Conn., June 7.—Charles Eckborn, a New York carpenter, employed in a new dormitory at the Summer camp of Columbia University, at Morris, was drowned and Otto Johnson and Nedin Miller, also of New York, engaged on the same job, were rescued in Bantom Lake yesterday by men in a motor boat when their rowboat upset.

Eckborn could not swim and sank immediately, while Johnson and Miller clung to the capsized craft until they were picked up. Eckborn leaves a family in New York.

MISS MORGAN TURNS JEERS INTO CHEERS

Banker's Daughter Wins an Unruly Audience at the Navy Yard Restaurant Opening.

OTHER SPEAKERS HISSED

Catcalls, Whistling, and Loud Talk Drowned Their Voices, but Miss Morgan Stuck It Out.

Miss Anne Morgan, daughter of J. Pierpont Morgan, addressed what in the beginning was a rather unruly crowd of some 6,000 persons, workmen and their wives, last night at the opening of the Navy Yard restaurant, started by the Woman's Branch of the National Civic Federation. She rose to speak when, from the jeering reception given to former speakers, friends of the Federation and of Miss Morgan were beginning to fear the failure of the project. There were some whistles and catcalls when she began to talk, and when she sat down it was with the crowd all on her side and amid a perfect roar of applause.

The Navy Yard Restaurant was planned by the committee of the Woman's Civic Federation, headed by Miss Morgan, and carried through entirely on the responsibility of the committee itself, by permission of the Government. Its object is to show that men in the Government employ can be provided with good food at a moderate price. The committee of women intends to prove this by running the restaurant, so that it pays expenses for one year. Then, if they succeed, the Government will take it over.

Whether it was that Miss Morgan spoke at her own suggestion, realizing that this was a critical juncture, or not could not be learned. She was not down on the programme to speak, and she followed Mrs. Archibald Alexander, whose voice could hardly be heard at all, for the noise of what was almost a hostile crowd.

But Miss Morgan's speech turned the tide from skepticism, to put it mildly, to real enthusiasm. She spoke with determination to be heard clearly and directly.

She told the audience that if the plan failed it must shut down; that it could not succeed without their help; and if it did succeed it might have unlimited results in teaching the Government to take up similar plans all over the country. There was not a man or woman there but cheered when she reached that point.

She Won the Audience.

Miss Morgan's speech and that of John Mitchell who, following, spoke of this institution as perhaps the beginning of a new era, to end with the Government's becoming a model employer, completely reversed the sentiment of the crowd, and perhaps saved the project from failure.

The restaurant is in Building 14 of the Navy Yard, on the ground floor, and there the opening was held. The long hall was packed, so that several hundred of the audience of workmen and their wives had to stand. The windows were wide open, and a throng of some 3,000 pushed about them.

From the first this throng was uneasy. They seemed to have come with a sort of hostile curiosity. No enthusiasm whatever was shown in the early part of the meeting. For the first speaker, Capt. J. B. Murdock, Commandant of the navy yard and Chairman of the meeting, no feeling was shown one way or the other.

He spoke briefly of the need of good food for workmen from whom good work was wanted, and read letters from Secretary of the Navy Meyer and Assistant Secretary Winthrop, who expressed well wishes for the restaurant and regret that they could not be there.

Throughout all this there was considerable talking and laughing in the back of the hall and out of doors, so that the members of the Woman's Federation and guests, gathered in the front of the audience, many of them well-known society men and women, looked around nervously.

Finally Capt. Murdock called on Rear Admiral Goodrich. There was applause from the guests in the front of the audience, some applause from the middle, but from the rear of the room and the windows loud talking, and some hisses. The noise of talking and occasional hissing grew so loud as he went on that at times it was difficult to hear his words.

Finally, amid the noise of loud voices in which not a few hisses sounded, Capt. Murdock called on Mrs. Alexander, Vice Chairman of the Woman's Department of the New York and New Jersey section of the Woman's Civic Federation.

As she stepped to the platform there was no pause in the hubbub. Her voice could only be heard occasionally. There were whistles and cries from women in the rear of the hall, but she kept her poise, and at last suggested a speech from the woman to whom they all owed most—Miss Morgan.

Miss Morgan Speaks.

Miss Morgan rose from her seat in the front row, and the curiosity of the audience brought it momentarily to silence. Capt. Murdock took this chance to say:

"This room is meant to eat in, not to speak in, and so we must all be quiet as possible if the speakers are to be heard."

Miss Morgan then walked up the steps to the platform. She wore a bright dress of russet color, and a bick hat trimmed with flowers. Though she had probably never addressed an audience of anything but friends before, certainly none of this unruly and critical type, she was quite at her ease.

Yet there were whistles from without and a good deal of noise. It stopped as she began in a loud, clear, determined voice, that could be heard everywhere in the hall.

"Mrs. Alexander has spoken of the work of the women's department of the Civic Federation. I want to say a few words for these women."

A sort of murmur, which died in a moment, followed these words. Then she went on, and there was silence.

"When the Navy Department accepted Admiral Goodrich's suggestion it did so on the express understanding that it was not in any way responsible for the operation of this restaurant as such. It was taken up independently and enthusiastically because of the feeling that it would fill a great need.

"Now one thing is certain—if it fails

...ny expenses, it must be shut right down. It can succeed only by co-operation among all of us. The functions are divided. You have your committees, we our managers; but the responsibility rests equally on each and every one of us.

"If we bring out the best, each is sure to take away a better understanding of the other's point of view, and that means brotherhood. We must make it a central interest. We must prove to Washington that it can succeed on these lines. Then other restaurants and like improvements will follow, not in navy yards only, but wherever the Government is a large employer.

"From this beginning better conditions should now obtain for your children and for those who follow. Finally, from this beginning it may come about and it should—we all live and believe in our Government, and some don't require suffrage to make us proud to be American citizens—that the Government takes the place of the model employer to the country at large."

Miss Morgan's clear, loud voice stopped. In the silence she smiled on the audience. Then she walked toward the steps, and the storm—a roar of cheers from without and within—began. It continued until she had taken her seat, and John Mitchell had ascended to the stage. She had completely turned the audience.

Mr. Mitchell spoke in the same tenor. With great emphasis and evident feeling he called on those assembled as a fellow-workman for co-operation, and spoke of the unlimited influence the restaurant might have.

NAVY YARD PARK OPENS, TOO

With Ice Cream and a Pageant—Falling Fence in No Wise Spoiled It.

While within the Brooklyn Navy Yard the dignitaries were gathering to celebrate the opening of the new restaurant last night, just without the walls was a celebration quite as interesting. Just south of where the sentries marched to and fro the people of the district around the Navy Yard were opening the Summer season of Riverside Park with such honors as were due the importance of that event.

The unfeeling might suggest that Riverside Park is a cindery, vacant lot beneath the shadow of a gas tank, and a playground only by adoption and grace of the much-used swings, see-saws, punching bag, and other paraphernalia which adorn a rather ungracious spot. But if you had questioned any one of twenty boys mounted on top of the 15-foot board fence which surrounds this paradise, you would have learned that Riverside Park is Coney Island, Luna Park, and Dreamland combined, for the thousands of children near it, more particularly because it costs 10 cents to go to Coney, and this is free.

At least, Riverside Playground is free generally, but it wasn't last night, for this was a grand celebration, with Japanese lanterns and ice cream galore for those who could pay for the ticket—grown-ups, 10 cents, children 5. Accordingly, all of young Ireland, Poland, and Italy from the surrounding neighborhood either climbed the straight, smooth fence or passed within in some more or less regular manner. All the dimes and nickels taken up, though, were for the playground. The people who live between the East River and Hudson Avenue have paid for all the apparatus within, and keep it in repair. But the last time something happened to the swing, the carpenter affirmed that there was no more mend in it; also the punching bag was in a condition most suspiciously near a knockout. So the fathers and mothers of the children in the neighborhood decided to give this benefit for the playground. Consultation with the Asacog Settlement workers followed, and the "Festival of the Seasons" was evolved.

The hour announced was 8, but long before that all the best peepholes and fence-posts had been seized. Within the walls those who had the price sat on chairs. Spring boards between beer kegs were, however, considered very stylish. Every one, regardless of sex, age or size brought at least one baby. The first families carried three, and those who were ostentatious displayed five and six. Any child who cried was wheeled violently up and down a steep bank until it was rendered too dizzy for further remonstrance. The good sailors among the youngsters were voted undesirable citizens, and left to cry it out.

A procession was to form at the Bliss Kindergarten, on Hudson Avenue, and march down proudly behind a real band. The band arrived, but no procession formed. The crowds grew uneasy. Then an explanation was rumored. The four Winds, who were to carry the palanquin of the sun, had mislaid their costumes, which were finally discovered beneath the maypole. However, afar the notes of the band were heard, and then they came. Right behind the last cornetist rode Charlie MacDonald, King of the Sun, in his yellow palanquin, draped with big eight-rayed orbs of gilt paper. The four Winds were there, breathless but properly garbed in white tunics, with flowing gray shoulder capes.

As they all marched upon the stage—Sun, Winds, Winter, Spring, Summer, and Autumn—they were grand indeed to behold.

Then some one hung up the chief footlight, a fine barn lantern, and Miss Marie Hofer of the Public School Athletic League recited the story of the play, all in poetry, about winds bringing Winter, then there being Spring and Summer, and all the rest. To the accompaniment of guitars and mandolins, Miss Hofer sang the song of the winds, and the performance began.

The Winds came on, whirling their gray coats about them in fine dervish style, till some one in the audience applauding his chum's exertion yelled, "Hi, there, Gus, keep it up, you're doin' fine."

After the winds came the "breezes," little chaps decked out in gray, who with the four winds blew the "leaves" about. The "leaves," too, were small shavers, all draped in brown. They were blown ecstatically, persistently till the audience cried in admiration, "Hurrah, there! Go it Dorando!"

Just about this moment a part of the fence, which had received many reinforcements after the appearance of the parade, went down with a crash. All concerned picked themselves out of the cinders unhurt, and the performance went on without interruption.

Next, of course, came Winter and Spring, tiny youngsters in white from the kindergarten, who planted seed in their games, and Summer, with a ring-around-the rosy dance by older girls in pink and white. Meanwhile the Sun King grew restless and tickled the faces of those near him with his spear, in return for which they stole his pipe. Then came Autumn, with a quaint dance by the "leaves," suggestive of more November gales among the trees.

Near the front was a soulful young Settlement worker, who pointed to the children around her. "See how they're rapt in it," she said to the reporter. "This is natural symbolism, the real art of the people, as Tolstoy would say."

So the reporter asked the little girl with the most rapt countenance what the little boys in brown were.

"Dunno," responded the angel face, "but Jimmie, me brother's there." Then turning her attention to a smaller sister on whom, too, apparently Tolstoy and the natural symbolism were lost, she remarked firmly: "Say, if youse don't shut up, I'll jab yer nose." And the small sister not shutting up, she was "jabbed" forcefully and with precision.

The finale was a May-pole winding, significant, so the Settlement worker suggested, of eternal and returning life. The band struck up a tune, all the children came to attention.

"Ah! the symbol touches them," murmured the soulful worker. But it didn't, for as one man all the little people began to chime in with the music something in no wise related to art or Tolstoy:

Gee, I wish I had a girl
Like other fellows had.

REPUBLICAN SPLIT WIDENS IN SENATE

Insurgents Taunted as Planning a New Party — MacVeagh's Republicanism Attacked.

OPEN THREATS OF REVOLT

Bryan Criticised on the Democratic Side—Aldrich Wins on Votes, but Withdraws High Schedules.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Strong intimations that an open split was coming in the Republican Party as a result of the tariff fight were the feature to-day of one of the liveliest debates of the special session. Senator Aldrich taunted the insurgents with designs of forming a new party, and received warm replies that he was forcing matters too far. Senator Bailey openly declared that Republicans would vote against the Tariff bill. Most significant of all, however, was an open attack by Senator Smith on the Republicanism of Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh, who on Saturday night in Chicago gave warning that President Taft would carry out his pledges and might find it necessary to change the control of the party.

The Democrats did not escape division, and William J. Bryan came in for criticism for attempting to rebuke Senators for their votes on various schedules.

Beveridge Begins the Fight.

The colloquies that kept the Senate and galleries thoroughly awake throughout the afternoon began shortly after noon when Senator Beveridge declared that the small increases in duty—3 cents on a $1.50 shirt, 5 cents on a pair of hose, 10 cents on a dress—became in the end, when added together, the burden of the poor. That burden, he declared, had raised the storm for tariff revision that wrote the tariff plank into the Republican platform in Chicago.

"In the remarks of the Senator," retorted Senator Aldrich, "we have an instance of influences and dangers of association. Never have I heard that doctrine from protectionists, rarely from Republicans. The Senator has been voting so long with the Democratic side that he believes with them that the duty is added to the selling price of the article—"

"Did they believe that," interrupted Senator Beveridge sharply, "when they voted with the committee and Chairman for protection?"

"Oh! I suppose so," replied Mr. Aldrich, smiling. "They get the privates from that [Democratic] side and a number of Brigadiers from this [Republican]—" He paused and added: "Though I have been at a loss with which Brigadier I should treat in regard to fixing a date for a vote on the bill."

"You should treat with the Senate," replied Mr. Beveridge. "But I will tell you extortionists that you are no longer protectionists. You have planted the dynamite of injustice under the protective system."

Mr. Aldrich admitted smilingly that the cotton schedule, like oher schedules already accepted by both houses, contained many prohibitive rates.

"These rates," he said, "have served the purpose of preventing the dumping of Europe's surplus in this country in particular years." He asserted that the goods sold in America for less than the duty.

Characterizing Mr. Aldrich as the Major Pitcairn and the progressive Republicans as the minute men and the Senate Chamber as the Concord and the Lexington of the tariff situation, Mr. Beveridge, in a reference to Revolutionary times, predicted defeat of the majority in the Senate by "those who had the interests of the people at heart."

"Are you talking of our defeat?" asked Mr. Aldrich, serenely. "And by whom? Is it to be on a Democratic platform that our overthrow will be planned and by a new party you will form? How will the Senator consecrate his unholy alliance? I have respect for the revisionists on the other side and for some of them on this, but this new element is threatening destruction, trying with the aid of the Democrats to 'save' the Republican Party. On this side are representatives from States that have elected and will elect Republican Presidents, and we will not be deflected by any alliance that talks of sending us to our Concord."

In reply to references to Democratic defections, Senator Bailey predicted that more Republicans would vote against the bill than Democrats for it. He declared that votes of Democrats for revenue duties could not be construed as support for high protection.

MacVeagh's Name Drawn In.

Defending his own actions, Mr. Dolliver said he was not without company in high official circles, and read a portion of Secretary MacVeagh's speech delivered Saturday night.

Senator Smith of Michigan said the Secretary entertained the same views now that he did in 1894, when he was classed as a Democrat.

"Does the Senator suggest that the Secretary of the Treasury is wanting in Republicanism?" inquired Mr. Dolliver. "He is in the closest possible relation with the President of the United States."

"I cannot forget," retorted Mr. Smith, "that while Benjamin Harrison was upholding the banner of protection the present Secretary of the Treasury left his party and joined the party of Mr. Cleveland for a downward revision of the tariff."

"When the Senator shows that the Secretary of the Treasury is not a proper political associate for the President of the United States," said Mr. Dolliver, "I will admit that I am not a fit associate for the Republican Party as represented in this chamber."

Paying a high compliment to the character of Mr. MacVeagh, Mr. Smith made an extended speech in support of protection.

"But," he said, "I would no more be bound by the advice and counsel of the Secretary of the Treasury than I would by the advice and counsel of the Secretary of War, Mr. Dickinson, a Democrat, if he were to give it upon this bill."

Cummins Warns Aldrich.

Senator Cummins said he had so often been classed with Democrats that such a charge had no terror for him. An intelligent electorate knew how to discriminate in such matters. Referring to a statement by Mr. Aldrich concerning Senators who had shown "loyalty" to the party by upholding the Committee on Finance, he said there was no man in the Senate who could put him out of the Republican Party.

Mr. Aldrich disavowed any intention to reflect upon the Republicanism of Mr. Cummins.

"Unless you want to disintegrate the Republican Party," said Mr. Cummins, "there should be an end here to direct or indirect challenges to party faith."

In the last half hour of the afternoon session the Democrats had their tilt. Senator Stone criticised Democrats who voted for duties on various articles in violation of the Denver platform. Senator Bailey replied that Mr. Bryan, who inspired the criticism, had himself in 1892 voted against the Democratic platform in regard to the demand for a repeal of the 10 per cent. tax on issues of State banks.

Mr. Stone replied that he had intended his criticism to be against the "dissensions raging on the other side over the Chicago platform," and not against Democratic insurgents. Mr. Bryan's record, he said, did not entitle him to criticise Democrats who voted wide of the party.

Some progress was made with the minor paragraphs of the cotton schedule. There were several roll calls, in all of which the Finance Committee won by a safe margin, the insurgent strength never getting above eleven votes.

On cotton window hollands, and the committee's amendment putting them under a duty of 3 cents per square and 20 per cent. ad valorem, an increase alleged by importers to amount to several hundred per cent., was carried by a vote of 41 to 26.

On the additional duty of one cent a square yard on mercerized cloth the committee won by the narrow margin of 38 to 32, Senator Jones of Washington joining the insurgents and some regulars being absent.

A proviso in the clothing paragraph fixing an additional duty of 15 cents a pound on all rubber articles of apparel made in part of cotton was withdrawn by Mr. Aldrich. Senator Dolliver had made a particular fight on this provision.

Mr. Aldrich made another concession to Mr. Dolliver at the night session, when cheaper tapestries were put on a 40 per cent. basis, and more costly ones under 50 per cent. duty.

The Dingley hosiery paragraph reported by the Senate amendment was adopted by a viva voce vote instead of the higher rates proposed in the House. There was a half-hearted effort on the part of Senators Scott, Gallinger, and Penrose to oppose the Senate reductions, but they confined themselves closely to reading statements from hosiery workers. The Senate then adjourned.

Senator Dixon said to-night he intended to offer an amendment providing an inheritance tax. This move caused considerable agitation among the advocates of an income tax, and they see in it a plan still further to divide their forces, though they admit that Mr. Dixon is offering it in good faith. The inheritance tax was originally Mr. Taft's plan, though it is thought now that the President is not anxious to drag any outside tax into the tariff discussion.

An effort was made this evening to get the advocates of the income tax together, but the short time between sessions of the Senate made it impossible. They are agreed, however, that the inheritance tax must be headed off, if possible.

morrow. Assistant Corporation Counsel Crowell, who has been with the Mayor during the investigation, will arrange all the testimony and place it in the Mayor's hands to-day.

After a visit to City Hall yesterday of Louis J. Grant, the police lawyer, who says that he will present charges against Commissioner Bingham in connection with the alleged hazing of delinquent policemen, it was learned that his partner, Jacob Rouss, will shortly begin an action for the removal of his picture from the Rogues' Gallery. Rouss was accused of subornation of perjury, but never was convicted.

HOUNDING DREAMLAND, HE SAYS

Magistrate Voorhees So Announces in Granting a Warrant.

For the first time since the beginning of the police activity at Coney Island in connection with violations of the Sunday law, a warrant was issued yesterday for the manager of one of the large amusement parks, in which violation of this section of the penal laws is charged.

Samuel W. Gumpertz, head of Dreamland in the absence of ex-Senator William H. Reynolds, President of the Dreamland Company, was notified last night to appear before Magistrate Voorhees in the Coney Island Court this morning, where the warrant will be served by Policeman Timothy E. Jones of the Coney Island Station, who applied for it yesterday morning.

Although he issued the warrant, Magistrate Voorhees took occasion to submit Jones to a severe cross-examination, in the course of which the Magistrate made the declaration that he knew Dreamland was being especially hounded by the police. Jones said in reply to one of the Magistrate's first questions that there was no one behind him in his application for the warrant. He was acting on his own initiative solely. He said he saw a circus in progress in the Dreamland arena on Sunday and that it constituted a violation of the Sunday law.

"Then why did you not arrest the violators?" demanded the Magistrate.

"I could not reach them," replied Jones. Then he explained that the circus ring was on an island in the middle of a lagoon and he could not get on it.

"Did you think that the performers flew on to the island?" asked the Magistrate. "If they could reach there, why couldn't you?"

Jones seemed flustered by the Magistrate's questioning. He mumbled some reply.

"Why are you police hounding Dreamland?" asked Magistrate Voorhees. Jones hastened to reply that the park was not being hounded.

"Dreamland is being hounded, and I know it. Furthermore, I intend to find out why this is so," responded the Magistrate. Then he issued the warrant.

Mr. Gumpertz did not seem disturbed last night when he was notified of the issuance of the warrant. He was told of Magistrate Voorhees's declaration that Dreamland was being hounded, and replied:

"Why, I don't think we are being especially hounded. If we have been violating the law we should be prosecuted as well as the proprietors of the smaller places. However, whether we have violated the law is a matter of opinion."

Mr. Gumpertz said he would be in court to-day, and added that he intended to make a test case of his arrest.

It has been frequently asserted, and never denied, that Senator McCarren is greatly interested in Dreamland.

WARNED POLICE, WAS ARRESTED

Man Who Told of a Saloon Robbery Locked Up.

Paul Fisher of 268 Bowery was walking through East Tenth Street about 3 o'clock yesterday morning, he says, when he felt thirsty. The lights of a saloon were across the way, so he says he went over there. Entering the place, he found it deserted and many bottles and glasses lying about the floor. The show cases were broken and empty and the cash register was open.

Fisher decided there had been a burglary there. He ran outside and a short distance away met Policeman John A. Nelson of the Fifth Street Station. He told Nelson what he had seen, and the two went back to the saloon. A hasty examination convinced Nelson that there had been a burglary.

"Well," said Nelson, "I'm going to lock you up."

"Why?" asked Fisher.

"Because your running to me and telling me about this was suspicious."

Fisher was taken to the Fifth Street Station and charged with being a suspicious person. He said that if he saw a tenement house burning and a thousand people in it, he would never tell a policeman about it after his experience last night. About $165 worth of wines and cigars had been taken from the saloon.

Policeman Nelson told Magistrate Barlow in the Yorkville Court later that he had no evidence against the prisoner, and Fisher was discharged.

CLUBBED ON HIS DOORSTEP.

Thone Fell Asleep While Awaiting Wife's Return and Was Arrested.

When John Thone, a mechanic, of 1,526 Gates Avenue, Williamsburg, was in the Manhattan Avenue Court before Magistrate O'Reilly yesterday on a charge of intoxication, he declared that Policeman Hart of the Hamburg Avenue Station had brutally clubbed him.

Thone was arrested on the night of May 23, while sitting on the stoop of his house awaiting the return of his wife from a reception where he had left her. He fell asleep, and he alleges a policeman awoke him roughly. Thone said he protested, and the policeman, he declared, then clubbed him and arrested him. A neighbor of Thone testified to the clubbing. Magistrate O'Reilly, in discharging Thone, advised him to complain to Commissioner Bingham.

HONOR TWO NATIONS AT DINNER HERE

Capt. Pelly of the English Navy and Vice Admiral Uriu Entertained by Col. Thompson.

PLEAS FOR WORLD'S PEACE

Cordial Relations Between This Country and England and Japan a Strong Factor in It, Speakers Declare.

Vice Admiral Sotokichi Uriu of the Japanese Navy and Capt. Henry Bertram Pelly of the British Navy, who was in command of the royal yacht Victoria and Albert at the time of Queen Victoria's death, and who was afterward, by command of King Edward, put in charge of the guard over her body pending its final burial in the mausoleum at Frogmore, were the guests of Col. Robert M. Thompson at a dinner at Sherry's last night.

The dinner was most elaborate, the guests being seated in a great circle, in the centre of which, amid banked flowers, were two beautiful models in war blue of the battleship King Edward VII., Capt. Pelly's last command, and the battleship Asama Admiral Uriu's flagship in the Japanese war with Russia. The entwined flags of the United States, Great Britain, and Japan were everywhere in evidence.

The speeches all emphasized the necessity of preserving permanent peace between the three great countries represented at the dinner. Besides Admiral Uriu and Capt. Pelly, the speakers were Rear Admiral Seaton Schroeder, Commander-in-Chief of the Atlantic fleet; Major Gen. Leonard Wood, commanding the Department of the East; Takutaro Sakai, Imperial Japanese Commissioner to the United States for the forthcoming exposition at Tokio; Judge E. H. Gary, President of the United States Steel Corporation; Consul General Midzuno, Rear Admiral Willard H. Brownson, retired, U. S. N.; ex-Assistant Secretary of the Navy Herbert L. Satterlee, and Col. John J. McCook.

Mrs. Stephen H. P. Pell, a daughter of Col. Thompson, entertained the women of Admiral Uriu's party at dinner at Sherry's, and when the last course had been served they joined Col. Thompson's party in the grand ballroom. Among those in Mrs. Pell's party were the Baroness Uriu, Mme. Midzuno, and Mrs. Schroeder.

As soon as the women were seated the speechmaking began. Col. Thompson, the host, started it by proposing the health of the rulers of England, Japan, and America, a toast that was drunk in silence, the orchestra playing the National anthems of the countries named.

"I propose the health of his Imperial Majesty the Mikado of Japan, his Majesty the King of England, and his Excellency the President of the United States. May God bless them all!" said Col. Thompson.

Admiral Brownson Welcomes Guests.

Admiral Brownson, the first of the speakers, welcomed the guests of the evening. Admiral Brownson was Assistant Commandant of Midshipmen at Annapolis in the cadet days of Admiral Uriu.

Admiral Brownson told Admiral Uriu that when he returned to Japan he wanted him to tell the Japanese Government and Japanese people that the earnest desire of the officers of the American Navy of the people of this country, generally, was that the pleasant relation existing between the two nations to-day should always be maintained. He then referred to the cordial relations existing between America and England in welcoming Capt. Pelly.

The next toast was the Japanese Navy, and this was replied to by Vice Admiral Uriu.

"This is a difficult task for me," said Admiral Uriu, "because speaking was one of the things were were not taught at Annapolis. I am glad to thank my old instructor, Admiral Brownson, for all that he has done for me, and I also take this occasion to thank every one for their kindnesses to me during my present sojourn in your country, and my thanks are not only for myself but for my country.

In introducing Capt. Pelly, who is only 41 years old, Col. Thompson referred to conditions in our navy that made it impossible for officers to reach his rank until they were far advanced in years. He called it a "frightful example," and cited the fact that Capt. Pelly has been a Captain longer than any Captain on the active list of our navy at the present time, and yet is thirteen years younger than the youngest Captain in the American service. He then proposed the toast, "The British Navy."

"I was greatly interested at Annapolis at the splendid training that is given there. Lord Charles Beresford, my late chief, always insisted that the fleet must be kept efficient at all times, efficient so that the peace of the world might be preserved. To-day I saw Grant's tomb, and I noticed the motto over that tomb, 'Let us have peace,' and I do not believe that any man of war could have a better motto than that."

The Welcome to Our Fleet.

Rear Admiral Schroeder spoke next. He referred to the great reception given the fleet by the Japanese people and to the fact that a space of thirty-six years intervened between the two audiences he has been permitted to have with the present Emperor of Japan. In welcoming Capt. Pelly Admiral Schroeder referred to the welcome to the fleet in Australia, New Zealand, Gibraltar, and other British territories visited on the cruise.

Gen. Wood replied to the toast to the army and told of the cordial receptions that always await American officers in the Philippines who spend their furloughs in Japan, and characterized as malicious and unfounded the stories that have been printed about friction between the American and Japanese Governments. He only hoped, he added, that Capt. Pelly would feel as much at home in America as he had at the various British military posts that encircle the globe, at so many of which he had been entertained.

After Mr. Sakai had spoken, Judge Gary was introduced to tell what "business America" thinks of Japan.

"I do not think," said Judge Gary, "that any one here is much interested in what I am interested in. I do not believe much in war or in the arming of the nations, but, of course, if you say it is necessary to build battleships, cruisers, and gunboats we are perfectly willing to furnish the steel.

"Our business relations with Japan are not only great in extent, but they are pleasant. The Japanese pay cash and they are honest and trustworthy, and I say this because I have often heard remarks contrary to that. What a mighty thing it would be if the United States, England, and Japan could stand together permanently for the peace of the world. What a splendid thing it would be if these three countries could co-operate to promote the business welfare not only of their own people but of the people of all countries.

Among those present last night, in addition to those mentioned, were:

Arthur Vorys, Frederick W. Whitridge, Dr. John McGaw Woodbury, Capt. Miller, U. S. N., William Allen Butler, Jr., William Stayton, Lindsay Russell, Judge Hough, Edward McVicker, Lieut. THROWS OUT POLICE CASE.

Magistrate Upholds Counter Charges of Clubbing and Persecution.

Magistrate Cornell, in the Night Court last night, held further investigation into the case of John J. Murray of 533 West Forty-ninth Street and Thomas Hickey of 547 West Forty-fourth Street, arrested on Sunday night by Patrolman John H. Butler of the West Forty-seventh Street Station on suspicion respectively of robbing a third man and interfering with the policeman. On Sunday night Murray cried in court, declaring that he was a veteran of the Spanish-American war, was working for the Frank Alphlick Lumber Company, and was being persecuted by the policeman.

"This officer is after me," he declared, "because some one threw a brick at him a few days ago, and he thinks I did it."

Murray had fifteen witnesses last night to speak for him. The policeman immediately asked for an adjournment on the ground that he could not obtain witnesses because of Murray's bad name in the neighborhood. Magistrate Cornell refused the request for adjournment.

Capt. Post of the Forty-seventh Street Station acted as Butler's lawyer and cross-examined Murray and his witnesses. Policeman Collins of the same station, who was sent out to investigate Murray, testified that Murray was known as a "bad man" in the neighborhood. Frank Reilly and Joseph Smith of 544 West Fiftieth Street testified that they saw Butler beat Murray with a nightstick. Andrew Lyle, manager of the Frank Alphlick Lumber Company, said that Murray had worked for them for the last three years and was on the regular payroll. Both Lyle and William Weber, a driver for the company, testified that when Policeman Butler made inquiries about Murray from them yesterday he called them "every name in the calendar" and swore at them.

Murray, under cross-examination, admitted having been in the Elmira Reformatory fourteen years ago, but said he had since been a member of the Thirty-third Infantry and had served under Gen. Logan in the Philippines, being honorably discharged.

Police Sergt. Auer testified that he found large welts on Murray's right and left shoulders and legs after his arrest. He said the man had evidently been beaten with a club.

"This is enough," said Magistrate Cornell. "This arrest was unwarranted. I believe it was crooked. I intend to have the complete minutes of this case sent to Commissioner Bingham. These men are honorably discharged."

Then, pointing at Butler, who was very pale, the Magistrate ordered:

"As for you, get out of this court quick. Get out!"

WHISKY BLENDING LEGAL.

Solicitor General, in Opinion to the President, Reverses Dr. Wiley.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Blenders of whisky have won a decided victory over the straight whisky distillers and Dr. H. W. Wiley in their first skirmish under the Taft Administration. Solicitor General Lloyd W. Bowers has submitted to President Taft an opinion that straight whisky may be flavored, colored, and diluted to a certain extent and still be labeled whisky under the pure food law.

Mr. Bowers's opinion is a complete reversal of the position heretofore taken by the Departments of Agriculture and Justice. Dr. Wiley ruled that only straight whisky was entitled to be labeled, and that various concoctions and blends must have distinctive titles. In this he was upheld by Attorney General Bonaparte and President Roosevelt. On account of strong pressure from the blending interests, the matter was reopened after Mr. Roosevelt went out of office, and Mr. Taft referred it to Mr. Bowers for an opinion. Mr. Bowers held long hearings and heard arguments by some of the most eminent lawyers in the country, among them Joseph H. Choate and John G. Carlisle.

TO STOP PANAMA SERVICE.

Pacific Mail Threat Due to Revocation of a Concession.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—Secretary Dickinson has received word from the Pacific Mail Steamship Company that it is about to withdraw its vessels from the San Francisco-Panama runs. Efforts are being made to prevent this, as the Pacific Mail is practically the only line in operation between the Isthmus and the Golden Gate, and its withdrawal from business would embarrass the Canal Commission.

The decision of the company was brought about through the abrogation of a special agreement between it and the Government. Up to a short time ago the Pacific Mail had the exclusive handling of certain kinds of traffic, but this arrangement was cancelled and a number of tramp steamers entered into competition. So fierce has been this competition that the regular line is said to have declared it could not maintain its regular schedule without incurring a loss.

There is one other line between Panama and San Francisco, but its fleet is small and the sailings irregular.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 7.—The Pacific Mail has served notice on the Government that it will withdraw from the service between this city and Panama on June 13, but experts here say the company cannot retire without great loss. It is suggested that the Pacific Mail's ultimatum has been delivered to get better wharfage rates.

MAN SLAIN IN COURT HOUSE.

Frederick Mohrle, on Trial for Murder, Killed by Friend of His Victim.

ST. LOUIS, June 7.—Frederick Mohrle, who killed Samuel Young in North St. Louis several weeks ago, was assassinated in the corridor of the Criminal Court Building to-day by William Kane, a former Deputy under Young. Kane used Young's revolver.

The shooting occurred as Mohrle was being taken to court to stand trial for the death of Young, and is the culmination of a bitter political feud. Mohrle had asserted shortly after the Young shooting that the "gang" had threatened to "get him," but following the directions of the "gang," he refused to reveal the identity of the men who had threatened him, saying he could take care of himself.

When the shots rang through the court building William Wright, a co-defendant with Mohrle in the Young trial, became hysterical. He begged to be placed in jail, and his bondsman surrendered him to Judge Fisher, who ordered Wright locked up. Only a few days ago Wright became frenzied on the street late at night and began shooting wildly, under the impression that the "gang" was after him. Alfred Neilson, who was passing on his way to work in a dairy, was mortally wounded. Wright is also under arrest for this death.

Mohrle killed Young on April 4, when the latter had demanded admittance to Mohrle's coal yard, in which the proprietor, Wright, and several companions were pitching quoits. News of Young's death was received with cheers at a political meeting a few minutes after the tragedy.

ATTLEBORO, Mass., June 7.—A loss estimated at $20,000 was caused to-day by a fire resulting from an explosion of chemicals in the jewelry manufacturing plant of Smith & Richardson. The fumes of the chemicals temporarily incapacitated Fire Chief H. R. Packard, who was found unconscious in one of the hallways of the building.

BALLOON MAKES NEW ENDURANCE RECORD

Indiana, Still Supposed to be Up, Surpassed 44-Hour Time Heretofore Set.

RIFLES FIRED AT THE CRAFT

Men in Kentucky and Alabama Show Much Hostility and the Aeronauts Barely Escape Harm.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 7.—If the balloon Indiana, which is supposed to be still flying, did not disqualify itself by touching earth, it broke the American endurance record which has stood for a year at 44 hours. Starting in the distance race of the Aero Club of America from this city at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon it had broken the record shortly after 1 o'clock this afternoon.

Only two reports had been received from the Indiana up to a late hour tonight. The first was that it had touched the earth in Tennessee, near Nashville, at 6 o'clock last night, and had taken on water and proceeded south. If this be true the balloon is disqualified under the rules of the International Aeronautic Federation. A second dispatch, signed by the pilot, Carl Fisher and the aide, G. L. Bumbaugh, stated that they dropped down near enough to earth to let down a line and draw u pa bucket of water, thereafter rising for further travel. Under the latter conditions the Indiana is not disqualified.

It is not possible, according to available information that the Indiana broke the distance record of 852 miles, for it had not room enough.

Definite reports had been received that afternoon from five of the six balloons entered in the distance race. The St. Louis III. dropped at Kelso, Tenn., having covered about 340 miles. A. B. Lambert was the pilot and H. E. Honeywell aid. The other balloons landed as follows:

The New York, A. Holland Forbes, pilot, landed at Corinth, Miss., covering 375 miles in 35 hours and 12 minutes.

The University City of St. Louis landed at Blache, Tenn., covering 340 miles in 25 hours and 24 minutes.

The Hoosier, Capt. Baldwin, pilot, landed at Greenbrier, Tenn., traveling 240 miles.

The Cleveland landed at Columbus, Ind., covering 40 miles in 2 hours and 55 minutes.

The balloon New York, with A. Holland Forbes, pilot, and Clifford B. Harmon, landed two and a half miles from Corinth, Miss., at 4:12 o'clock this morning, having been in the air since about 5 o'clock Saturday evening.

"We crossed Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee, and Alabama," said Mr. Forbes, "and were making for Mobile, but the wind changed in the night to the south, and we were forced to land here, although we had plenty of ballast. We got as far south as Birmingham."

"The only incident to mar our trip," said Mr. Harmon, "was about 10 o'clock Sunday night, as we were passing over the centre of Morgan County, Ala. Expecting to land in the wilds of Canada, we were loaded with guns, ammunition, heavy shoes and clothing, and canned goods. In an endeavor to find another air current to carry us higher we decided to throw away about 300 pounds of this stuff. Not wishing that it should be lost in the fields, we descended to within 900 feet of the earth and began distributing it where it would be found—near houses and villages.

"When directly over a very small village, eighty miles north of Birmingham, and in the centre of Morgan County, a man with a rifle cried: 'Come down here—you, or I will bring you down!' We continued our course, and he fired three times, one of the bullets singing through the basket. Officers have been sent out from Corinth in an endeavor to arrest the man."

Dr. Goethe Link of Indianapolis said at Nashville:

"We were forced to fly more than two miles high over most of Kentucky, as many people, not knowing what the balloon was, repeatedly shot at it and bullets whizzed around the ears of the aeronauts. A safe landing was made in N. C. Harrison's garden, ten miles south of the Kentucky line. At first people seemed afraid to take hold of the balloon, but after realizing the situation were kind and rendered us all assistance possible."

PLAN OF ATLANTIC VOYAGE.

Brucker Would Try to Follow the Route of Columbus.

CHICAGO, June 7.—With the same northeast trade winds by which Columbus figured out his route to the discovery of America Joseph Brucker, former editor of The Staats Zeitung and Commissioner to Germany from the St. Louis World's Fair, says he will attempt to cross the Atlantic Ocean in an airship. Mr. Brucker arrived in Chicago yesterday on a visit to friends.

"The Wright brothers and Count Zeppelin agree with me," he said, "that it is perfectly within reason that a balloon or airship, properly constructed, would cross the ocean safely. I will spend most of the Winter in building my airship, and in the Spring I expect to start my voyage from Cadiz, Spain. I expect to land either in Cuba or somewhere in the Middle States."

CURTISS FLIES IN AEROPLANE.

Shows Perfect Control of It—Will Compete at Morris Park.

HAMMONDSPORT, N. Y., June 7.—G. H. Curtiess made two successful flights of about two miles each here to-day with the new aeroplane built for the Aeronautical Society. He described the figure eight in his flights, and appeared to have the machine under perfect control.

The new aeroplane will be entered in the Morris Park competition in New York next week.

Increase in Deaths for the Week.

An increase of 183 deaths in the city last week, as compared with the corresponding week a year ago, was shown in the weekly report of Health Commissioner Darlington yesterday. The total deaths for the week ended Saturday was 1,403, with a death rate per thousand of 16.06. The diseases showing increases are measles, diphtheria, heart disease, pneumonia, and tuberculosis. There was a slight increase in the deaths of babies, with an increase of 53 in the deaths of persons more than 65 years old. The increase in the deaths of persons in tenements was 147.

DISCUSS BORDER-LINE GIRL.

Conference on Education of Backward Children Held at Buffalo.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 7.—The sixth annual conference on the Education of Backward, Truant, and Delinquent Children, which meets each year in conjunction with the National Conference of Charities and Correction, began its sessions here this morning with Col. C. B. Adams, Superintendent of the State School for Boys of St. Charles, Ill., presiding.

Mrs. Orphelia L. Amigh, Superintendent of the State Training School for Girls of Geneva, Ill., made a plea for the border line girl, who is somewhat defective but not feebleminded. Mrs. Amigh contended that, "when girls of this class come before a Judge for commitment to an institution, it never occurs to him that they are irresponsible and need constant care ot keep them from going wrong. The Judge, as well as her parents, calls such a girl wayward, incorrigible, and sometimes vicious, but never defective. These are the girls who are used in the traffic in the white slave trade. They are usually fond of excitement, dress, and display, and what faculty and energy they possess are turned in this direction. They should be considered defective and committed as such."

A discussion opened by W. G. Fairbanks, Superintendent of the Girls' Industrial School, Middletown, Conn., followed Mrs. Amigh's address. The opinion was that "border line girls" should be placed in existing institutions, not as inmates, but in some capacity of employment which would place them under supervision, but not undue restraint.

At the afternoon session of the conference a paper on "The Child Problem in the Smaller Towns and Rural Sections of the Country," by Mrs. Anna L. Morrison, was in her absence read by E. P. Wentworth of Portland, Me.

The trend of opinion in the discussion appeared to be that young inmates of custodial institutions should be given a part in their government, experiments along the lines of a modified George Junior Republic plan having been found very successful.

CROKER'S OLD DESK MOVED.

Huge Oak Piece Taken Away from Building Headquarters for Repairs.

The massive oaken office desk that Richard Croker used to work at back in the old days when he was a Fire Commissioner in New York was removed with some ceremony on Saturday from its room on the fifth floor of Building Supt. Edward S. Murphy's offices, at Fourth Avenue and Eighteenth Street, where it has figured for many years as a municipal relic.

The desk was made especially for the old Tammany leader after Mayor Edson appointed him a Fire Commissioner, and was placed in the Mercer Street Fire Headquarters, and even then was a curiosity, being the first of the then brand-new pattern of self-closing desk.

When the new Fire Headquarters was opened in East Sixty-seventh Street the desk passed to the possession of the newly established Department of Buildings, and in 1892 it was taken to the Fourth Avenue offices and assigned to Thomas J. Brady. Later it passed to the late John D. Quincy, who was Assistant Corporation Counsel to Building Commissioner James G. Wallace. Latterly it has been used in the preparation of special report work for Supt. Murphy, and stood by itself in a cosy corner that the department punsters christened "The Lucky Corner," because it is the cherished sanctum of Special Theatre Inspector John F. Lucke of Mr. Murphy's staff. It is good for a long life of usefulness yet, for the wood is perfectly sound, only the automatic spring mechanism being a little rheumatic from age.

The desk was taken in charge by John R. Voorhis, Superintendent of Public Buildings, who had it removed to the basement of the County Court House, where it awaits the repairer.

INSPECT STRAUS MILK DEPOT.

Lady Aberdeen and Sir William Thompson Praise the Work There.

Lady Aberdeen, wife of the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and Sir William Thompson of Dublin left this city last night for Boston, where the Countess is to be the guest of honor at a breakfast at the Algonquin Club at a reception at the Hotel Somerset, and will address a meeting at Waltham in the evening.

Lady Aberdeen and Sir William spent their day in this city visiting the Health Department, where they studied the city's methods of dealing with tuberculosis, and the Nathan Straus milk laboratory, where they were received by Mr. and Mrs. Straus. The workings of the plant were explained by Miss Nason, the Superintendent, while Dr. Green told of the medical work in connection with the Straus pasteurized milk depots.

In Dublin the plant given to the city by Mr. Straus, Lady Aberdeen said, is now supplying six depots, and four more are to be opened this month. She said that the supplying of pasteurized milk was working wonders in Dublin in diminishing sickness among the children and that the year's figures would show a considerable reduction in the infantile death rate.

LOEB PROMOTES ALLENDORF.

Appoints Him Deputy in Charge of the Liquidating Division.

Collector Loeb announced yesterday the appointment of Elbert J. Allendorf, chief liquidating clerk in the Naval Office, as Deputy Collector in charge of the Seventh, or Liquidating, Division of the Collector's office, to succeed the late Deputy Collector H. E. Easterbrook.

This Seventh Division is one of the most important in the service, having in charge the final classification, computation, and adjustment of the duties on imported merchandise. As head of this division Mr. Allendorf will receive and examine protests and transmit them to the Board of General Appraisers.

Mr. Allendorf was born in Schultzville, Dutchess County, N. Y., in 1867, and was originally appointed Aug. 1, 1888, to a clerkship at $1,000 per annum in the Naval Office, from which position he has been promoted through the various grades to his present position.

SUES COLLIER'S FOR ITS "MARTYR" STORY

Florida Fisherman Who Shot Game Warden Says It Was Done in Self-Defense.

FREED BY THE GRAND JURY

"Bird Protection's First Victim," Paper Said—"He Fired First and I Let Him Have One," Smith Says.

The shooting of Game Warden Guy M. Bradley in Florida Bay on July 8, 1905, by Capt. Walter Smith is the subject of a suit which was begun yesterday before Supreme Court Justice Gerard and a jury. Capt. Smith is suing Collier's Weekly to recover $50,000 as damages for libel, following the appearance in that weekly of an articled entitled "Bird Protection's First Martyr. A True Story," on April 21, 1906.

The story complained of, a copy of which was put in evidence, tells of the shooting, although not mentioning Smith by name. It refers to a "man and several sons who were continually breaking the law and making no end of trouble for the Warden." Twice Bradley, according to the story, had arrested members of this family for breaking the game laws. This had made them and others, the article says, very angry, and the elder man had several times been heard to threaten that if the Warden ever interfered again with their shooting he would kill him."

The story then goes on to tell how on July 8, 1905, the Warden heard shooting in a rookery and saw anchored near the islands "the schooner of the man who had said he would kill him the next time he interfered with his shooting." Bradley, according to the article, "then set out in his boat to tackle the crowd single-handed and make the arrests. On the shore his wife, with her little boys, watched and waited. When a rifle shot rang out and she saw the men on the schooner pull up the anchor and sail away she was sure that her husband had been killed."

Bradley had been shot dead by Smith. The story then refers to the crowd as "outlaws who are helping to trim" the hats of women wearing aigrettes, and concludes by saying that the "murderer has been set free" by the Grand Jury which failed to indict him.

Capt. Smith, the first witness, was on the stand all day, and his cross-examination had only just started when court adjourned until this morning. He admitted he was 65 years old, the last seventeen of which he spent in Florida. Coming down to the shooting, he gave a graphic account of what led up to it and the actual event.

That day, he said, he and his two sons, Tom and Dan, and a friend, Philip B. Endridge, went out in his schooner to catch turtles with nets. They were a mile and a half from shore when he "saw a sail coming out from the mainland."

"Bradley came alongside and said, 'I want that pet son of yours.' I replied, 'If you want him you'll have to come and get him.' Bradley then said, 'I'll get you yet.' He came around to the stern of my boat and shouted: 'Do you know the penalty of evading arrest?'"

Capt. Smith said he noticed then that Bradley had a gun in his hand. Before he could answer, he said, Bradley fired at him, and the bullet found a mark in the mast behind which Smith was sheltered.

"He fired first," said Smith, "and then I let him have one. Bradley fell on his side in the fish boat, but rallied and presented his pistol again. I had a bead drawn and was prepared to fire, but he never fired again.

"The next thing I did was to pull up anchor, and then I went direct home and got my wife and children and went on to Key West, where I surrendered to the Sheriff."

"Did you find the bullet Bradley fired?" he was asked.

"Yes, it was in my mast. I suppose it would have taken me here," he said, pointing to his stomach.

Smith said he had never shot a plumage bird, nor had he trafficked in their plumage for millinery uses. He denied that either he or his sons had ever been arrested for breaking the game laws or anything else, nor had he ever threatened to kill Bradley.

The case will go on this morning.

MAY VETO TAXICAB LAW.

Ordinance Does Not Regulate Fares to be Charged.

Mayor McClellan held a hearing yesterday afternoon on the ordinance recently passed by the Aldermen providing for the inspection and regulation of the taximeters used on all vehicles in the city, after which he intimated that he would veto the measure. He will do this, he intimated, on the strength of arguments presented to him by Francis V. S. Oliver, Chief of the Bureau of Licenses, who drew the ordinance as originally presented to the Aldermen. Mr. Oliver opposes the ordinance in the form in which it was passed by the Aldermen principally because the clause regulating taxicab rates was stricken out entirely, the ordinance being made to apply to cabs not recognized in the clauses dealing with fares in the present code, and allowing the taxicab proprietors to charge any rate they see fit.

YOUNG BANK TELLER UPHELD.

Declared Note a Counterfeit Against Opinions of Experienced Bankers.

In young Henry J. Iles, receiving teller of the Borough Bank of Brooklyn, that institution believes it has probably the most expert counterfeit banknote detector in the city. This feeling is born of the fact that Mr. Iles's judgment as to the spuriousness of a ten-dollar note has been sustained by the Treasury authorities in Washington, after some of the most experienced bankers in New York had disagreed with him and held the bill to be genuine.

Recently a depositor of the bank deposited the note in question with others. Iles, who is 24 years old, at first glance saw something about the note which excited his suspicion. It was one of the 1902 issue of the Citizens' Central National Bank of Manhattan.

Iles decided that the note was an exceptionally clever counterfeit. Officials of the bank examined it carefully, but were unable to agree with him that it was spurious. The note was sent over to the Citizens' Central National Bank. There it was examined by men of long experience. The signatures seemed to be genuine, and there was a division of opinion. The note was returned to the Brooklyn bank, and as young Iles continued to insist that it was a counterfeit, it was forwarded to the Treasury Department in Washington for examination by the experts there. Yesterday afternoon word came to the Borough Bank from Washington that the banknote was one of the most cleverly made counterfeits that had ever come to the hands of the department's experts.

PAPIER-MACHE POLICE CLUBS

Also Uniforms of Inferior Grade—Inspection Ordered by Bingham.

Because of the discovery that many of the uniforms of policemen had been made of inferior cloth, Commissioner Bingham issued an order yesterday by which all members of the force, from patrolmen to Lieutenants, are ordered to submit to a new inspection of uniforms and equipments from now to June 16.

According to the story given out at Police Headquarters, frauds have been perpetrated on many policemen recently in purchasing uniforms, the tailors having substituted inferior cloth for that ordered by the department.

As a result of the proposed inspection, several Inspectors, it was said, may be brought up on charges for having passed uniforms which do not come up to the standard. In some cases, the Commissioner said, he knew that policemen had saved from $10 to $15 on a uniform by buying the inferior cloth. The dress clubs used by the men, Commissioner Bingham said, in many cases were made of papier-mache, varnished.

The men who do not pass the inspection, the Commissioner said, will have to purchase new uniforms and equipments.

80 NEW LAWYERS SWORN IN.

Two Young Women and a Nephew of Justice Giegerich Among Them.

In the Appellate Division, First Department, eighty young men and two women were sworn in as lawyers yesterday by Justices Ingraham, Scott, McLaughlin, Clarke, and Laughlin.

The two young women were Belle Robins, 21 years old, who was graduated from Public School 4, Rivington and Ridge Streets, and studied law evenings in the New York University Law School, and Kate Pantell, 23 years old, who was graduated from the "School of All Nations," at Norfolk and Rivington Streets, and took a law course at the New York University.

SMUGGLED FINERY ON VIEW.

Marshal Henkel Displays More Goods Seized by Customs Agents.

The third sale of smuggled finery at the Custom House will be held this morning at 10 o'clock, when Marshal Henkel will offer forty-nine Princess gowns, many shirtwaists, much lingerie, dress goods, embroidery, lace, and other articles of woman's adornment and wear. This lot of goods was contained in a trunk seized soon after it was landed from the Red Star liner Gothland.

There was an exhibition yesterday of the articles to be sold. Unlike the attendance at the exhibitions which preceded the first sales, there were not so many women in the civil service room on the fifth floor of the Custom House. The visitors examined each article and marked either he or his sons had ever been arrested for breaking the game laws or anything else, nor had he ever threatened to kill Bradley.

The case will go on this morning.

GETTING MORE DUTIES HERE.

126 Per Cent. Increase Last Month Over Collections in May, 1908.

Figures showing the increase of duties collected at this port on articles sent through the mails were given out yesterday by Collector Loeb. The duty collected from mailed articles received in the first five months of 1908 amounted to $87,242 as against $173,923.93 for the same period this year. This, the Collector points out with satisfaction, is an increase of 99 per cent.

The duties on mail importations at this port during May, 1908, were $16,215.81, while during May of this year they were $36,675.63. With the 1908 figures as an index of conditions during the financial depression of last year, a healthful increase is shown. The May figures show that conditions are pretty good here and that the demand for importations is above normal. The duties collected last month show an increase of 126 per cent. over those of the previous May.

A MAN WITHOUT PRINCIPLE?

Unconventional Fascinating Intensely Human

By RETSEL TERREVE

¶ The thrilling and dramatic story of a criminal who, after conquering the prejudices of our modern society, was called upon to rule it ¶ In a wonderful series of word pictures the reader is carried from the slums to the aristocratic homes and gambling resorts of the American metropolis; then to the heart of London's great financial centre, and through the intricate mazes of English company promotion; then back to America, and across the continent to the humanizing, inspiring atmosphere of the great and virgin West. And through it all, directed by a merciless, but master hand, one runs the entire gamut of human emotions; of all the controlling passions of mankind as found in society of the present day. It is a book that will set the blood on fire; that will impress a moral on the mind of every one who reads.

¶ The Baltimore American says: "The author has produced a work that will mark an epoch in virile character delineation and resourceful fertility of plot. Strong and blood-stirring in every chapter, it carries, by the force of its climax, the reader to the crest of billows. It possesses interest for the man of sedate mind and the girl who has romantic fancies. It has a moral for the moralist and a touch of human artistry for the humanist. Victor Hugo stood alone, yet this author has entered into his heritage."

¶ The Boston Herald says of it: "The story is dramatic and of absorbing interest. No one after starting to read it will put it down unfinished. It will furnish a decidedly novel sensation to the jaded reader of modern literature."

¶ J. Stanley Durkee, Ph. D., of Boston, says: "It is the great American novel," while W. W. Bustard, D. D., of Boston, calls it "one of the greatest books ever written," and so the opinions go.

WHAT MAKES YOU DEAF?

Eight out of every ten deaf people remain deaf as a result of carelessness or bad judgment. Deafness usually owes its presence to some throat affection. The throat disease closes the openings of the tubes that lead from the throat up into the middle ear. Through the common habit of holding the nostrils tightly closed with a handkerchief while blowing hard to free them, certain germs are forced up into the Eustachian tubes, and these germs develop disease that prevents the free passage of air into the ear.

The above illustration shows all the various parts of the ear. AG—The canal leading to the ear drum. T—The ear drum. h—The bones of the ear. P—The middle ear. V—The internal ear. TE—The Eustachian tube leading from the ear to the throat.

How Dry Catarrh Causes Deafness.

There is a form of disease that attacks the membranes of the nostrils and throat, but does not cause a discharge. This disease is called dry catarrh. In the beginning of this trouble the nostrils are nearly closed up from thickening of the membrane and the throat feels dry, as though there were sand there. Those with this trouble are unable to obtain the necessary air through their nostrils, so they usually sleep with their mouths open and awake during the night with tongue and throat as dry as a chip. In such cases, after a time, crusts form in the nose, giving the breath an unpleasant odor. In many cases of this disease there is dropping in the throat, causing a desire to hawk to clear the material out that falls down from the nostrils. No form of nose and throat disease is so likely to cause deafness and head noises as is dry catarrh. On account of the obstruction to the passing of air through the nostrils, there is a frequent desire to blow the nose. When this is attempted by the usual method of holding the nostrils tightly closed by means of a pocket handkerchief, then the air is compressed in the upper part of the throat and the compressed air forces open the tubes that lead from the throat to the ears. The compressed air forces the catarrh germs ahead of it into the ear tubes. When this happens the hearing will begin to fail and you will usually have head noises. The loss of hearing is due to the stoppage of the ear tubes. The head noises are due to the absorption into the blood current of the catarrh poisons, which attack the ear nerves and poison them, the same as an overdose of quinine will do this. It is poisoning the ear's nerves that causes head noises and deafness.

I have explained the cause of deafness. I will now tell you the remedy. Stop blowing your nose hard by closing both nostrils. If you have already blown disease up into your ear tubes, we are prepared to offer you something which will restore your hearing and free you of head noises.

If your ear tubes are freed of catarrh your hearing will improve and your head noises will fade away. The proper treatment for deafness begins with the mastery of catarrh in the nostrils and throat. Once the catarrh is controlled the hearing will return.

FREE DEMONSTRATION.

In order to introduce our plan of dealing with catarrhal deafness and dry catarrh of the ear tubes, we offer you a free demonstration of our method. This will be without cost to you.

While the majority of cases of catarrhal deafness can be greatly improved by treatment, there are cases that cannot.

If the working parts of the ear are bound down by catarrhal adhesions and the drum is already greatly thickened or the joints of the ear bones are stiffened, then treatment cannot be expected to greatly improve the hearing, but in such cases the Baker Microphone will take up the duties of the ear, and by putting the stiffened parts to work will make you hear again. In such cases, after probing and blowing air into the ear tubes have proved unavailing, science has shown the proper way to deal with such cases of deafness. The Baker Microphone is a little instrument that takes up the duties of the normal ear. It does the work for the ailing ear and rests its disordered parts, thus often allowing it to regain its tone. The Baker Microphone does for failing ears what proper lenses do for failing eyes. You can test this litle device without cost. What is more, we place at your disposal, absolutely free, the services of a trained aurist, who will give you advice.

The majority of ear sufferers now have an opportunity to be relieved of their disability. The Baker Microphone restores a weak ear to a condition where it can be made a useful working member.

It is the smallest practical magnifying telephone ever produced. It is the best instrument devised to assist the hearing. THERE IS A REASON FOR THIS. If you will come to one of our offices we will show you the reason.

The Baker Microphone not only makes deaf people hear, but its use, like the use of the telephone, gradually quickens, strengthens and improves the natural hearing. Hearing devices, like speaking tubes, trumpets, etc., instead of improving the hearing, shock the finely adjusted parts of the ear and gradually tend to increase the deafness.

Whatever your ear trouble there is an expert aural surgeon at our office whose services are free to you. He will advise you on all matters relating to the ear.

Call if you can at one of our offices and we will be pleased to demonstrate the benefits of this little instrument. If you cannot call, write for full particulars and booklet describing the Baker Microphone, and how you may test it in your own home free of cost to you.

STATE-OWNED CABLES DEMAND OF CANADA

"Not Here to Pass Pious Resolutions," Delegate to Conference for Lower Rates Says.

LINES IDLE HOURS EACH DAY

London Newspapers Intimate Practical Results Will Follow the Conference—Suggestion for a 10-Cent Rate.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 7.—Government sympathy with the British and Colonial demand for cheaper cables was promised by both the Earl of Crewe, Secretary for the Colonies, and Sydney Buxton, the Postmaster General, at to-day's meeting of the imperial press conference, held at the Foreign Office.

"We are very glad to have the sympathy of the Government," said one plainspoken delegate, "but what form is it going to take? We haven't come here from every part of the empire merely to pass pious resolutions."

As the discussion progressed it became evident that the Canadians and Australians differ as to the means by which cheaper cable rates can be obtained. The Canadian demand is for a direct British-owned cable to Canada, while the Australians will be satisfied if the existing companies can be driven to grant certain reductions in the tariff on press dispatches.

Lord Crewe, who welcomed the delegates, laid some stress on the fact that the present cables are practically idle during several hours of the day. This showed, he said, that the existing system was not absolutely perfect, and the continuing development of wireless telegraphy was a factor which must be taken into account in any plans for future cables. Lord Crewe declared that the empire would not really be united until the average citizen of the western provinces of Canada could understand quickly the problems of India.

One of the spokesmen for Canada, T. D. Ross of Ottawa, who advocated Government cable lines between England and the Dominion and thence across the Pacific, asserted that State-owned cables would mean that the rate on commercial messages could be reduced without loss to 5 cents a word. Sir Hugh Graham, proprietor of The Montreal Star, declared strongly his belief in agitation for State-owned cables, and proposed the organization of a permanent committee to inquire into the matter. Postmaster General Buxton was of opinion that the cable companies would reduce their rates if a larger volume of business were assured to them.

Eventually a committee was appointed to draft practical recommendations, to be presented to the conference on June 25.

Most of the London papers to-morrow will have editorial articles intimating that practical results are likely to follow the work of the conference committee. The Daily Mail will suggest a uniform press rate of 10 cents a word to Australia and 5 cents a word to Canada, and will add:

"It would be well if the cable companies, in their own interest, would take such reduction of their rates into serious consideration and give way before the decision is reached to lay down State cables."

NOTED FEUD LEADER MORTALLY WOUNDED

Ex-Sheriff Edward Callahan of Crockettsville, Ky., Is Shot from Ambush.

FEARED LIFE WAS IN DANGER

Bloodhounds on Trail of Assassin—Callahan Was a Lieutenant of Judge Hargis.

JACKSON, Ky., June 7.—Ex-Sheriff Edward Callahan, famous throughout this section of the State for the part he played in the numerous Breathitt County feuds, was shot from ambush early to-day and, it is believed, fatally wounded, at his home in Crockettsville.

Callahan had swept out his store preparatory to opening for the day, and was brushing the refuse from the front door when the shot was fired.

The bullet struck him in the stomach, passed through his body, and splintered a door in the other side of the room. One of Callahan's friends rode on horseback 25 miles over a rough mountain road to Jackson in two hours and telegraphed to Lexington for surgeons and bloodhounds.

The dogs have been put on the trail of the assassin, who, it is understood, hid behind a pile of coal to fire the shot. Excitement in this region is intense over the shooting.

Callahan was in Jackson Saturday in attendance upon court, a warrant having been served upon him for malicious shooting in a family affair some time ago. His case was continued, and he at once left Jackson, telling one or two friends that lately he was fearful of his life.

Edward Callahan was the chief lieutenant of the late Judge James Hargis and took an active part in the latter's feuds against the Souths and Cardwells. This feud of Breathitt County began in the eighties, when the father of Judge Hargis died, leaving him some property which, the Cardwells contended, belonged to them. When a decision was rendered against them the Cardwells went to live with the Souths, thus bringing that family into the feud.

Both factions went into politics, and when, in 1901, Hargis nominated himself for Judge he brought along Callahan as candidate for Sheriff, the second most important place on the ticket. The Cardwells also had candidates for both places, and during the campaign which followed twenty-three homes were destroyed by fire and no less than sixty persons lost their lives either in street fights or by assassination from ambush.

In 1903 James B. Marcus, then a United States Attorney in Jackson, went to serve a warrant on Judge Hargis for a crime which had been recently committed, and was killed on the latter's doorstep. Both Hargis and Callahan were arrested for this shooting and later were sued in the civil court for damages by the widow. These proceedings came to an abrupt halt, however, when Hargis was killed by his son, Beach. The latter is now serving a life sentence for the crime.

Callahan's wife was a Deaton, of the family of one of his worst enemies. After living with the Sheriff for three years, she eloped with a Smith, another of the opposing faction. One year later the elder Deaton was found dead a short distance from the Callahan home.

MUTINY IN KINGSTON HARBOR.

Police Called In When Saba's Firemen Threaten to Kill Captain.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, June 7.—A disturbance broke out yesterday on board the steamship Saba lying in the harbor. The firemen went on strike and threatened to kill the Captain. The Water Police were called upon, but failed to quell the riot.

Finally a squad of twenty constables went to the assistance of the ship's officers and arrested the ringleader. To-day the man was sentenced to three weeks' imprisonment.

TO CURB PORTO RICO.

American Officers May Continue Old Budget If New One Fails.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—President Taft's plan of disciplining the Porto Rican House of Delegates went through the House to-day after a bare quorum had been obtained for its passage. The bill provides that at any time when the Legislature has failed to make appropriations to carry on the public business, the Auditor, with the consent of the Governor, may expend funds on the basis of the appropriations for the preceding year.

This measure was drawn to meet the deadlock forced by the majority in the House of Delegates. With the design of compelling the upper house, composed principally of American officials, to yield on certain measures designed to give the Porto Ricans a larger measure of independence, the lower house refused to pass the budget. As a consequence all public business has been done without funds since June 1, the beginning of the fiscal year, and no salaries have been paid. Unless relief were given the situation would be critical.

The threat of Majority Leader Payne last Thursday that he would resort to measures to compel the attendance of members in the House to-day unless a quorum was present had the desired effect. Several more than a quorum were in their seats when the House was called to order.

FAVOR PORTO RICAN REVOLT.

Former Residents of the Island Pledge Support to Unionists.

Special Correspondence THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SAN JUAN, P. R., June 2.—Porto Rican settlers in Santo Domingo have written to Luis Muños Rivera, leader of the Unionist Party here, offering him aid in his campaign against "American tyranny" and the "traitors" here who aid and abet it. They place their lives and property at the disposal of the Executive Committee of the Unionist Party for the defense of the honor of their native land, and as a beginning subscribe a monthly quota of $50 toward the good work. From the tenor of their letters they seem to expect the speedy development of a revolution in Porto Rico, and are anxious to parade before their more peacefully inclined brethren the martial spirit they have acquired by living among the turbulent Domingans.

There are about 10,000 Porto Ricans in Santo Domingo, distributed in colonies throughout the republic. The great majority are laborers and small traders, but a few of them, such as Santiago Micheliena, Seraller, and one or two others, rank among the richest business men in Santo Domingo. The offer of aid does not, however, come from the latter, but from a group of the former located at San Pedro de Macoris, and this band of agitators is headed by one Zoilo Rodriguez. Efforts are being made to gain the co-operation of all the Porto Rican colonies in furnishing money and whatever other aid that may be required of them to achieve the independence of Porto Rico.

The bitter hatred of the Domingans for Americans is attributed in great part to the woeful tales of misery and cruel oppression told by the Porto Rican immigrants who arrived in the country shortly after the cyclone that devastated this island in 1899. Since that date the steady flow of Porto Ricans into the republic has continued, and it has been the custom of the emigrants to ingratiate themselves with the Domingans by exciting their sympathy and poisoning their minds against Americans, whom they describe as a grasping, despotic people, full of race hatred, seeking to possess themselves of Santo Domingo and oust the natives as they have done the Porto Ricans.

Taft Honors Persian Consul General.

Just before President Roosevelt retired from office he accepted in behalf of the Nation from H. H. Topakyan, the Consul General of Persia here, a famous jeweled rug. That rug now hangs in a mahogany case in the private office of President Taft, who paid his compliments to Mr. Topakyan yesterday by sending him a large autographed photograph of himself, with his best wishes.

Labo Held on Custom House Charge.

Martin Labo, the importer of Oriental goods who was arrested at his home, 1,785 Madison Avenue, on Saturday night, was held in $5,000 bail for examination next Monday by United States Commissioner Shields in the Federal Building yesterday. Labo is charged with the fraudulent entry of silks and other materials valued at 3,993f. on an invoice showing only a value of 2,609.7f. The complainant against Labo was Special Agent Walter S. Chance of the Treasury Department. The importation occurred in 1907, and had no relation to the recent smuggling scandals.

Trow Business Directories Out.

The Trow Business Directories for Manhattan and the Bronx and for the entire city for 1909 were published yesterday, both compact, strongly bound, and attractive volumes. The Manhattan and Bronx Directory has nearly 1,200 pages this year, while the business guide for the entire city has 2,000 pages of facts and figures for the business man. The Trow Directory Printing and Bookbinding Company of 89-91 Third Avenue is the publisher.

FOREIGN LINES AID LOEB.

Any Employe Caught Carrying Parcels Ashore Will Be Dismissed.

Owing to the rigorous inspection of foreign steamships now enforced by Collector Loeb instructions have been issued by the various lines that any member of a crew caught carrying a parcel of any kind into the United States will be dismissed from the service.

A barber on one of the White Star liners was discharged for attempting to bring over a costermonger's costume for amateur theatricals. A chief steward was called before the board in Liverpool because a package of second-hand clothes was sent to him from some unknown source.

Special plain-clothes men are on duty at each pier, and particular attention is paid to the ship's laundry when taken away in bags.

YOUNG GIRL KILLED IN FLATIRON ELEVATOR

Crushed to Death While Visiting the City with ex-Judge Parker's Daughter for First Time.

SHE FAINTED IN THE CAR

Was Frightened by Its Sudden Stop and Fell Forward—Neck Broken by Hitting Floor Projection.

Miss Lina Schoonmaker, an 18-year-old schoolgirl of Kingston, N. Y., who was seeing New York for the first time, was killed yesterday in a Flatiron Building elevator, when her body was crushed between the fifth and sixth floors of the building, breaking her neck and fracturing several of her ribs. Miss Schoonmaker was one of a dozen Kingston girls who had been brought to New York by the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mercer Hall of Kingston on a trip in which shopping and sightseeing were to have been combined.

Mrs. Hall, who is a daughter of ex-Judge Alton B. Parker, with five girls who were in the party, was in the car at the time. She took care of Miss Schoonmaker, who died in Mrs. Hall's lap a few seconds after she had been hurt. The dead girl was the daughter of a farmer of Saugerties, N. Y., and was a protégé of the Halls, with whom she had lived for some time, attending the Kingston School for Girls.

The twelve girls who came to New York with Mr. and Mrs. Hall were all members of the Girls' Friendly Society, a young people's organization connected with the Holy Cross Protestant Episcopal Church, of which church Mr. Hall is the rector.

Mr. Hall had taken some of the girls to the Aquarium, in Battery Park. They did not learn of the accident until two hours after it had happened. Mr. Hall had the body sent to Kingston yesterday afternoon.

The girls with Mrs. Hall went to a shoe store on the eighth floor of the building, and at about 12:30 P. M. left the place. They got on an elevator in the southwest corner of the building. The elevator, according to Mrs. Hall and others who were in the car, started down very fast. At the fifth floor the car came to a sudden stop, and, after bobbing up and down a few seconds, the elevator man reversed his lever and started back to the sixth floor to get the passenger who had signaled for him to stop.

Miss Schoonmaker was next to the gate of the car, standing beside the operator, while Mrs. Hall was standing immediately behind her. The suddenness with which the car stopped apparently frightened Miss Schoonmaker, who, it is believed, fainted and fell forward, her body being crushed against the wall of the elevator shaft, fracturing her ribs, while her neck was broken when her head struck the projection of the sixth floor.

When the car stopped at the sixth floor the girl, who was then breathing her last, fell backward and was caught by Mrs. Hall. A doctor in the building was called, but when he reached the elevator Miss Schoonmaker was dead.

The other girls, all friends and several of them classmates of Miss Schoonmaker, were assisted into an office on the sixth floor, where other persons cared for them until they had recovered from the shock. They were then sent to the home of a friend of Mrs. Hall, where they stayed until it was time for them to start for Kingston.

Coroner Harburger, after investigation, held Stephen Young, the elevator man, in $5,000 bail to await the inquest.

"Had the inside doors of the car been closed," said the Coroner, "this accident would have been impossible. I told the elevator men about it, and they asked me to show them if anything was wrong. I showed them that one of the doors would not stay closed, and when I demanded the reason they could not give a satisfactory one."

ROW IN JEROME'S BAILIWICK

In Which Inspector Herlihy Pokes Lawyer Snitkin in the Eye.

The calm of the District Attorney's office was ruffled yesterday by sounds of a scuffle and loud voices emanating from Assistant District Attorney Murphy's room. The voice was the voice of Inspector Herlihy of the Fourth District, and the object of his ire was Leonard Snitkin, a lawyer.

The cause of the trouble was a remark by Snitkin that he "knew the Inspector's record." The result was that Snitkin left the Criminal Court Building with a little purple spot under his left eye, where the Inspector had poked his finger in emphasizing his reply.

Inspector Herlihy called on Mr. Murphy to discuss information he had received that gambling was being conducted in the Hesper Club, at 111 Second Avenue. Sol Lichtenstein, who was said to have lost $2,000 in the game, had been subpoenaed by Mr. Murphy to be questioned, Snitkin appearing as his counsel.

Mr. Murphy said that he would rather question Lichtenstein without the presence of counsel. Snitkin would not agree to this, and his client was, therefor, served with a subpoena to appear before the Grand Jury to-day.

"Don't grin at me," said the Inspector as Snitkin was leaving the room.

Snitkin replied, and after that unpleasant remarks followed rapidly. As the lawyer passed into the corridor he said: "I know your record as well as any one. I can excuse you."

Herlihy, who is well over 6 feet, had the little lawyer by the collar in one stride and pulled him back into the room. Then the door was slammed. The eye-poking process followed.

Snitkin found fault with Mr. Murphy for not taking official action against Herlihy and then left, threatening to bring a civil action against the Inspector. He said that he did not believe in police court proceedings.

Constipation and Its Causes
A Well-known Remedy
Constipation is man's worst enemy, and half the bodily ills are a result thereof. When we find it necessary we resort to powerful remedies which are so drastic in their action that they are injurious and leave a worse condition than before. Why take such injurious and expensive drugs when we can obtain from any druggist much cheaper a bottle of Nature's own remedy, HUNYADI JANOS Water, the famous Natural Laxative? This water is bottled at the springs in Hungary and in use nearly half a century. ½ a tumblerful on arising will bring relief within an hour; gentle, natural, and thorough, without any bad effects. As a whole bottle costs but a trifle, keep one always on hand.
Look out for unscrupulous druggists, who will substitute unless you ask for HUNYADI JANOS.

FAMILY TAR AND FEATHERING.

H. D. Wright and Mollie Ridge Roughly Handled by Wright's Brothers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Penn., June 7.—A mob from the vicinity of California, in this county, last night shortly after midnight went to a house in Daisytown, a suburb of California, broke in, and, after they had tarred and feathered Mollie Ridge and H. O. Wright, dragged them to Pike Run Creek and dumped them both into the water. The leaders of the mob were J. F. Wright, Charles Wright, and Clifford Wright, brothers of H. O. Wright; Charles Wright and Charles Hands, his cousins. They were assisted by fully a dozen other men from near Daisytown.

Informations were made against the mob leaders, the Wright brothers and their two cousins, to-day by H. O. Wright and the woman, and they were later arrested. They all furnished bail for appearance at court.

When the mob arrived at the house they found the doors securely barred, and it was not until the door was battered down that they gained admittance. While the men were attempting to force the door Wright fired several shots from his revolver, none of which took effect. Finally the man and woman were both overpowered.

In his information to-day H. O. Wright alleged that he was almost beaten to death and that it required several hours to clean the tar and feathers from his body. Similar allegations are made by the woman, who threatens, as soon as she has succeeded in convicting her assailants in criminal court, to bring a big bill for damages against the leaders of the mob.

BOSTON TECH HAS NEW HEAD.

MacLaurin Inaugurated in Presence of Gov. Draper and British Ambassador.

BOSTON, June 7.—Before an assemblage of notable guests and alumni from nearly every State in the Union, in Symphony Hall to-day, Dr. Richard Cockburn MacLaurin was formally inducted into office as President of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. President MacLaurin, who was formerly connected with Columbia University, actually assumed the reins of government of the institute on June 1, succeeding Acting President Arthur A. Noyes.

On the stage were seated the special guests, who included Ambassador James Bryce of England, who arrived from Washington this morning; Gov. Eben S. Draper, President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard University, Bishop William Lawrence, President Henry S. Pritchett of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, Prof. Arthur A. Noyes, Chairman of the Faculty, and James P. Munroe, former President of the alumni.

Following a fugue on the great organ, the invocation was pronounced by Bishop Lawrence. President Fish of the Technology Corporation then spoke briefly and introduced Gov. Eben S. Draper.

Ambassador Bryce, in his address, paid a high tribute to President MacLaurin. "He is one of those who have got to know the British Empire as a whole," he said, "and whom we should be sorry to part with to any other country except the United States. As to the United States, I need not tell you we don't feel that any one who leaves us is lost to us."

President MacLaurin, after a courteous opening reference to the honor conferred by election to be head of the institute, devoted his inaugural address mainly to what he designated as "some indication of my creed as an educator, and so reveal the ideal that I should like to see made real in this institute."

JOHN D. SPRECKELS TELLS OF GRAFT HUNT

Supported Fight of Brother, with Whom He Is on Bad Terms, to Aid San Francisco.

DOESN'T APPROVE OF HENEY

Prosecutor Who Convicted Rueff Talks Too Much and Tries to Do Too Many Things at Once, He Says.

John D. Spreckels of San Francisco, who is now staying at the Hotel Wolcott waiting for the arrival of his wife from Europe on the Amerika next Saturday, gave out some interesting details regarding the graft charges in San Francisco and their prosecution. Mr. Spreckels's brother, Rudolph, financed the graft prosecutions. He said that Mr. Heney talked too much and that it had got him into trouble many times. Mr. Heney also had the failing of trying to do too many things at once, Mr. Spreckels said, which had retarded his progress.

Referring to the fact that his paper, The Call, was the first San Francisco paper to investigate the Schmitz-Rueff scandals, Mr. Spreckels said the reason was because he was annoyed at the failure of his brother to obtain a franchise to lay street car tracks along certain of the city streets. This failure he says he charged to Rueff and Schmitz through influences brought to bear upon them by President Calhoun of the traction company then operating cable and trolley lines and seeking to get trolley lines on all unoccupied streets.

John D. Spreckels has not spoken to his brother Rudolph for sixteen years. When asked why Rudolph Spreckels wanted to get the franchise Mr. Spreckels replied:

"Rudolph and I built homes in Pacific Avenue that we believed would be ornaments to the city. The Call Building is built on all four sides of finished stone, out of regard for the city's appearance. When Calhoun appeared before the Supervisors with a demand for a trolley franchise in Pacific Avenue it occurred to my brother to go into the traction business himself. It also put it into my head to turn The Call loose on the trolley matter, as I did not wish to see Pacific Avenue ruined by unsightly trolley poles.

"The people did not want them either, and signed a petition against the franchise being given to Calhoun. Then came the earthquake and Calhoun got his trolley wires in because the people wanted transportation so badly that they would take anything. Then Rudolph started on a spite movement, and I put The Call back in the fight because I thought it would be a good thing to clean up things and expose the graft system. Rudolph got in touch with Heney because a friend recommended Heney to him."

"Would your brother Rudolph have kept up his interest in traction if he had got the franchise?" Mr. Spreckels was asked.

"My brother's only aim was to keep San Francisco, where our family had lived since 1855, from being disfigured by trolley poles. He wanted to demonstrate to the people of the city that street cars could be run with underground power just as you run them here," Mr. Spreckels replied.

"Rudolph was worth $2,000,000 at least," he said, "and had no need to go into business any more—in fact, he had then retired except from a little real estate business."

Returning to the graft prosecutions, Mr. Spreckels said:

"At one time indictments were promised against officers of the Southern Pacific, the gas company, and the telephone company, and as they had lots of friends they leagued together for their own protection. Heney would have done much better by clinging to Schmitz and Ruef until they were locked away from political help.

"It came out that Ruef had threatened to take the doors off the up-stairs booths of the French restaurants unless the proprietors put up $20,000, and there was circumstantial evidence enough to prove that Ruef had stood them up for this amount

"I expect good results from the Calhoun trial and from the Ruef case when it is finally heard on Ruef's appeal. I do not believe that the Southern Pacific is involved or that it will ever be successfully dragged in by Heney."

When asked as to the future of San Francisco, Mr. Spreckels waxed enthusiastic, and replied that the city had to borrow up to the hilt after the earthquake, but now it was paying off and getting on a cash basis again. "Money was very tight for a while," he said, "but now it is the easiest thing in the world."

HONEST REVISION OR NONE?

Secretary MACVEAGH will nowhere find a basis for the belief that any reasonable man expects the Tariff bill passed by Congress to be "a revision down and out." That would be the abolition of all duties—free trade—or, at least, it would mean a tariff for revenue only without the element of protection. Nobody interprets in that way the promise of the Republican Party during the campaign, nobody expects any such revision from the present Congress. That phrase in the Secretary's Chicago speech, therefore, was superfluous.

But Mr. MACVEAGH does assure us that "it is talking against the wind to argue that the revision expected is not a revision down." Is it to be a "revision down" in good faith, in honest fulfillment of promise, or is it to be the false and fraudulent revision of the Payne and Aldrich schedules? That, we can tell the Secretary and all other members of the Administration, and Senators and Representatives as well, is not what the people expected, is not what the party promised.

The vital question now, the question of chief interest, is, whether President TAFT has changed his mind since he said at the Ohio Society banquet in New York last December: "Better no revision at all, better that the new bill should fail, unless we have an honest and thorough revision on the basis laid down and the principles outlined in the party platform." The Aldrich revision is not an honest and thorough revision on that basis. It betrays the promises and the principles of the platform, it defies the people. Will Mr. TAFT conclude that it is better to accept this dishonest revision, or to veto the bill and commit the making of a new tariff to another Congress?

TRAFFIC AND CONSTRUCTION.

The Public Service Commission publishes some figures of transit traffic which are of the highest significance in their bearing upon the important problems of construction now pending. Two absolute novelties are put on record—an absolute decrease of business upon the elevated trains and on the Brooklyn Bridge. The passengers over all the elevated lines were 15,944,440 fewer in 1908 than in 1907. As there was undoubtedly more travel throughout the city the explanation for this must lie either in loss of popularity for elevated riding, or in some condition specific to the Subway. There is no likelihood that the elevated lines are losing in popularity upon an equal comparison with the Subway, but the comparison is not equal. The elevated mileage was unaltered, but the Subway opened several new stations in manifest competition for travel common to both routes. The fact seems to be not that the riders felt any less love for the elevated, but that they felt a superior attraction for a mode of travel not previously available.

This inference is strengthened by the decrease of more than six million tickets sold at the Brooklyn Bridge Station in Manhattan, accompanied by the sale of 10,724,367 at the Borough Hall Station in Brooklyn. These were certainly bridge riders in large proportion, and had they crossed the Bridge they might have gone up town on the elevated lines. It would be instructive to know the total of all Brooklyn fares on the Subway, and to be told what proportion they contributed to the Subway's total gain of 38,431,222, or a net gain—deducting the loss on the elevated lines—of 22,486,782. It would not be surprising to learn that the Subway's gain of traffic in Manhattan was inconsiderable over those portions which were in operation through both years, and that, excluding the gain from Brooklyn business, the Subway as well as the elevated might perhaps have reflected the depression which certainly affected both lines, but is masked in the greater growth through the opening of new stations on the Subway, especially in Brooklyn.

As the Commission has a paternal interest in the Fourth Avenue Subway these figures have an added significance in their publication just upon the eve of Brooklyn's mass meeting in support of the construction of that interborough route. It is a pity, therefore, that the Commission did not accompany the figures with some discussion pointing out the reasons why these figures mean all they seem to mean in the case of the importance of the Brooklyn business of the existing Subway, but are misleading in the case of the Fourth Avenue project. The preponderance of travel over the present Subway stops at the Wall Street stations. A considerable fraction rides to the Grand Central Station now, but will cease to do so when the Pennsylvania tunnels are working. A smaller and ever decreasing percentage rides to the uptown stations and parks. Outsiders can hardly venture to put figures to these propositions, but it is safe to say that the majority of Brooklyn business is short-distance traffic, and profitable to the company in an inverse and disproportionate ratio. Only a negligible portion of Manhattan Subway riders cover the possible seventeen miles for 5 cents, and practically no Brooklyn riders. There is no "joy riding" on the Subway.

It is otherwise with the Fourth Avenue Subway. The most popular and strongest argument of its promoters is based upon the inalienable right of everybody to ride from the Bronx to Coney Island for 5 cents. That is an incurably uneconomic proposition. It would ruin any private company which attempted it. That is the very reason why the Fourth Avenue mass meeting is called to enforce the demand of the electorate that this boon shall be supplied from tax money, since among all the other eager private bidders for every other route no one has proposed to build this first fruit of the Commission's fondest and most eager labors, since its operation would obviously be unprofitable because of the long haul. No one would place a pebble in the way of the provision of that boon at private risk and expense, but in the present position of the city's finances no attention should be paid to the demand even of a mass meeting, however numerous or tumultuous, that the city should attempt impossibilities or absurdities.

CHEAPER CABLES.

It is a striking argument in support of the movement for reasonable cable charges that the Colonial delegates bring to the Conference at London. They say that if the transmission of news from the mother country had been cheaper it would have been more fully obtained, and the unfortunate antipodal children of Britain would not have been deluded into offering to build Dreadnoughts to rescue the mother country from a peril that now doesn't seem to require such costly generosity. It is, of course, in a sense, amusing that the great English people should be accused by their relatives on the other side of the world of getting into a funk and being too economical to pay for telegraphing full particulars. But the matter is only a rather conspicuous instance of a very serious evil, for which the exorbitant charges for cable service are responsible.

These charges are nothing less than a private tax, levied by Governmental permission, on good understanding between distant peoples. The needless and inexcusable limitations they impose on communication directly affect the opinions, the sentiments, and the actions of these peoples in public, or political, affairs, and, what is equally important, in business relations, on which political relations so intimately depend. Quarrels in the great majority of cases grow out of misunderstandings based on defective information. We do not say that they could be wholly avoided by the most perfect practicable system of ready communication—the Germans and the English are separated only by a narrow sea—but it is plain that the closer and more easy the communication the more complete are the opportunities of correct information. It is the habit of communication that it is desirable to encourage and establish. In this cheapness is a constant and important element.

THE POWER OF REMOVAL.

The whole question of the power of removal lodged in appointing officers under the laws of New York is raised by the report of the State Civil Service Commission on the case of GALLUP, dismissed from the Controller's office. The majority of the Commission hold that there is adequate evidence that the removal was "affected by" political considerations, and was therefore contrary to the express provision of the law. The minority member holds that there is not sufficient reason for such a conclusion, and that to condemn the removal would tend to impair discipline and efficiency in the public service.

It appears that there is a direct conflict between the interpretations of the record and testimony. It is stated, however, in the majority report, and is not disputed by the minority, that "Mr. GALLUP'S faithfulness, efficiency, and entire loyalty to Mr. GAUS (the Controller) in the discharge of his duties are conceded." The most that Mr. MILLIKEN, in his minority report, says on the subject is that "no political reason was assigned by Mr. GAUS for the removal," but that "he felt that he could not trust Mr. GALLUP at the head of the important Transfer Tax Bureau." On these statements we should say that the removal was open to question as to motive. It is true that the law authorizes removal for reasons assigned, as to which the subordinate is entitled to be heard in explanation. For the reasons assigned and for the real reasons—if these be different—the appointing officer is clearly responsible. If it be found on investigation that the reasons were political, then the act of the officer is illegal, though it is not in the power of the Civil Service Commission to enforce its recommendation for reinstatement. There is not the slightest doubt that the intention of the law is to prevent political influence in removals, and that intention is in harmony with the provisions of the Constitution as to the service.

COL. M'CLURE.

There is one chapter in the history of Col. ALEXANDER K. MCCLURE, who died on Sunday, of which he was justly proud, that which recounted his earnest and successful efforts in co-operation with Gov. CURTIN and the National Administration in raising, arming, equipping, and sending to the front the Pennsylvania quota of volunteers in the earlier stages of the war for the Union.

Col. MCCLURE enjoyed the intimate friendship of Mr. LINCOLN, with whom he became associated at the Republican National Convention in 1860, where he took an active part in changing the votes of the Pennsylvania delegates to LINCOLN. In the troubled and confused times immediately following the outbreak of hostilities, for which the whole North, with the exception of one or two States, was practically unprepared, the Colonel was in constant conference with the President as well as with the famous "War Governor" of his State, and his labors were highly appreciated by both. In his reminiscences, he relates many incidents in connection with this work, some of them tragic enough when one reflects on the cause that was at stake and the lives that were risked, and some of them amusing. Col. MCCLURE was at that time in the prime of his young manhood, active, tactful, intensely zealous, and the service he rendered was of National importance.

FRIENDLY MONARCHS.

The itinerary of the heads of the three chief monarchies of the world is arranged provisionally for the Summer. It includes a visit from the Emperor of Germany with the Czar of Russia, and one by the Czar with the King of England, which is a programme of good augury. The interview of the Czar and the Kaiser would seem to indicate that there are no very hard feelings left from the intervention of Germany in the affair of the annexation of Bosnia by Austria-Hungary. The gentlemen of the press and the reviews who insisted that the Kaiser threatened the Czar with instant invasion of his territory by an army already mobilized and in pursuance of an aggressive plan of campaign long matured will see in the courtesies of the two Emperors a new proof of the size and savor of the humble pie the Czar is compelled to eat. More conservative and less credulous observers will see in it evidence that the "ultimatum" incident was exaggerated. The announced visit may in any case be taken as an indication of better relations between Germany and Russia.

The relations between Russia and England are already of the friendliest. If those between Germany and England are for the moment somewhat strained, it may be that the Czar and his advisers, exchanging visits with King and Kaiser, can exert some pacifying influence. It was the declared opinion of Dr. BARTH, whose recent death is a great loss to his country and to civilization, that a war of Germany with Great Britain could not result in a penny's worth of advantage to either country, and would be a most wasteful calamity for the whole world. That is unquestionably the conviction of many Englishmen who have the rightmindedness of Dr. BARTH. It is inconceivable that this opinion will not in the long run prevail against the alarmists and the Chauvinists of both countries. To that end the friendly intercourse of the monarchs may in some degree contribute.

A MAYOR'S MORALITY.

Mayor HIBBARD of Boston intends to prohibit the performance there of two plays which have run nearly all the season in New York, namely, "The Easiest Way" and "The Blue Mouse." One is a serious piece, treating frankly of very familiar social problems, and greatly admired for its verity and the technical skill it displays. The other is a farce of the Bisson pattern. Doubtless many persons of intelligence, experience, and good taste have found little if anything to interest them in Mr. WALTER'S realistic picture of modern life, or much to amuse them in the newest transplanted European farce. They have wisely avoided the performances and doubtless advised their friends to do so. Nevertheless, thousands of equally intelligent persons, of equally good taste, have discovered good dramatic entertainment in the first of these plays, and derived amusement from the second. It would be as sensible to suppress "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" and "Camille" as to prohibit the performance of "The Easiest Way." A hundred long-popular farces are of as questionable morality as "The Blue Mouse."

Doubtless Boston's Mayor means well, and is not wholly inspired by a desire to improve on President TAFT'S plan of leaving the theatre after the first act of a play he dislikes, whether it seems immoral or only dull. President TAFT'S plan, however, is much wiser than Mayor HIBBARD'S, who, if he persists, will put himself in a false position and make Boston morality again seem ridiculous. Will he suppress also CHARPENTIER'S "Louise" and MASSENET'S "Manon"? Is Boston to have no more performances of WAGNER'S "Die Walküre," which develops a love story that greatly shocks Fricka, the wife of Wotan?

There have been too many stage exhibitions lately of a low, vulgar character. Some of these have been bad enough to justify suppression by the police. But art, literature, the drama cannot be uplifted by suppressing pictures, books, and plays which a majority of the public cares for. The only way good folks can hope to make bad shows unprofitable is by refusing to pay money to see them. All persons do not view a play or other work of art the same way. Fussy Boston folks condemned the Bacchante of MACMONNIES. Is Mayor HIBBARD proud of that record?

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Relief for Minds Disturbed.

With much satisfaction The Survey hails the incorporation as a first step toward the immediate establishment in this city of an institution for the study and treatment of nervous and mentally disturbed patients, and for the training of physicians to special qualifications for dealing with this class of obscure disorders.

The city is already fairly well provided with means for the care of those suffering from what are called the bodily diseases, and also of the insane and the mentally defective. There has, however, hitherto been in this country a curious neglect of the people who, while neither crazy nor imbecile, have to a greater or less extent lost control of their minds. These victims of the so-called functional neuroses, if rich, can secure the aid of specialists—not quite all of whom, it is hinted, have a competency equaling their fame—but facilities for treating the poor and those of moderate incomes have been lacking. It is this gap in the advancing line of medical science which the new Neurological Institute is designed to fill. In Europe such institutions have for some years been numerous and well equipped, but the United States has been strangely negligent of this great and important domain of pathology, and to the lack, it is suggested with plausibility, may be due in large measure the popularity among us of the various healing delusions, to one or another of which are inevitably attracted the unfortunate who cannot think stright—only too often to be exploited instead of cured.

The plan, as announced, does not involve the construction of any great buildings. There is to be a fund of $200,000, now in course of collection, but several adjoining houses on the upper east side will be hired for the home of the institute, and most of the money will be used for actual work of the kind in mind. The hospital will be in charge of a chief physician, with associate doctors, specially trained nurses, and a corps of social workers to visit the homes of patients. Dr. JOSEPH COLLINS, who has been active in promoting the enterprise, has gone abroad to study foreign methods. Formal organization has been completed, with RICHARD H. WILLIAMS President, GEORGE G. FRELINGHUYSEN Vice President, OTTO H. KAHN Treasurer, ROBERT P. PERKINS Secretary, and ISAAC TOWNSEND Chairman of the Executive Committee. The following comprise the Board of Trustees: RICHARD H. WILLIAMS, ADRIAN ISELIN, Jr., OTTO H. KAHN, ROBERT P. PERKINS, GEORGE G. FRELINGHUYSEN, ISAAC TOWNSEND, EDWARD T. DEVINE, PAUL M. WARBURG, H. KEARSARGE KNAPP, RICHARD WATSON GILDER, CHARLES STEELE, JOSEPH FRAENKEL, M. D., and JOSEPH COLLINS, M. D.

A Battle With the Weather.

When the wind attains a velocity of seventy miles an hour big trees begin to fall and all animals, including men, suspend any business in which they may be engaged and hastily seek the nearest shelter. The fact that EDWARD PAYSON WESTON says that he has continued walking in the face of such a hurricane shows something more about his mental and physical condition than about the exact anemometric records recently made in the region through which he is passing, and the indications are disquietingly plain that he is close to the limit of his amazing endurance.

No doubt the weather has been sufficiently bad to excuse a little unintentional exaggeration, and the high winds, coming after belated snowstorms and torrential rains, would take from any other man his last hope of completing the transcontinental journey within the limit of a hundred days set when he started. Theoretically, the hardest part of the route, with its combination of deserts and mountains, is still to be traversed, and as WESTON is already behind his schedule to such an extent that, to win, each day's travel must be considerably longer than his previous average, success would seem to be impossible. He has the railroad to walk on, however, and luck and good weather, of which he has as yet had so little, might bring him to the coast within, or not far beyond, his early expectations.

Compared with the speed of the automobiles which are following him, WESTON is moving with pathetic slowness, but it must be remembered that he has carried his seventy years across the country much faster than any horse could have gone, and that the travelers of the prairie schooner days were satisfied with a rate less than half of his. The last photographs which WESTON sent back, some of which were printed in THE SUNDAY TIMES, were disquieting, and not least so because of the eager and anxious eyes that looked with such feverish vivacity from the haggard and emaciated face. It was the face of an unbeaten man, without question, but it was that of a man not beaten only because he will not acknowledge even the possibility of defeat until after it has come. If anybody but WESTON were responsible for the continuation of his journey the responsibility would be a heavy one, for undoubtedly he is taking desperate chances with the remnants of his strength.

Effective, Though Irrelevant.

Evidently Mrs. DELLA M. GILBERT is not the person to enter into a successful contest with the extremely shrewd men who form the inner circle of Eddyism. To her charges that Mrs. EDDY is dead, either in body or mind, they make the utterly irrelevant, but highly effective, answer that Mrs. GILBERT wanted to be silenced by a gift of $5,000.

So peculiar are all the mental operations of a sincere Christian Scientist that it would not be quite fair, or, at any rate, it is not quite necessary, to interpret this strange letter as if it were the production of a writer accustomed to the exercise of reason on the facts of life. Mrs. GILBERT is far from being the only Eddyite who looks for money as well as health as a "demonstration" of doctrine, and there is something more than a minute possibility that she demanded, and would have taken, the $5,000, not as the price of concealing a fraud, but as evidence that there was no fraud.

Of course, her enemies will use ruthlessly the weapon which she put in their hands, and as a foe of Christian Science she is no longer to be feared. She committed the unpardonable sin of showing initiative in the exploitation of the Eddy cult, and she has met the fate of many a predecessor along that dangerous road.

FREE MEALS FOR THE NEEDY.

New York Philanthropic Society Appeals for Aid to Its Charity.

The Greater New York Philanthropic Society, anticipating its annual report, to be published in August, states that since its incorporation, having for its object the supply of coffee, food, and relief to needy persons, from the opening of its first stand, at Pier 5 East River, on Oct. 25 last, and from its stand in Centre Street, at the entrance to the Tombs Prison, in January, and with free distributions at Thanksgiving and at Christmas, it has served 31,524 meals.

The cost of stands, fittings, wages of attendants, and food amounted to $1,357.13, the receipts from all sources, including the sale of meal tickets and contributions from the Executive Committee, were $991, leaving a deficit on April 30 of $366.13.

In addition to its service of meals the society is now installing a free supply of water at its stand at the entrance to the Tombs Prison.

To meet the outlay and deficit, the society is now making a special appeal for further funds. It quotes from the "survey" of the 22d inst.: "If we administer our relief in the right spirit, with true sympathy, realizing the basic fact of brotherhood, with no feeling of aloofness or separateness, then our gifts need not pauperize, but on the contrary, may help and uplift, morally and socially, as well as aid materially."

SEVENTH AVENUE.

Recalls the Time When It Was Inhabited by Squatters.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Seventh Avenue is one of the pleasures of memory, inasmuch as in years gone by I was accustomed to drive over it every morning en route to the old Bloomingdale or Harlem Lane for a spin, bringing up for breakfast at Striker's Bay, on the shore of the Hudson, or Claremont, on the top of Manhattanville hill. No such enjoyment exists to-day; population and the advance in improvements have buried them forever. The Speedway of to-day begins where the old drives ended, and it is decidedly monotonous as compared with the old Bloomingdale, dressed up in gardens and flowers, with its stately elms and drooping willows a hundred years old, overshadowing the driveway, and where, upon the tallest branches, some twenty-five or more varieties of birds, dressed in their gayest plumage, sang their sweetest songs to the passer-by or danced beneath on well-kept lawns.

The avenue in those days was a dirt road, and the leading driveway out of the city, which practically ended at Fourteenth Street, although there were a number of Summer boarding houses in the Twenties and Thirties. Corporal Thompson kept a road house on the corner of Broadway and Twenty-third Street, the present site of the Fifth Avenue Building; The Knickerbocker Cottage on Fifth Avenue was another; and still another was an old wooden shanty on the point made by Eighth Avenue crossing Broadway at Fifty-ninth Street and the Circle. On the west side of the road, just above, were a number of squatters.

The 300,000 persons to be landed daily at Thirty-third Street by the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Hudson tunnel mean a great deal, as also a $12,000,000 store on one end of a block resting on Seventh Avenue, with a $6,000,000 hotel covering the frontage, will accomplish great transformation. CHILDREN AND THE FOURTH.

Its Dangers Are a Type of Present Urban Influences.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Having read the appeal of a "Mother of Three" for a substitute for firecrackers for children, I would suggest control on the part of parents as the only means of safety for our children. Where this does not exist every family and person must risk the dangers of surrounding conditions. It requires no argument to prove that great or small noises are no more needful on one day or occasion than on every other. If children and youths are allowed to run wild, of course they will have more of what they call "fun," but the old saying holds good, "Those that dance must or should pay the fiddler."

My parents did not allow their three youngest boys any use of firearms until the age of 18 years. In the backwoods sixty years ago this rule was easily enforced. It is not an impossible rule now. It seems evident that parents that can give their offspring no more than life, food, clothes, and shelter are unfit for their duties. The sadness of it is that what the fondest parents value above all the world and are willing to die for too often become a curse and shame in the world. And as cities and wealth increase so do every form and kind of danger. I think our present civilization must be voted a failure.

THE GYASCUTUS.

Describes the Domesticated Hybrid of North Carolina.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In reply to Paul Howard, who asks in THE TIMES to-day something about the gyascutus, I may say that in my native State, North Carolina, the animal has been domesticated and crossed with horses, the peculiarity of the progeny being that, having short legs on one side and long ones on the other, they are very useful for plowing on the steep mountainside farms of the western part of the State.

As I came from the Piedmont section, I am able to describe the animal only briefly and from hearsay. Perhaps some of your Asheville readers could furnish you with details and photographs, or at least drawings. FRANCIS B. HAYS.

The Requirement of Proteins.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A physician whose name I prefer to omit, writing in American Health for May, says: "Even the potato contains all the protein anybody requires. Please remember that important fact." One would suppose from this dictatorial statement that no two opinions existed on this weighty subject. In the belief that Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale edited American Health, I ventured to write and send him a few words of criticism. His answer is that "about 10 per cent. of the calories of food should be in protein, and potato fulfills this requirement." The authority quoted is Prof. Chittenden, the distinguished chemist. Whether "anybody" includes growing boys and girls and sufferers from incipiant tuberculosis or not I do not know, but I want to suggest that as meat is high in price, some enthusiasts might substitute potatoes and some fat. Barnum? He is dead, but certain diet faddists have taken his place.

Biggest Tariff "Joker" of All

The Aldrich Device of Putting Up Duties Based on Selling Prices Here.

Specially Written for THE NEW YORK TIMES.

One of the most far-reaching and effective "jokers" in the Payne-Aldrich Tariff bill, for the purpose of greatly adding to the duties on imports, has escaped the attention it deserves.

This is not surprising, however, in view of the technical character of the language used and the fact that it appears in the so-called administrative section of the bill. Here are prescribed the methods of collecting duties and of ascertaining the market value of imports upon which the schedules place an ad valorem rate.

The basis of value upon which such a rate, or percentage, as assessed in the Dingley and all recent United States tariffs, is the value of the imported article in the principal markets of the country of export at the time of exportation and in the usual wholesale quantities for net cash.

This means that the ad valorem rate of duty is taken on the foreign market value, not upon the value of the article in the American market. It must be plain to any one, expert or not, that the method of ascertaining value, and whether the value is the foreign or the American value of the article, is as important as the rate of duty assessed, in determining the extent of the levy.

If an article is worth $1 abroad, and the rate of duty is 50 per cent., the duty assessed is 50 cents. But if the same article in the United States is $2, cost of importation, duty, &c., being added to the original price, then the same rate of 50 per cent. will mean a duty levy of $1. In other words, by the simple device of changing the basis of assessment, American for foreign value, the duty tax has been doubled. The rate remains the same, but the result has been multiplied by two from the other side of the factor.

Among those who follow tariff technicalities it has been known for a long time that certain already heavily tariff protected interests in this country have been urging the change of basis of valuation from the foreign to the American value of imported articles, or, more subtly still, similar articles of American manufacture.

So when the Payne bill passed the House these observers were not surprised to note a change in Section 11 of the Customs Administrative Act, the section dealing with valuation in the present Dingley law. The clause in question clearly substituted the American selling price as the basis of valuation on all goods consigned for account of the foreign owner.

When alarm was felt over the ambiguity of the clause, as it appeared to apply to all goods not freely offered for sale to all purchasers abroad, Mr. Payne assured his inquirers that only "consigned" goods were covered by the terms of the section.

But Senator Aldrich's Senate amendment, changing the House section, leaves no room for doubt as to the intention to substitute the American selling price valuation for large quantities of purchased goods, as well as consigned goods.

Under Section 19 of the Administrative Act of June 10, 1890, now in the Senate bill as Section 18, it is proposed that the market value shall be the market value or wholesale price in the country of exportation. From a reading of this section it would seem to follow that the same rule is to be applied under the proposed new act. Section 11, however, contains the modification of the definition of market value, as defined in Section 18, by providing that it shall not be less than the American selling price, with allowance for duty and transportation charges.

The Real "Joker" Appears.

Here is how the section reads:

> The actual market value or wholesale price, as defined by law, of any imported merchandise which is consigned for sale in the United States, or which is sold for exportation to the United States, and which is not actually sold or freely offered for sale in usual wholesale quantities in the open market of the country of exportation to all purchasers, shall not in any case be appraised at less than the wholesale price at which such or similar imported merchandise is actually sold or freely offered for sale in usual wholesale quantities in the United States in the open market, due allowance by deduction being made for estimated duties thereon, cost of transportation, insurance, and other necessary expenses from the place of shipment to the place of delivery, and a commission not exceeding 6 per centum, if any has been paid or contracted to be paid.

What does this mean? Simply that if any American merchant obtains the exclusive right to sell in this country any foreign made article he must pay duty at the ad valorem rate of 45 per cent. or 50 per cent., or whatever it might be, not only on the market value of the article abroad but also on whatever profit he may make here, and also upon his American expenses to which he is put in marketing the goods—that is to say, his rent, his lighting, his salaries to employes, his traveling expenses, and in fact every item of expense which the selling of goods in this country entails.

It will be noted that in arriving at the dutiable value based on the American selling price allowance by deduction is permitted by this section for estimated duties, cost of transportation, insurance, and other necessary expenses from the place of shipment to the place of delivery, and a commission not exceeding 6 per cent., if any has been paid or contracted to be paid. It does not permit of any deduction for general expenses or profit.

Now goods which are sold abroad and imported into this country are marketed here by the importer at a price which includes:

The foreign market value or cost.
The duty.
Transportation expenses, insurance, &c.
Importer's selling expenses, such as traveling expenses, rent, light, salary to employes, &c.
Reasonable profit.

Must Pay Duty on Profits, Too.

These five elements added together constitute the price at which imported merchandise is offered for sale at wholesale in the United States in the open market.

It is perfectly obvious that, given the American selling price, the foreign market value must be found by deducting from that price not only the duty and transportation charges, as the Senate bill provides, but also the general expenses (amounting in many cases to 15 per cent. or more) and the profit. Unless these last two items be deducted, the importer must pay a duty on profit made in this country and on the wages paid by him to his employes, as well as on his rent, his lighting, and, in fact, every item going into his general expenses.

The result of the Aldrich section is to increase, by as much as 50 per cent. in many cases, the rates of duty provided in the body of the Tariff bill.

Merchants have been told at the Senate Finance Committee hearings that even this amended clause applies only to "consigned" goods. The language of the section disproves this.

In order to escape from the operation of this clause the manufacturer abroad must be prepared to sell in the open market to all comers goods exactly similar to those imported. An American house that is importing a pattern designed by themselves and specially suited to their trade will, unless the goods are sold abroad to all purchasers, be compelled to pay, on importation of the goods, a duty based on the price at which they sell the goods here, with their American profits and general expenses included.

The Increase Cleverly Hidden.

It is doubtful if a cleverer method of increasing duties was ever devised. On its face it is very innocent; so innocent that few, if any, of the large merchants of this country who import special lines have even noticed it. But its certain effect will be either to increase the cost to the consumer or to drive out of business entirely all those merchants who at the present time enjoy the privilege of being "sole agents."

Even if the goods are sold freely abroad to all foreign purchasers, Section 11 will apply, unless they are sold to all American purchasers as well. Should the section be applied in all its technical force, the fact that an exporter has contracted for his entire output so that he could no longer "freely offer to all purchasers" his commodities, the increased duty would be applied. There is hardly an article subjected to an ad valorem rate in the entire bill which might not be made the subject of this section and increased duties demanded.

The intent of the framers of this section is perfectly clear to those who have followed the source and progress of the plan to change the basis of valuation from the foreign market value to the American selling price. It is to raise, without public outcry or knowledge and by indirection, the already prohibitive and obstructive duties devised by the Payne-Aldrich bill.

NEGLECTFUL MOTHERS.

They Are Not the Devoted Strugglers for Woman's Elevation.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Thanks to Benjamin Macmahon for his feeling tribute to Lucy Stone. Apropos the whole chapter in the growth of intelligent freedom which she and her noble contemporaries began for us, one observation has escaped statement which sheds much light on the conduct of discussion. It is that a broader difference in rational and moral competency exists between men and men and between women and women than between men and women. Following Mr. Macmahon's letter, "E. F. H." suggests it again by quoting Mrs. Corbin to the effect that "the woman has under God the forming and rearing of men in her own hands," and then pointing out that woman has been "neglectful of her God-given opportunities." Who are the mothers that have thus furnished "the whole story of the world's sorrows?" Surely not the devoted strugglers for woman's elevation.

At every stage in civic progress there have been men who fought the good fight and "men" who idly floated into power and privilege in the wake of the heroes. And to-day we have before us—how shall we classify them? Shall we say women with heads and women with hats? And is it a popular theory that the women with hats are likely to make better mothers than the women with heads? Motherhood must be a lofty function, indeed, if this be so. Truly, popular theories are an interesting study—to one privileged to study them in the abstract!

EMMANUEL SCANDALS.

They Would Be Incidental to a Movement of Progress.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I agree with Dr. Aked, and with your correspondent, "A Woman," that from the Emmanuel Movement scandals would arise in the Church. But I do not think that for this reason those engaged in the work should be discouraged.

The Emmanuel Movement, like Woman's Suffrage, Socialism, the Federation of Labor, combination of capital, vote by primaries, woman's clubs, the aeroplane, and motor cars, are matters that belong to our times. And though many things may and must be said both for and against them, they each and all have come as the natural outcome of conditions, and as such must be met, faced, and in the processes of time relegated to their proper place in the general forward march of things.

Human life is demanding as never before a larger field for responsible or moral action, and though "Virtue itself scopes not calumnious strokes" virtue must not, for that reason, be kept in a cage and prevented from proving itself virtuous. Vice even does not die when kept in bonds; it is only from learning to see the consequences of his own unlovelliness that the man of vicious habits learns to abhor evil ways. It is education that we want, and a strength great enough to rise above even possible defeat.

A CLERGYMAN'S WIDOW.

New York, June 2, 1909.

A BOY'S "GRIGSBY STATION."

Father's bought a limousine, as big as all creation,
Black and solemn like a hearse, all shuttered in with glass;
Heavy as a Pullman car, befitting of his station,
Shiny sides and tufted seats, all bound and trimmed with brass;
Sister has a touring car, all fixed up swell and "tony,"
Gets a lot of other girls, but there's no room for me,
Wish I could go back again and have a cart and pony,
Back where I could have some fun, as poor as I could be!

Mother's got a runabout and takes her friends out driving,
Spends her days out in the park and on the boulevard,
Lots of times I'd like to go out where there's fish and diving,
But there isn't room for me, which makes it awful hard.
Bill has got a racing car that goes a mile a minute,
Spins along the road so fast that you can hardly see,
Wish I had a pony cart right now and I was in it,
Wish that I could have some fun, and poor as I could be!

Aunty's got a roadster that she uses for her airing,
Takes some neighbor woman out, as happy as can be,
I can hear her honk sometimes, but when it comes to sharing
Any joy in Aunty's car, why I'm not one, two, three.
Father's in his limousine and Bill is in his racer,
Sister's in her touring car and Mother's in the park;
Wish I had a pony and some boys to run and chase her,
Five cents worth of peanuts and a dog to jump and bark.

SWIMMER DANIELS WEDS MRS. WAGNER

ONLY A FEW FRIENDS THERE

Her Decree Was Obtained in Paris Three Months Ago for "Outrageous Abandonment."

Mrs. Florence Goodyear Wagner, who obtained a divorce from her husband, George O. Wagner of Buffalo, in Paris under a decree signed on March 6, was married again to Charles M. Daniels, the amateur champion short-distance swimmer, in her mother's apartment at the Plaza yesterday. She has a fortune of several millions left to her by her father, F. H. Goodyear of Buffalo. Young Mr. Daniels started recently in the automobile business.

The Rev. Thomas R. Slicer performed the ceremony, which took place without many of the friends of either party to it knowing anything about it. The couple took out a marriage license only yesterday morning. Mr. Daniels said he was 24 years old. He presented a certified copy of the Paris divorce decree. He was quite indignant about a rumor that the bride had only just heard by cable that the decree had been granted.

Mrs. Wagner's first marriage took place on Dec. 2, 1902. She has two children, both daughters, one of whom is now 6 and the other 3 years old. She obtained her divorce on the ground of "outrageous abandonment."

The Plaza suite of Mrs. Goodyear, who came to New York some days ago in anticipation of the wedding, was decorated with palms, red and white roses, and a profusion of white Spring flowers for the wedding. Mrs. Wagner, who is celebrated in Buffalo for her gowns and good looks, wore a gown of white satin trimmed with real lace and carried lilies of the valley. She was unattended. After the ceremony there was a small reception, to which just a few guests were asked.

In the evening there was a wedding dinner for sixteen of the guests. Almost immediately afterward the couple left in an automobile without giving out their destination, but it was said that they were going to Tuxedo, where they spent Sunday, Mrs. Wagner having given up her rooms at the Plaza on Saturday night.

Much mystery was made of the impending marriage in the morning at the Plaza, and rumors of all kinds were rife. Some said that the wedding had already taken place at Tuxedo.

Mr. Daniels and Mrs. Wagner met for the first time several months ago. After that Mr. Daniels made many trips from the New York Athletic Club, where he lived, to the Plaza, a block away. He and Mrs. Wagner have devoted a great deal of their time to automobiling. Mrs. Wagner owns one of the finest imported cars, and Mr. Daniels's interest in automobiling is greater owing to the fact that for the last few months he has been engaged in the business.

For several years Mr. Daniels has been conspicuous in amateur sport. He defeated all comers who were entered in the dash swims at the Olympic games in London last year, and carried off most of the swimming honors in the games at Athens in 1906. He is the greatest swimmer in the world at all distances from twenty-five yards to a half mile, and as a sprint swimmer is said to have no equal. Before becoming a champion and the chief reliance of the New York Athletic Club in that branch of sport, he was a runner and won many high school championship trophies.

Besides his other accomplishments Mr. Daniels is a marksman of considerable ability, and at Travers Island has defeated several of the best shots.

Mrs. Wagner's relatives still live at the residence her father built in Delaware Avenue, Buffalo. She was the favorite of her father, who, in his will, provided generously for her. He was President of the Buffalo & Susquehanna Railroad Company. He was many times a millionaire, and Mrs. Daniels's share of the fortune is estimated at something like $5,000,000.

At a late hour last night it was said at the Plaza that Mr. and Mrs. Daniels had left for Hiawatha Lodge, Tupper Lake, in the Adirondacks, where they were expected to stay the entire Summer.

THEATREMANAGERS' ELECTION

Harris May Succeed Savage as President—Murray for Secretary.

What is expected to be an interesting session of the National Association of Producing Theatrical Managers will be held this afternoon at the Hotel Astor. A new President, Secretary, and four Directors are to be elected for the ensuing term.

The present President, Henry W. Savage, it is understood, will resign in favor of Henry B. Harris, while Hollis E. Cooley, who has been Secretary for the past two years, will not oppose the election of Jules Murray to that office. Mr. Cooley, it is said, gives up his position against the protests of nearly all the members of the association.

The new Directors will probably be Mr. Cooley, Joseph Brooks, Henry W. Savage, and William F. Connor.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

Alick Lauder, brother of Harry Lauder, made his first appearance in this country as a comedian yesterday at Keith & Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre in a character sketch called "The Christening," with which he has been identified in English music halls. Mr. Lauder is a clever comedian, and portrays an amusing type of Scotchman.

George Seybolt, Secretary of the Actors' Society, will retire from that office on July 1 and return to the stage.

May de Sousa, the American prima donna-soubrette, has been engaged by Charles Dillingham for a part in "The Candy Shop."

Leon Berg, who wrote the score for "The Prince Rounder," which will be presented by his German comic opera company in the early Fall, has engaged Aaron Hoffman to furnish the book.

Special cooling apparatus worked by electricity has been installed at the Eden Musee. This week the Hungarian Band and the "fotofone" singing and talking machine will be the principal attractions.

"CHANTICLER" FOR AMERICA.

Charles Frohman Has Secured Rostand's Famous Play.

PARIS, June 7.—Charles Frohman announces that he has secured Edmond Rostand's "Chanticler" for America. Mr. Frohman expects the play to produce a sensation in New York.

The famous "barnyard drama," which the author of "Cyrano de Bergerac" spent so much time writing and rewriting for Coquelin Aîné, and the future of which at Coquelin's death Rostand said was to be decided by his son, Jean Coquelin, has not yet been produced on any stage. The difficulties of representation are increased by the fact that all the characters are animals.

Another act that brought applause was "A Night in a Monkey Music Hall," a tabloid vaudeville performance given entirely by monkeys. It was one of the funniest vaudeville acts that has been presented this year.

'HAMLET' WELCOMED AT THE ACADEMY

Warm Applause Greets the Reappearance of Sothern and Marlowe in the Tragedy.

SOTHERN SEEN AT HIS BEST

Miss Marlowe Called Before the Curtain Many Times After Ophelia's Mad Scene—Large Audience Present.

It was midnight last night when the final curtain fell on the Sothern-Marlowe revival of "Hamlet" at the Academy of Music. Even then the large audience was loath to depart, and loudly demanded many curtain calls. The east side loves Sothern and Marlowe, and, judging from the generous way in which these artists responded to the applause, the affection is reciprocated.

The performance was a great one in every respect. It was the first time in two years that Sothern and Miss Marlowe had appeared in this city in Shakespeare's great tragedy. The last occasion was their farewell season at the same theatre on their return from Europe just before they parted.

Hamlet is among Mr. Sothern's greatest characters. Last night he excelled himself. Urged on by the friendliness of the audience, he gradually worked the interest up until in the scene which opens the third act, wherein he brings vividly before his uncle, the King, and his mother, the murder of his father, through the medium of the strolling players, the audience was deeply impressed.

The famous soliloquy was well given. But some of the earlier passages were marred through late comers among the audience distracting the attention which was due it. Again, in the churchyard scene Mr. Sothern rose to the part in his lament to Horatio on the finding of Yorick's skull.

This also brought in Rowland Buckstone as the First Grave Digger. Mr. Buckstone's work in this part is too well known to need comment. Enough to say that he played it with his usual skill.

Of Miss Marlowe's work as Ophelia little but praise can be said. In the mad scene she showed all her old power of tragedy, and jointly shared with Mr. Sothern the plaudits of the audience at the end of the act. She was recalled time and again to bow her acknowledgments.

The Horatio of Frederick Lewis was a good performance. But William Harris, as the Ghost of Hamlet's Father, could scarcely be heard at times in the scene between himself and Hamlet. This, too, may have been due in a great respect to the size of the theatre and the constant interruptions due to late comers. Miss Alma Kruger as the Queen gave a dignified performance of the part, and in the closet scene between Hamlet and herself her acting was worthy of the company she appeared in.

Hamlet will be repeated on Wednesday and Saturday, both matinée performances.

"JOAN OF ARC" PLANS.

Rehearsals of Play to be Given in Harvard Stadium Soon Commence.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., June 7.—Preparations for the massive "Joan of Arc" performance to be given in the Stadium at Harvard on the evening of June 22, in which Maude Adams is to play the title rôle, are fast nearing completion.

All cues for the entrances of the actors at the proper moment will be given by a series of red and white electric bulbs strung at the different entrances to the stage. Large arc lights will be strung around the rim of the Stadium and entwined throughout the entire bowl of the amphitheatre.

On Monday, June 14, the entire production of "Joan of Arc" will be brought to Boston and will be temporarily housed in the Colonial Theatre. Rehearsals of the fifty principal persons in the cast will be conducted there, and at the same time the small army of 1,250 supernumeraries will rehearse in the Stadium.

The piece deals with the matrimonial entanglements of a retired sea Captain in the Shrewsbury River and Rumson Road colonies of New Jersey. It was warmly received.

"MOLLUSC" WELL RECEIVED.

Sir Charles Wyndham Turns a Slip by Mr. Sothern Into a Laugh.

THE MOLLUSC, a comedy in three acts by Hubert Henry Davies, the Empire Theatre.

Tom Kemp.....Sir Charles Wyndham
Mr. Baxter.....Sam Sothern
Miss Roberts.....Lillias Waldegrave
Mrs. Baxter.....Mary Moore

Sir Charles Wyndham, Mary Moore, and the two remaining members of the former's company, Sam Sothern and Lillian Waldegrave, who were hurriedly called from London by Alf Hayman when it was arranged at the last moment that the veteran English actor should appear in a two weeks' revival of "The Mollusc" during his visit here, were enthusiastically received at the Empire Theatre last night.

The audience was as large as on the opening night at the same theatre when Maude Adams produced "What Every Woman Knows," a performance which Sir Charles witnessed on Saturday night and praised highly.

No better acting has been seen here in a long time than Sir Charles's last night in the part of Tom Kemp who, in Herbert Davies's comedy, undertakes to cure his valetudinarian sister of "molluscry." And Sir Charles's reason for demanding that his original company should be brought over for the production was plainly justified by the work of Miss Moore, Miss Waldegrave, and Mr. Sothern. Miss Moore's portrayal of the rôle of the easy-going Mrs. Baxter was flawless, and she received almost as flattering a welcome as Sir Charles.

Sir Charles's mastery of the art of make-up is shown to distinct advantage in the piece. Although he is 74 years of age, he easily deceives the audience into believing that Tom Kemp is under 40. His delivery is remarkably virile, and his personality is vigorous. He could not refrain from taking a sly dig at Mr. Sothern, which pleased the audience immensely.

In the first act Mr. Sothern, as Mr. Baxter, tells his wife that her brother had come down to their country home in a motor car from London. Mr. Sothern said "from England," and the audience quickly discovered the error and laughed boisterously. At the end of the third act Sir Charles made a short speech referring to the suddenness with which he had been engaged for the present production, and adding:

"Even the company had to get here so quickly that one of them apparently doesn't know yet where he is at."

Lillias Waldegrave as the accommodating Miss Roberts was pretty and charming.

The play during its short revival is sure to draw crowded houses.

FAIL TO SEE ERLANGER.

Committee of Western Managers Now Interviewing Other Producers.

The committee representing the Western Theatrical Managers' Association, headed by Charles Kindt, President of the organization, which has been in New York for the last few days trying to arrange with A. L. Erlanger whereby the so-called Theatrical Trust, as represented by Klaw & Erlanger, will agree to permitting the association freer scope in its booking arrangements with independent managers, will make a final effort this afternoon to see Mr. Erlanger and submit their proposals to him.

Since the committee arrived Mr. Erlanger is said to have refused to meet its members, and unless some settlement is made this afternoon the committee threatens to turn over all the theatres in the circuit they represent, not only to the Shuberts, but to any one who wishes to book with them.

The committee, in expectation of unfavorable action on the part of Mr. Erlanger, has already called upon nearly all the theatrical managers of the city who are also members of the syndicate, and urged them to take the committee's view of the situation, regardless of Klaw & Erlanger's attitude. Don Stuart, who represents the association in the East, said yesterday that several of these managers had agreed to book their shows over the Western theatrical circuit. He would not, however, name the managers who had made the agreement.

Mr. Erlanger would not discuss the situation, but a member of the firm said that Mr. Erlanger would remain firm in his intention not to see the committee or enter into any arrangement with it.

"FOLLIES OF 1909" SEEN.

Ziegfeld's So-Called Review Produced at Atlantic City.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 7.—"The Follies of 1909" had its first production at the Apollo Theatre here to-night "The Follies of 1909" follows the lines of Mr. Ziegfeld's previous "Revues," being divided into two acts and showing eighteen scenes, some of them very elaborate. The words and lyrics are by H. B. Smith and the music, which comprises thirty numbers, is by Maurice Levi.

Everything important and every person in the public eye has been touched upon. Distinctive numbers were sung by Nora Bayes, Harry Kelly, Lillian Lorraine, Jack Norworth, Annabelle Whitford, Billie Reeves, and Arthur Deagon. The production here is preliminary to what is expected to be an extended run in New York.

MORRIS INVADES CINCINNATI.

Will Book the Attractions for Theatre I. M. Martin Will Erect.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, June 7.—It became known here to-day that the recent mysterious visit to Cincinnati of William Morris, independent vaudeville booking agent of New York, was to close a deal with I. M. Martin to book all the attractions in Martin's New Orpheum Theatre and roof garden, which is to be erected in the Walnut Hills residence district.

This means, it is said, another vaudeville war in Cincinnati. It is the first time Morris has invaded this field.

FEAR BOY IS KIDNAPPED.

Father of Child Who Disappeared Got Black Hand Threats.

Searching parties were hunting through the Italian colonies in Williamsburg and elsewhere yesterday to find Peter Calandra, the five-year-old son of Jack Calandra of 183 Floyd Street, who, it is feared, was kidnapped Sunday afternoon from in front of his home.

The fear that the boy was kidnapped is due to the fact that the child's father about a year ago received two threatening letters signed by the Black Hand, and in each a demand for $500 was made under penalty of kidnapping one of Calandra's children.

CHICAGO BAPTISTS WOULD OUST FOSTER

Demand Made by Preachers That Chicago University Professor Quit the Ministry.

DENIES CHRIST'S DIVINITY

Declares in Book That to Copy Him Would Kill the Soul—Son Protests Against Attack.

CHICAGO, June 7.—Retirement from the Baptist ministry of Prof. George B. Foster of the University of Chicago was demanded to-day at a meeting of Baptist preachers of Chicago. Criticism was directed chiefly at Prof. Foster's recent book, "The Function of Religion," which has harrowed the clergy of Chicago and has been denounced by some as "a bitter indictment of the Christian religion before the bar of skepticism."

Several hundred preachers and laymen had gathered at the conference of the Baptist Executive Council, and at the meeting the Rev. Johnstone Myers, pastor of Immanuel Baptist Church, moved that Prof. Foster be requested to yield up his ordination papers. There were seconds from all sides, but Prof. A. K. Parker, an instructor at the University of Chicago, prevented action by calling attention to a constitutional provision requiring a week's deliberation in such a case. The motion accordingly was postponed until June 14.

"I want to say now that I'll be here next Monday to present the same motion," said Mr. Myers.

It was after Prof. Foster had been characterized as "an undesirable Baptist" and as a teacher who "would dethrone the Church and defy evolution," that the effort to force him out of the ministry was made.

"Prof. Foster declares," said the Rev. W. A. Mathews of the Tabernacle Baptist Church, in the course of a review of Prof. Foster's book, "that one who calls himself a believer in the Bible is a 'knave.' Then, thank heaven, I am a knave."

"May I ask how that word is spelled?" interrupted Prof. Parker.

"K-n-a-v-e," replied the speaker.

"If you will pardon the correction," observed Prof. Parker, "I have the book in my hand, and the word is spelled 'n-h-i-v-e.'"

"Prof. Foster states," continued Mr. Mathews, "that God did not make man in His own image, but that man made God in his own image. He says we are not fallen angels, but developed animals. He says that miracles have always been the refuge of ignorance, and that modern technic must take the place of magic. I wonder what he means by 'modern technic.'

"He declares that science has undermined the trinity; of course that is in his own mind. He says that Jesus was a child of His time, and that to copy Jesus is to kill the soul. He makes a tirade against the clergy. He says that the book of humanity is greater than the Bible. The title of his book should have been 'Religion Without Christianity.' He is guilty of the supreme conceit of ranking himself greater than Christ. He styles our grand old Book as the 'petrified remains of the Christian religion.'"

Prof. Foster's seventeen-year-old son had sat through the address with flushed cheeks and shining eyes. Unable to restrain himself longer, he half arose and cried:

"Why don't you review the book and not the man?"

A buzz of excitement spread over the room, but the speaker paid no attention to the interruption.

After the meeting Dr. Parker said that any action which might be taken by the preachers would not affect Prof. Foster's relations with the University of Chicago.

"This conference has nothing to do with the university," he said. "Two-thirds of the university's Trustees are Baptist laymen, but they could not vote to expel a member of the Faculty without moral grounds."

BOY BLACKMAILER FOILED.

Young Felchlin Attempts to Extort $2,000 from Mrs. R. B. Wright in St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 7.—An attempt to blackmail Mrs. R. B. Wright of 33 Westmoreland Place, the mother of Thurston Wright, whose marriage to Miss Virginia Frew of Pittsburg took place this evening, has been disclosed by the arrest of Jesse J. Felchlin, 19 years old. Felchlin wrote Mrs. Wright a letter demanding $2,000 and threatening the death of her "best beloved" if she did not comply with his instructions.

Felchlin was arrested at the Post Office this morning as the result of a trap laid for him by Chief Post Office Inspector Dixon. In a signed confession obtained from young Felchlin after two hours of questioning he says he was forced to obtain money to support his mother because of the dissolute habits of his father, Josef Felchlin. He saw Mrs. Wright's name in the society columns of a newspaper, he says, and choose her as his victim because he thought she was wealthy.

Mrs. Wright received the blackmailing letter May 30. Her son at once turned it over to the Post Office authorities. The letter demanded that $500 in four envelopes be mailed to "Clearance Tubbon" at the General Delivery Department of the Post Office before June 8.

Dr. John Knox, who was connected with the Collegiate Dutch Reformed Church, which used to stand at Lafayette Place and Fourth Street. Besides the three sons named, another son, Neilson, cashier of the National Bank of Commerce, and two daughters, survive Mrs. Olcott.

YANKS FLAY TIGERS BEFORE BIG CROWD

16,000 Fans Cheer as New Yorks Take Champions' Measure on the Hilltop.

MANNING PUZZLES BATSMEN

Young Pitcher Holds Heavy-Hitting Team to One Run, Which Was Scored on Errors by Laporte and Austin.

Weather such as they bale up in the fan factory as a reward for all good New Yorkers lured 16,000 persons to American League Park yesterday for a game the Yankees took from the Tigers by the pleasing score of 5 to 1. It was a day to make a man glad he lived in Manhattan, or grateful even for permission to visit the borough—still more to rejoice that he knew baseball, and, therefore, could enjoy the cleanest, sanest, safest sport on earth. Moreover, it marked the season's first sally of the Tigers from their jungle to the hilltop, and, though it soon became plain that Detroit had no more chance than a show girl in a sewing circle, the afternoon supplied enough thrills to make everybody feel he'd had his Subway's worth. Why, just to hear the shouts of triumph that echoed from the Palisades and carromed off Spuyten Duyvil clear over to Coogan's Bluff, was more fun than the longest fanning bee around the grocery stove.

Sundry factors contributed to New York's victory. Chief among them was Mr. Manning—one of the most modest members of Manager Stallings's pitching staff. A clean-limbed, clear-eyed, sure-footed youngster, that Manning. Both feet on the ground, but a-tiptoe for his opportunities. Fields some, too. He held those "Ganders" to four fruitless hits, and if it hadn't been for errors by Laporte and Austin, none of them would have circled the square. Those four taps stood scattered and solitary as a picket fence after a Pickett charge. True, a couple of ripping double plays proved useful to Brother Manning, but his box work had much to do with both. His control practically was continuous. He franked only two batsmen, and those when it didn't matter, and every time things even approached seriousness he tightened up like a crossroads wallet in a Coney Island crowd.

What he did to those Western wallopers was distressing to their friends. Most of the time he flipped the ball over with the ease of a small boy skipping pebbles. Every once in so often he resorted to a dew-droppy fade-away that had those Detroit eagle-eyes beaten to a whisper. Why even Hughey Jennings lost his voice for several innings. Manning's delivery was a deceptive as the device of the man who put green spectacles on his cows to make them eat shavings. In all of which inhospitable conduct he was aided and abetted by the rest of the hilltoppers.

Credit, however, may not be withheld from Hal Chase. That svelt first baseman took down a wreath of bays from the top shelf, for in the glorious fourth he batted in the tally that tied and the run that won. True, the Highlanders rolled up three more counts before they loosed their grip on the register, but the good marks with which Keeler and Engle hot-footed home on Hal's long single to right sufficed. For, barring that gift coupon tally in the third, the Tigers recorded nothing—the remainder of their score could have been kept with a rubber stamp. Incidentally Chase made pretty stops that helped. They say he's a handy man around the bag.

Of course, Willie Keeler filled his niche creditably. He may have his critics, but when the inter-world series for the championship of the universe is played, Keeler will be found still bingling them over the lawn and dragging them out of the clouds. Willie batted .750 yesterday. He stripped off three beautifully clean singles—clean as a hound's tooth—and it wasn't till the seventh, with the game as good as won, that he hit into a double play. He it was who started the good work in the fourth. Schaefer, in the third, had got around for Detroit on Laporte's wild throw to Chase, that spelled second for the runner. Schmidt's lift to Keeler, and, after Summers fanned, Austin's fumble of McIntyre's grounder. Detroit had been retired with a runless fourth on snappy juggling by Elberfeld, Kleinow, and Laporte.

And then?

Well, then Willie Keeler, classy as a handicap winner, trim as a cup defender, the can-opening rap of the game already to his credit, stepped forward and stood attention, while Oren Edward Summers, otherwise Kickapoo, tried to grin him out of countenance. Of a sudden a streak of white shot to left centre, and Willie was on first. Having won the brass ring, Keeler rode on to second, while Schaefer threw Elberfeld out at first. Engle's dexter one-bagger pushed Willie to third, and a roar broke from the crowd as Chase stepped under the spotlight. Popular chap, Chase. Nicked another notch in his popularity when he slammed the sphere to right far enough for Keeler to tincan home and for Engle to cross the line as the ball made a big bound over Schmidt's dome. Hal negotiated third on the choice, and the roar swelled until it rolled back on itself. For, somehow, those 16,000 rooters felt the game was in, and were indulgent after Chase got in on Laporte's out, when Austin, following a feathery bunt, was caught in the act at second.

Even then, with the showing 3 to 1 in their favor, the Hilltoppers weren't satisfied. Evidently they were wary of the Tigers' accustomed spring in the wind-up, for in the next round they peeled off two more runs. Kleinow started New York's half of the fifth with a smoking double toward the scoreboard. He was run down trying for third on Manning's little one to the box, Summers, O'Leary, Schaefer, and Bush officiating. But the local twirler reached second on the choice and pattered home when Cree tripled to the green gate. Then Birdie registered on the third of Keeler's hits, Willie making second on Elberfeld's short single and third on O'Leary's high hurl in trying for a double play after freezing to Engle's liner. Following which Chase flied to right.

That ended the run-getting, for, though Schaefer started an old-time Detroit rally with a two-timer to deep centre in the eighth, a cream-laid double play by Chase and Elberfeld on Schmidt's foul fly against the stand retired the runner at third, and Rossman, batting for Summers, was Manning's meat. Equally bootless was the Western team's last-gasp effort in the next inning. McIntyre hit to left, but Cree pulled in Bush's raise, Engle made a good running catch of Crawford's dangerous hoist, and Cobb forced Mac. Whereupon 16,000 enthusiastic fans departed in such good spirits that their gratitude survived even the Subway crush. The score:

PITTSBURGS' RALLY DOWNS PHILLIES, 4-3

Hans Wagner's Slashing Hit in Eighth Inning Scores the Winning Run.

BELL WINS FOR SUPERBAS

Crack Brooklyn Pitcher Prevents St. Louis Team from Scoring—Boston Club Easy for Cincinnati.

PITTSBURG, June 7.—By a grand rally in the eighth inning, Pittsburg defeated Philadelphia to-day by a score of 4 to 3. The visitors made three runs in the fifth inning, chiefly on scratch hits. Until the eighth inning Moren was invincible, but in that inning he weakened, and after allowing a triple, a double, a single, and a base on balls, enough to give three runs, he was replaced by Brown. Wagner, the next man up, doubled, scoring Clarke. Leifield pitched a good game, but was taken out to allow Hyatt to bat for him. The score:

ST. LOUIS, June 7.—Effective pitching by Bell gave Brooklyn a 2 to 0 victory over St. Louis in the opening game of the series to-day. Beebe pitched good ball for the locals, but a base on balls in the sixth netted a run, and McMillan's double, a sacrifice, and a fielder's choice resulted in another tally. Score:

Joe Ward Sold to Phillies.

The New York American League Club announced last night that Third Baseman Joe Ward had been sold to the Philadelphia National League Club for a price unstated. Ward played with the Philadelphia Nationals in 1906, when he jumped to the outlaw Tri-State League. Ward was reinstated last Winter through the efforts of the New York Club, and has been with the Yankees all this season, but has failed to come up to expectations.

Superbas Get Outfielder Clement.

The Brooklyn Club yesterday obtained Outfielder Wallace O. Clement from the Philadelphia club of the same league. The Boston National League club also claimed him, but Brooklyn won the draw-off, entitling it to the player.

BERMUDA STORM PASSES.

Hamilton Yachtsmen Start To-day to Meet Gravesend Bay Racers.

HAMILTON, Bermuda, June 7.—The storm of yesterday passed off this morning, and the weather is now fair, with a light breeze and a moderate swell. The pilot boat Guard will take up its position at daybreak to-morrow two miles off St. David's Head as the mark boat at the finish line for the sailing yachts and power boats which left Gravesend Bay on Saturday afternoon, and which are now far along on the journey to Bermuda. Two representatives of the yachting committee will take the time of the finish from St. David's Lighthouse.

The motor boats will be inspected at either Hamilton or St. Georges, according to the port they elect to enter. The prospects are favorable for the arrival of the leader of the motor boats by noon to-morrow and the leader of the yachts by sunset.

The steamer Bermudian, which arrived yesterday from Bermuda, reported having sighted one of the New York to Bermuda racing yachts at 5:30 o'clock Sunday morning when about 225 miles south of Sandy Hook. The yacht was schooner rigged, running before the wind, but was too far distant for those on the steamer to make out her name. The weather was rather heavy at the time, and the Bermudian had a rough time of it all day Sunday.

Kling Will Not Report to Cubs.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 7.—"Murphy must be joking," said John Kling yesterday when shown a Chicago dispatch saying he had wired the Cubs' President that he would join the team provided he got his share of the $10,000 bonus. "I never sent him a telegram, and I defy Murphy to produce one. I won't report this month, or any other month. I have no idea of going to Chicago, have made proposition, and am not considering any. That is all there is to it."

Three Races for Vanderbilt.

ST. CLOUD, June 7.—It was a great day at the race course here to-day for W. K. Vanderbilt, whose horses were victorious in three races. His L'Exile won the Prix des Ruisseau, distance one mile four and a half furlongs, and a purse of $400. In the Prix des Vaux d'Or Cornstalk came in first and won a purse of $2,000. Ripolin won the Prix des Geraniums and the purse of $1,000.

Mr. Vanderbilt's Hudson and T. P. Thorpe's Grandslam ran in the Prix des Frenes, but neither got a place.

GARY AND LOREE TO GO ON ERIE BOARD

Morgan-Harriman Move Intended to Strengthen Directorate and Develop the Road.

EARNINGS ARE NOW BETTER

No Bond Issue at This Time and the Road Is to be Allowed to Show What It Can Do in the Way of Earnings.

E. H. Gary, Chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, and L. F. Loree, President of the Delaware & Hudson Company, are to be elected Directors of the Erie Railroad, it was learned yesterday. There is now one vacancy in the board, and another vacancy is about to arise, it is understood, through the retirement of a Director who has not taken any active part in directing the road's affairs in a long time. The election of these two new Directors is regarded in banking circles, where the purpose to add them to the Erie board was known yesterday, as a step in the direction of strengthening the Erie Directorate, with a view to working out the development of the property under the most favorable auspices.

Judge Gary will be regarded as a nominee of the Morgan interests in the Erie, while Mr. Loree will be looked upon as allied with the Harriman interests. Mr. Loree, besides being President of the Delaware & Hudson, in which E. H. Harriman is largely interested, is a Director in the Baltimore & Ohio, in which Mr. Harriman is the most prominent figure, and also Chairman of the board and of the Executive Committee of the Kansas City Southern, with which the Harriman lines have a close traffic alliance. Mr. Loree has come to occupy a very prominent place in the railroad world, and he will be regarded as a strong addition to the Erie Directorate, while Chairman Gary of the United States Steel Corporation is universally recognized as a most able Director of corporate affairs.

The Erie Railroad has been passing through a period of readjustment, and the changes about to be made in the board of the road will have as their object, it is understood, to give the road a strong working board, which will profit by every opportunity to make the most of the improvement in the road's general position. The earnings have been steadily creeping up, and the showing for May will be the best for this year. The gross earnings for May are placed at $4,250,000, the earnings exceeding $4,000,000 for the first time this year. This will show a gain of about $400,000 over May last year, when the earnings mounted to $3,851,252. The road is now beginning to get some results from the important improvement work which it has had under way, and further benefits from these improvements, including the cut-offs which have been constructed, are expected to show in the relatively near future.

The plan of campaign which has been mapped out by the Morgan-Harriman interests in Erie, it is understood, is to let the road for some time longer show what it can do under the improved conditions under which it is now operating, and then finance its requirements in the usual course. When the plan to put out the collateral trust bonds recently authorized by the Public Service Commission was abandoned it was made known that it was the belief of the road's management that from now on only usual forms of financing would have to be resorted to by the Erie.

SNAP STEEL SALE SET ASIDE.

Judge Says Other Bidders for Passaic Steel Company Were Cut Off.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., June 7.—Declaring that he regretted his action in naming three men receivers of the assets of the Passaic Steel Company and discharging them from duty on the spot, at the same time setting aside the sale of the plant to Lawrence Fagan of Hoboken for $190,000, United States Circuit Court Judge William M. Lanning this afternoon said that Receiver John T. Lee, who acted as auctioneer at the recent sale, had not performed in the best manner the duties of an auctioneer.

In discharging the receivers the court named ex-Chancellor William J. Magie receiver, and sat back in his chair asking counsel if they had any objections. They had none.

The court, furthermore, ordered that the bondholders' committee, the objectors to the confirmation of the sale, at once file a bond of $250,000 that at the next sale they would make the first bid for the assets in a sum not less than $250,000.

This action of the court came after counsel had showed that the bondholders' committee had not had sufficient chance at the recent sale to make an adequate bid. The bondholders said that it was agreed when the sale was on that it would proceed slowly. The bidding started at $150,000, and the advances were from $500 to $1,00 each until $190,000, the bid of Mr. Fagan, was reached. Then it was asserted that Auctioneer Lee asked if any one wanted to bid more, and after an interval of fifteen seconds he said: "Are you all done? Sold!"

The bondholders declared that Mr. Lee did not make the customary pause after the words "Are you all done?" until he announced "Sold," and, therefore, they were taken by surprise at a time when they were ready to bid a much higher figure.

Mr. Lee, one of the receivers and the auctioneer of the sale, submitted affidavits in his own behalf, stating that he had given ample time for further bids; that there was no snap judgment, and that the sale was conducted impartially.

Judge Lanning said that he did not impugn his motives or those of the other receivers, only the weight of the evidence showed conclusively that ample time had not been given before the announcement of "Sold!" was rendered.

A new sale of the assets will be conducted as soon as Chancellor Magie gets out the necessary papers and advises the court of the true condition of things.

The court said that inasmuch as inventories taken a short time showed assets of upward of $600,000, the price of $190,000 seemed inadequate, and that if the action of the auctioneer had not been questioned the court would, quite likely, have set aside the sale on the ground of insufficiency of price.

SUES TRUST CO. FOR USURY.

Law Says He Was Overcharged for Jenkins Company Loan.

Papers in a suit begun against the Lafayette Trust Company of Brooklyn for $60,000 by William M. Law, who alleges he was charged $30,000 more interest than he should pay on a loan he obtained from the old Jenkins Trust Company, were filed in the County Clerk's office yesterday.

Law borrowed $128,000 from the Jenkins Trust Company on June 11, 1907, for six months. In his complaint he says that the legal interest on his note, which was discounted, should have been $7,800, whereas he was compelled to pay $30,000 more to obtain the accommodation.

$40,000,000 CITY BOND SALE.

Large Numbers of Bids Received for the New 4 Per Cents.

Controller Metz will this afternoon sell $40,000,000 worth of 4 per cent. fifty-year corporate stock and ten-year assessment bonds. Bids on the issue have been received in large numbers in the last few days, and the Controller is confident that the sale will be satisfactory.

At the last bond sale held by the city several weeks ago the price obtained for the $10,000,000 worth of bonds disposed of was not as high as was expected.

The money obtained from the present sale will be devoted to the following purposes: $24,000,000 for miscellaneous expenditures, $10,000,000 for the Catskill Aqueduct, $3,200,000 for rapid transit, $800,000 for the Public Library, and $2,000,000 for street improvements.

HANNA, Wyo., June 6.—I finally arrived at this town after combating the wind and heat at 8:30 P. M. yesterday. The Hanna Concert Band awaited me and escorted me to the hotel. Conditions were favorable to continue walking, but as there was no place to stop within the next twenty-five miles, which would cause me to walk on Sunday, which I will not do, I remained here. Last Friday I stopped at a section house run by a Japanese, who gave me the best of treatment and was the soul of hospitality, and which pleased me beyond expectation.

The storm at Medicine Bow, where the plot was laid for the book "Virginian," kept me there several hours after starting at 8:40 A. M. for Hanna. I was blown thirty feet down an embankment without serious injury about six miles out of Hanna. The storm ceased, but too late for me to take advantage of the changed conditions. Coming into Hanna I passed Number A coal mine, where sixty-seven people were killed and suffocated more than a year ago by an explosion.

RAWLINS, Wyo., June 7.—Probably the worst storm of the season started at 4:15 P. M. yesterday. First hail and then a terrific rainstorm, which swept away bridges and caused great havoc to the railroads.

I could not go out this morning at 12:05, as I intended, but started at 2 A. M. The washouts caused the trains to be delayed from eight to twelve hours, and all along the track men were working repairing the damage. This did not interfere with me much, as there was no wind, and it is delightfully cool, arriving at Walcott, twenty miles, at 12:20 P. M. I rested here and took luncheon, resuming my walk at 2 P. M.

Just two miles out of Grenville I was overtaken by a severe rainstorm, which lasted one hour. There was no shelter in sight, so I had to be content with a good drenching. I expect to make an early start from Rawlins to-morrow morning for a big day's walk, weather permitting.

Meehan Is De La Salle Champion.

Dan Meehan, one of the cleverest scholastic athletes in the East, displaced George F. Scannell as the all-around champion of De La Salle Institute at the twenty-fifth annaul games of that institution, held on the field of the Clason Point Military Academy, Westchester, yesterday afternoon.

Scannell won the 100-yard and 220-yard dashes, and he was second in the broad jump, 13 points being placed to his credit. The shot put was postponed until this morning at the Pastime A. C. grounds, but as Meehan is entered and Scannell is not, the decision to-day will not affect the championship. The summaries:

WOMAN GOLF CHAMPION HERE.

Miss Harley Will Compete for Eastern Title at Baltusrol To-day.

More than twenty of the best-known women golfers of the Eastern locality played several practice rounds yesterday over the links of the Baltusrol Club, near Short Hills, N. J., in preparation for the championship tournament of the Women's Eastern Golf Association, which begins to-day. Miss Kate Harley of Fall River, the present National champion, arrived during the day and made a good score. Miss Mary B. Adams of Boston was also on the links. Philadelphia was well represented, Miss Frances C. Griscom, Mrs. Caleb Fox, Mrs. H. W. Dean, and Mrs. Townsend being among the players. Miss Julia Mix of the Englewood Club, who recently won the metropolitan women's championship, and Mrs. Paterson were among the local players.

It is expected that forty women will start off this morning in the eighteen-hole medal-play round. The championship consists of a thirty-six-hole medal-play round, and the final half will be determined to-morrow. Miss Fanny Osgood of Boston, the present title holder, will be unable to compete, owing to illness.

The tri-city team matches for the Griscom Cup will be played on Thursday and Friday. The trophy is now held by the Boston women.

Wright and Sulloway Defend Title.

NEWTON, Mass., June 7.—Wright and Sulloway successfully defended their title to the State championship in tennis doubles on the Brae Burn courts to-day, by defeating the Johnson brothers, who recently won the championship of the Brae Burn Club. The sets were, 7—5, 7—5, 3—6, 4—6, and 6—4.

BOWLING LEADERS CHANGE.

Vanderbeck and Copeland of Brooklyn Second in Two-Men Race.

Yesterday started the last week of the National bowling championships in Madison Square Garden, and as an auspicious beginning of the final games there were several changes in the five leaders in each of the three classes. In the championships for two-men teams, Vanderbeck and Copeland of Brooklyn jumped into second place, marking up a total of 1,244 for three games. The other change in this class was fourth place, which is now occupied by the Larkin and Morris team of Baldwinsville, N. Y., which rolled a series of games netting 1,241.

In the individual championships George Hendler of Buffalo took fifth place with a score of 664. His first and third games showed high-class bowling, the score of the first being 221 and of the third 245.

The women bowlers will have their innings on the alleys this week, and many of the fraternal organizations will also be seen in action. The most prominent of the women bowlers are Mrs. Nellie Lester of New York and Miss Blanche Littlefield of Newark, who are paired to roll against Mrs. Lottie Englehart of New York and Miss Bert Wilson of Philadelphia.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Active, Closing Lower—Call Money Rates, 1½@2 Per Cent.

LIQUIDATION THE FACTOR

Industrial Department Displays Relative Strength—Money Unaffected by the Banks' Saturday Showing.

Liquidation made itself felt on the course of prices in the early part of yesterday's stock market, but aside from continued irregularity its effects were relatively unimportant until near the close of the final hour of business, when an increase in the selling pressure led to sharp declines in many parts of the list. Union Pacific was much affected, dropping nearly 2 points, but elsewhere the losses ran very little above the full point. A number of stocks resisted the general tendency of the market in rather striking fashion, the list comprising industrials almost exclusively, including Western Union Telegraph, National Enameling issues, American Ice, American Wool, International Paper, and American Cotton Oil stocks. Reading was active and strong on familiar rumors of increased dividends and the retirement of the second preferred shares, while the Wabash securities and Nickel Plate issues were influenced by "merger" reports, the Wabash also being helped by the excellent earnings statement for the month of April, with its increase of $288,000 in gross. As a whole, the day's movement seemed to reflect nothing more than the technical conditions now surrounding the market. The active speculation through last week led to a shifting of stocks from strong hands into weak ones to a considerable extent, and reactionary movements are to be expected until the selling has been well digested. Some little hesitation among speculators to carry excessive lines of stocks over to-day, owing to the publication at noon of the Government's report on crop conditions as of June 1, had doubtless a part in determining the character of the day's market. The news of direct interest to the financial community was again entirely favorable, comprising excellent reports from the crop territory; the statement that the Steel Corporation is now operating nearly 90 per cent. of capacity; reports that the Baltimore & Ohio, Union Pacific, and other railroads are seeking bids for many thousands of cars, and a further advance in the price of copper on the local Metal Exchange. Boston dispatches had it that lake copper in that city is now held by the larger producers for 14 cents.

In spite of the heavy loan expansion noted in Saturday's statement of the associated banks and the resultant decrease in reserves, call money rates yesterday ruled as easy as at any time last week, although time money quotations were a trifle firmer. Reports that the trust companies were curtailing accommodations were only partialy true, and in no such measure as to affect the general situation. Foreign exchange rates were a trifle easier. The Bank of England secured without competition the $2,500,000 gold reaching London during the day from South Africa.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 7.—Trading in the local market kept within narrow compass. The strength of Reading attracted a considerable following, but otherwise the volume of transactions was not large and price fluctuations had no significance. Cambria Steel and Lehigh Valley were firm, while Philadelphia Rapid Transit and Union Traction showed a tendency to sag on the appearance of any offerings. The market closed weak.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Stop Orders Uncovered.

The downward tendency of yesterday's market brought forth the usual characterization of a "natural reaction" from the bull contingent, who insisted that the decline in prices was calculated to improve the technical situation and to pave the way for a resumption of the advance subsequently. However that may be, the action of the market seemed plainly to indicate that there was room for improvement from a technical point of view. The rather abrupt declines in the late trading were generally attributed to the uncovering of stop-loss orders in rather large amounts. Quickly perceiving this advantage, the bears did not let slip the opportunity of provoking as much selling as possible, and for the first time in about a week they were able to make some headway. After such a rise in prices as occurred last week, the market usually becomes honeycombed with stop-loss orders, which a recession of a point or two is usually sufficient to catch. Having accumulated good profits on the long side, many operators are accustomed to protect these profits by placing a stop order slightly under the prevailing quotations, so as to be sure that not much of the money they have made on paper will get away from them.

Public Buying and Selling.

From the amount of stocks bought by commission houses in the early part of the session, it was inferred that the public had taken kindly to last week's abrupt rise, and did not want to be left out in the distribution of additional good things which might be under way. The cynics remarked that the outside buyers got some of the "distribution" all right, but that it was not of quite the brand they had expected, coming in the shape of stocks rather than profits. Nevertheless, there seems to be ample reason for believing that in the last week the outsiders have been doing a bit of distribution on their own account. From the amount of odd-lot certificates which are coming into the transfer offices of different corporations, it is assumed that many of the ten, twenty, or thirty share buyers of the last year have been cashing in, though experienced brokers say that probably at least 50 per cent. of such purchases rarely if ever come back on the market.

Reading Rumors Revived.

With the near approach of the meeting of the Reading Directors for action on the dividend, speculative Wall Street is again beginning to indulge in strong hopes that something to its liking will develop. Reading common enjoyed yesterday an advance extending to 3 points, most of which, however, was lost before the close, but rumors of an increase in the dividend to 6 per cent. were persistent, and reports of the retirement of the second preferred stock were revived. Certain banking interests supposed to know a good deal about Reading insisted that they could see no advantage to the company in canceling the second preferred shares, but specialists in the stock still clung to the idea that such a plan was in contemplation, and that it would be announced either this week or next. By retiring the second preferred at par for cash, it was pointed out, the equity of the common shareholders would be greatly increased in the future earnings of the corporation, and they would come in for a greater proportion of any extra distribution which might be made. The argument was one good enough for speculative purposes, irrespective of how it may work out eventually.

Steel Trade Improvement.

In spite of statements that June will prove to be the heaviest month in the history of the United States Steel Corporation, and that the concern is now operating to the extent of 87 per cent. of its capacity, and will show earnings for the current quarter of $28,000,000 or upward, both the common and preferred stocks were notably weak. This fact in itself, some contended, was pretty good evidence that the reaction was due solely to technical conditions, as the trade situation appeared to be more satisfactory than at any time since the panic. Suggestions were also heard that it might not be displeasing to certain banking interests if there was a drop of a few points in the Steel shares. Some developments which came to light seemed to indicate that there was a desire to accumulate more stock for the account of the Paris syndicate.

Expecting Fourteen-Cent Copper.

If predictions made by some eminent trade authorities are fulfilled, electrolytic copper will be selling at 14 cents a pound within a fortnight. The demand appears to be running far ahead of what had been expected a few weeks ago, and the largest producers are not disposed to sell any great quantities at current quotations. The report of the Copper Producers' Association, to be made public on Thursday, it is believed, will show a heavy reduction in the amount of supplies on hand, some estimating that the decline will be as much as 20,000,000 pounds. At that rate, would not take long to clean up the surplus stocks on hand and again place production and consumption on an even keel. Talk of an early increase in the Amalgamated dividend is becoming stronger daily, as it is known that the company is able to make good profits with copper selling around current quotations, with a corresponding increase in income as the metal goes higher.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Only Moderately Active Trading in London—Downward Tendency in Berlin.

LONDON, June 7.—Money was in good demand on the market to-day and discounts were steady.

Trading on the Stock Exchange was only moderately active, in view of the settlement, and price movements were irregular. Copper shares, especially Amalgamated, were strong in the morning, but reacted in the afternoon and closed easy. Home rails were weak on fears of labor trouble, but consols gained strength on reports that the Bank of England had secured the $2,500,000 in gold available. Kaffirs were active. They lost their early improvement, but finished firmer.

American securities opened a fraction higher, but later became irregular under alternate periods of buying and selling. Prices at midday were from ¼ below to ⅛ above Saturday's New York closing. Later United States Steel and Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé lost their improvement, but the low-priced issues continued on the upgrade. Wall Street did little in the afternoon. The market lacked confidence and closed irregular and weak.

Bar silver quiet, 24⅝d per ounce.

Money, 1½@1¾ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 1⅝@1¾ per cent.; for three months' bills, 1¾@1⅞ per cent.

PARIS, June 7.—After an early period of heaviness on the Bourse to-day prices closed steady. The private rate of discount is 1¾ per cent., an increase of ¼.

At closing 3 per cent. rentes were 98f 10c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f 20c for checks.

BERLIN, June 7.—Transactions were limited on the Boerse to-day and the tendency of prices was downward.

MORE BROWN & CO. CHARGES.

Lawyers Say Accounts Were Inaccurate—Transfers Made While Insolvent.

When the application for a discharge from bankruptcy of A. O. Brown & Co., bankers and brokers, of 30 Broad Street, came up yesterday before Judge Hand, in the United States District Court, it was stated that specifications of objections against a discharge had been filed by seven attorneys, and Judge Hand referred the matter to John J. Townsend, referee in bankruptcy, of 45 Cedar Street, to take testimony.

Several of the specifications were identical in form, and alleged that the firm had failed to keep correct books of accounts, and had made, while insolvent, transfers of property to A. H. Combs & Co., $250,000; to Minnie Young, mother of one of the partners, $15,000; to Alice Whitman, wife of a partner, $7,000, and to Edna Wallace Hopper, now the wife of Mr. Brown, $5,000, without consideration at all. Another specification was that they made a general assignment on Aug. 25, 1908.

Rumor Had Been Revived That the Bell Concern Was to Absorb Western Union

The story heard a year ago that the Western Union Telegraph Company, control of which has long been identified with the Goulds, was about to be absorbed by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, the Bell concern, was revived in Wall Street yesterday. An advance of 2 points in Western Union on sales of between 3,000 and 4,000 shares accompanied the circulation of the report.

President Robert C. Clowry of the Western Union said that he knew nothing of any plan by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company to absorb the Western Union, and that so far as he knew there was nothing to indicate that such a step was contemplated. A banker who has been identified with the financial operations of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company also said he had no knowledge of such a plan.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Market for Curb Stocks Irregular, with a Heavy Undertone.

BONDS ARE IN DEMAND

Prices of Active Issues Show Fractional Gains—Sharp Rise in Northern Securities Stubs.

The outside security market was rather dull and irregular, with a generally heavy undertone. Most of the day's interest centred in the bond list, where fractional advances were made by the active issues. Notably Atchison new 4s, which gained ⅛ net to 113; Kansas City Southern 3s, which rose a like amount to 102, and Western Pacific 5s, which improved ¼ to 97⅞. Atlantic Gulf & West India 5s were exceptionally heavy, falling 2 points to 70, but recovering to 69¾ at the close. In the industrial list Havana Tobacco dropped a point to 12½, while Standard Oil gained 3 to 676. Among the copper mining shares United Copper fell ⅝ to 11, but elsewhere the changes were less important. An advance of 8¾ in Northern Securities stubs attracted attention.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT.—With Chicago closed, the New York market had an independent advance yesterday, while those Western markets that were open, particularly in the Northwest, showed similar strength. Receipts without Chicago, Toledo, and Detroit were 260,000 bushels, compared with 516,000 a year ago. Crop news from the West was conflicting. Foreign markets were all strong and higher, including advances of ⅞ to 1½d at Liverpool, ⅝c at Berlin, and 3⅛c at Budapest, influenced by growth in Hungary and Germany and cold, dry weather in the Argentine.

The June Government report will issue today at 2 o'clock. Cash wheat in New York was nominal: No. 2 red, $1.50 elevator and $1.50, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern Duluth, $1.38¼, and No. 2 hard Winter, $1.38¼, free on board, afloat.

Corn.—Trade was dull and quite featureless all yesterday. There was a decline of ⅛ to ¼d at Liverpool, and most of the crop news from the West indicated that cultivation was progressing most favorably. Cash corn in New York was entirely nominal: No. 2, 86c elevator and 82c, free on board, afloat; No. 2 white, 84½c, and No. 2 yellow, 84½c, free on board, afloat.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC FINANCING.

Directors to Meet To-day to Consider Retiring $75,000,000 Preferred Stock.

A special meeting of the Directors of the Southern Pacific Company has been called for to-day, at which it is understood consideration will be given to the matter of calling in the company's $75,000,000 of preferred stock for retirement. Under the terms of the issue the company has the right to call the stock at 115 at any time prior to July 1, 1910, and in case of its being called the holders have the right to convert the preferred stock into common stock share for share.

The preferred stock, which has risen sharply recently, is selling at 132, carrying the 3½ per cent. semi-annual dividend, while the common stock is selling at 130. The effect of calling the preferred for payment at 115 will be to cause the holders to convert it into common stock.

By effecting in this way an exchange of its $75,000,000 of preferred stock, upon which 7 per cent. dividends are paid into common stock, which is now paying 6 per cent., the company so long as the common stock dividend stays at 6 per cent. will be making a saving of $750,000 a year in its dividend requirements as compared with the present status of its capital stock. The decision to retire the preferred stock some time before July of next year, when the 7 per cent. dividend would become a settled charge against the income of the company, was reached a long time ago, having been definitely made known last year. Mr. Harriman is now understood to have reached the conclusion that the present is a favorable time to effect this change in the company's stock, and the matter is therefore to be considered, it is understood, at to-day's meeting of the Directors.

The Harriman lines anticipating their equipment requirements for 1909 and 1910 have asked for bids on about 5,000 freight cars, including a large number of box cars. It is thought that better prices can be had now than later. This order for cars and the recent order for locomotives will call for an expenditure of $7,000,000.

SUGAR TRUST KEEPS SECRET.

Foils Attempt in $30,000,000 Action to Get List of Trust's Plants.

The case of the plaintiff was closed yesterday in the $30,000,000 suit which Receiver Earle of the Pennsylvania Sugar Refining Company has brought against the American Sugar Refining Company on the allegation that the Sugar Trust, after getting possession of the Pennsylvania Company's plant through a loan, caused it to remain shut down and wrecked its business. The case has been on trial before Judge Holt in the United States Circuit Court for ten days.

The defense succeeded yesterday in keeping the plaintiff from introducing in evidence a list of the plants controlled by the Sugar Trust, thereby shutting out of the case what would have been perhaps the most interesting disclosure of the suit, inasmuch as the list in question is the one that the minority stockholders of the American Sugar

Provenzano lived at 157 Allen Street. Seventeen counterfeit $2 certificates were found in his pockets when arrested.

ANTI-TAMMANY MEN ON A FUSION HUNT

General Merging of Forces the Object of Several New Organizations.

COMMITTEES HARD AT WORK

They Will Carry Their Crusade Into All the Boroughs in the Campaign.

First steps in a movement to bring about fusion of the anti-Tammany bodies in this city for the coming municipal campaign were taken by the Democratic Union at a meeting of its Executive Committee last night at the Gilsey House.

According to announcement made at the Headquarters of the Union, the organization has been approached from some quarter not indicated on the question of fusion. It could not have been from the Committee of One Hundred, for that body has not yet been named, so the presumption is that the advances must have come from the Republican organization, of which Herbert Parsons is the head.

The Democratic Union was organized by disgruntled Tammanyites, and consequently has an organization only in Manhattan and the Bronx, Tammany Hall's political bailiwick. Accordingly the Union is in no position to fuse on anything save the New York County ticket, where the principal offices to be voted for are those of District Attorney and Sheriff.

On the offices of Mayor, Controller, and President of the Board of Aldermen, which will head the city ticket, and, of course, are regarded as the greatest prizes for the patronage that goes with them, the Union was in no position to make any deal with other organizations on anti-Tammany fusion bent.

At the meeting last night the Executive Committee took steps to overcome this drawback by appointing three committees to confer with committees of anti-Tammany organizations in the Boroughs of Kings, Queens, and Richmond on the question of fusing against Tammany Hall on the city ticket. Should these conferences result favorably to fusion, arrangements will probably be made at once, either to extend the Democratic Union to other boroughs or give representation to the Democratic anti-Tammany organizations in the three boroughs mentioned on the Committee of One Hundred which the Union has appointed for the purpose of conducting its campaign.

Here are the conference committees:

KINGS—Sidney J. Cowen, William H. Delany, Charles C. Kalbfleisch, and Walter McGregor.

QUEENS—John A. Wrede, Conrad Muller, Jr., August C. Schwager, Graham McAdam, and Philip S. Tilden.

RICHMOND—William Crowley, Joseph A. Flinn, James A. Moorehead, Jacob B. Engel, and Fred W. Fuhrman.

In practically every borough there is now some anti-Tammany body made up of Democrats with which the union organization may fuse. The Voters' Federation, formed around a nucleus of Democrats who have broken away from Tammany Hall, has an organization in at least one Assembly district of each borough. In Brooklyn, besides, there is an organization of anti-McCarren Democrats, but this body is probably too closely affiliated with Tammany Hall to afford an opportunity for fusion with the Democratic Union. Should such a fusion be effected, the union would find itself in the anomalous position of fighting Tammany in Manhattan and the Bronx and making common cause with the enemy in Brooklyn. It would be a house divided against itself.

While many political observers process to be able to trace connection between the Republican organization in New York County and some of the anti-Tammany organizations of apparent Democratic origin which have been springing up, there are signs of dissension in the Republican ranks, which under certain conditions might imperil the control of the Republican City Convention by the forces headed by Mr. Parsons.

In the Fifteenth Assembly District, one of the Republican strongholds on the upper west side, the Quigg-Douglas forces, which at the primaries last Fall came near wresting the leadership away from Harry W. Mack, the present Republican leader of the district and stanch follower of Mr. Parsons.

In the Twenty-sixth Assembly District, where Samuel Krulewitch is the leader, two Republican factions have formed, both opposed to his leadership. One of these is headed by Jacob R. Schiff, a lawyer, who is President of the Progressive Republican Club. The other faction is headed by Jacob Katzenstein, until recently a follower of Krulewitch. This faction has opened headquarters at the Central Republican Club, 1,636 Madison Avenue.

In the Thirty-first Assembly District Dr. L. L. Fineberg is at the head of a faction which is determined to dethrone Harvey T. Andrews, a strong Parsons man, as leader.

ORPHANS' PARADE TO CONEY.

Motor Cars Will Carry 2,000 Youngsters to Coney Island on Wednesday.

The route for the Orphans' Day parade was laid out yesterday by Alexander Schwalbach and several members of the Orphans' Day Committee, who made the trip to Coney Island and return in a National car driven by William C. Poertner of the Poertner Motor Car Company.

The parade will start at Columbus Circle to-morrow morning, and there will be nearly 200 touring cars in line, besides a number of sightseeing autos. The committee expects to carry 2,000 of the city's wards to Dreamland, Coney Island, where the youngsters will be dined and entertained.

In order to avoid the crush of traffic the route will be by way of the new Queensboro Bridge. The cars will proceed double file down Broadway behind the pacemaking pilot cars to Forty-ninth Street, where they will turn east, to Fifth Avenue. At Fifth Avenue the parade will go north to Fifty-seventh Street, east on Fifty-seventh Street, to Second Avenue, to the entrance of Queensboro Bridge, and then across to Long Island. The committee will pay the bridge toll.

The Warner speedometer on the National car showed 17.2 miles when the pathfinder drew up in front of Dreamland. This will give the orphans a ride of about thirty-five miles, and the children will undoubtedly have the time of their lives. The committee is in need of all the cars it can obtain and private owners are urged to loan their autos for the day.

The Orphans' Day Automobile Committee of New York is now incorporated, and will be known as the Orphans' Automobile Day Association of New York. At a largely attended meeting held yesterday the following officers were elected: President, Col. R. C. Pardee; Vice President, Senator William J. Morgan; Treasurer, Richard T. Newton; Secretary, Alex Schwalbach. Treasurer Newton reports about $1,000 cash in hand. Carl H. Page was appointed Grand Marshal of the parade.

Magistrate Looking Into Woman's Story of Hold-Up by Bondsmen.

Magistrate Barlow is going to investigate thoroughly the case of two alleged professional bondsmen whose activities were brought to the attention of the court through the courage of Gretchen Miller, a woman who was arrested a week ago by Policeman Costuma of the East Fifth Street Station, charged with having violated the Tenement House law. The woman lives at 241 East Thirteenth Street.

According to the story which she told to Magistrate Barlow in the Yorkville Court yesterday under the guidance of her counsel, James J. Nugent, a man named Louis Katz of 16 Second Avenue appeared at the police station soon after she was arrested and went on her bond, although she had not sent for him and did not know him. On the sidewalk the woman said Katz demanded and received $25 from her, $10 of which he said he would keep and give the other $15 to Lieut. John J. Noble, who was on the desk in the station.

Next day, the woman said, Bernard Barth, a real estate dealer, of 16 Second Avenue, went on her bond in the police court, and on the sidewalk outside demanded $250, saying that he was a friend of Magistrate Corrigan, before whom she would be arraigned, and he would fix the case for her. The woman said that she had $2,700 in the Dry Dock Savings Bank, and she was so frightened that she drew $300 of this out. Then, however, she took the advice of friends and retained Lawyer Nugent.

Magistrate Barlow issued subpoenas for Katz and Barth and also notified Lieut. Noble to appear in court. As the subpoenas could not be seved yesterday, however, he adjourned the case until Thursday afternoon. Both Nugent and the Magistrate said they did not believe Noble had anything to do with the demand for the money.

COURT ORDERS BOYS WHIPPED

Four Subway Train Rowdies Get the End of a Strap for Punishment.

Four boys charged with rowdyism on Subway trains on Sunday were whipped by parents in the Children's Court yesterday as the choice between fines and the rod. Three parents at once accepted the whipping instead of paying $1 fines for their boys, but one hesitated, presenting a certificate alleged to have been given by a physician testifying to the boy's physical condition prohibiting body lashing. This was the father of Morris Dublon, age 15, of 606 Fifth Street. Justice Olmsted looked at the boy and noted that he was robust and apparently healthy, and without much ado he said to the father:

"You can whip that able-bodied boy or pay a fine of $25 for him."

The father was shocked and almost dropped in front of the bench. He asked for a little time to consider the matter, and presently returned and said he chose to whip the boy.

"Then do so, and when Lieut. Ward, under whose surveillance the job must be done, reports to me that the boy has been punished properly I will remit the fine."

Soon Lieut. Ward reported, approving of the father's agility with the rod, which in this instance was a leather strap. The other boys, Charles Weinstein, 15, of 10 West 118th Street; Abraham Rabinowitz, 13, of 140 East 118th Street, and Philip Rueling, 16, of East Fifth Street, were treated to the leather by their mothers. The whipping occurred in a private room.

The four were arrested by Policeman Magoon, special Park Row patrolman. Justice Olmsted expressed thorough sympathy with the effort to break up rowdyism on Subway trains, but he did not think the boys should be sent to the workhouse as eleven older ones were committed by Magistrate Cornell in the Night Court.

FIRE DESTROYS 100 HOMES.

PRESQUE ISLE, Me., June 7.—Fire swept one-quarter of this village to-night, burning 100 dwelling houses, ten potato storehouses, the Canadian Pacific Railway station, the Congregational Church, and Masonic Hall. The aggregate loss is estimated at $300,000. Upward of 1,000 people are homeless.

A high wind which prevailed all day is responsible largely for the extent of the disaster. It carried blazing embers a distance of a quarter of a mile in many cases, and new fires started after the first was well under way.

Among the dwelling houses burned were those of John Brown, where the fire started; ex-State Senator E. E. Parker, Charles Richardson, First Selectman and Representative in the Legislature; A. E. Maguire, M. P. Cook, the Baptist parsonage, occupied by the Rev. E. L. Gates, and F. B. Thompson.

Several persons were reported injured in various ways during the fire, but there were no fatalities. Miss Ethel Scott was hurt in an automobile collision while assisting the fire sufferers. She was thrown from her machine and badly cut and bruised.

Presque Isle has a population of nearly 5,000. It is the centre of the potato-raising district of Aroostook County, and is located on the Bangor and Aroostook Railway, and at the terminus of a branch of the Canadian Pacific Railway running from Aroostook Junction. The total State valuation of the town is $2,000,000.

GOLDMAN TALK IN A BARN.

Anarchist Lecture In Freeman Stable To-night as the Hall Is Closed.

Emma Goldman, the Anarchist, will pay her second visit to East Orange, N. J., this evening, to deliver her lecture on "The Modern Drama, the Greatest Disseminator of Radical Thought," which the New York police suppressed.

John English, in whose hall she was to have delivered the lecture, acting on the advice of the police, yesterday returned the five-dollar deposit given to him by the Anarchist's manager, and will close his doors to her this evening. When seen last night, Alden Freeman, her sponsor, said:

"If Mr. English fails to allow Miss Goldman to speak in his hall to-morrow evening he will be breaking his contract, and if the police prevent him from allowing her to speak they in turn also will be committing an illegal act by making him break his legal agreement.

"I will, however, take Miss Goldman to the hall, and if they refuse to permit her to speak I shall have her speak in the upper rooms of our barn, at the corner of Central and Munn Avenues."

"Miss Goldman has delivered the same lecture in 200 cities throughout the United States, and in only five of these did the police interfere, and I do not see any reason why the East Orange police should interfere.

"I have her speech already, and after closely reading it I have found nothing illegal in it, and therefore we may be assured that Miss Goldman will speak, if not in the hall which we contracted for, why, we must use the barn."

Leonard D. Abbott, Chairman of The Nation Free Speech Committee, which was organized after the Anarchistic meeting was broken up in New York on May 23 will be the first speaker. His topic will be "Suppression of Free Speech in the United States."

Mr. Freeman will preside, and will also speak on "Thomas Paine," to-day being the 100th anniversary of his birth.

Dr. Ben L. Reitman, manager for the anarchist lecturer went out to East Orange yesterday looking over the ground with Mr. Freeman.

Mr. Freeman said yesterday that he had given no thought to the request he received from the Sons of the American Revolution on Saturday to get out of the organization, and he was not yet ready to say whether he would or would not resign. Mr. Freeman has resigned as deputy Governor of the Mayflower descendants.

LIVELY BIDDING FOR CITY TAX LIENS

Forty-one Claims, Aggregating $20,633, Sold in a Little Over an Hour.

MANY DELINQUENTS PAID UP

Property of St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church and the Helping Hand Mission Among the Parcels Involved.

The sale by the city of liens on all property in Manhattan on which back taxes are due, under the advertisement issued by the Department of Finance several weeks ago, began yesterday in the Aldermanic Chamber at City Hall. The feature of the session was the disposal of liens on property belonging to St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church and the Helping Hand Mission, and a parcel assessed to Charles A. Schieren.

The crowd was not large and the bidding was lively. As a result, 260 items of the advertisement were disposed of in a little over an hour. Forty-one liens, aggregating claims by the city of $20,633, were sold. The other items were paid up before the sale started. The lowest purchase was at 7 per cent., and a large number of liens went at 10 per cent. and over.

Daniel Moynahan, Collector of Arrears of the Controller's office, conducted the sale, and the auctioneering was done by Richard E. Weldon, his deputy. The prosaic proceedings were relieved by the presence of Isabelle Everson and Bessie Clayton, the actresses who created a sensation some time ago by announcing themselves as claimants to the Bassford estate, which was alleged to hold title to about three-quarters of the Borough of the Bronx. They said that they were on hand to "look after their interests," and although no Bronx property is included in the present advertisement, they sat the proceedings out for some time with the consent and advice of their press agent.

Bidders on the liens cannot run the price up over 12 per cent. of the city's claim on the property, which includes the arrearages plus 7 per cent. interest and $5 advertising charge. Ten per cent. of the claim must be paid down by the purchasers of the liens and 90 per cent. within thirty days.

The first parcel offered is in Washington Street, between Morris and Rector, on which the city has a claim for $755.15. The lien was purchased by the Realty Associates at 12 per cent. A lien on property in Greenwich Street, between Morris and Rector, based on an arrearage of only $49.33, went to the Royal Holding Company at 11¾ per cent.

David Eichner, who purchased a lien on the Fulton Street extension of the National Park Bank at a tax sale a few years ago, bought the next lien. It, with the following three, was on property in Thames and West Streets belonging to St. Peter's. The largest claim of the four was for $1,441.10, which was bought by I. Jackson of Jackson & Stern. The arrearages were all on sewer assessments. A little later another lien on St. Peter's property was put up and went to the Realty Associates at 12 per cent.

The parcel assessed to Mr. Schierin is on the southwest corner of Ferry and Cliff Streets. The claim was for $597.42 and was bought by Mr. Jackson at 7¾ per cent. The Realty Associates also bought the lien on the mission property. It is in Water Street, between Dover and Roosevelt, and was in arrears $106.90.

The sale will be continued on Thursday.

SEND-OFF FOR MISSIONARIES.

Presbyterian Union Gives a Reception for Its 62 New Recruits.

In the ballroom of the Hotel Savoy, the Presbyterian Union gave a hearty send-off last night to the sixty-two young men and women, who are to take up the Union's missionary work in foreign fields this year.

After the reception and dinner twelve of the newly appointed missionaries told the other diners how it felt to be a missionary. The description given by Miss Janet Scott Galbreath, who has just graduated from Wilson College and who is going to try to convert the Japanese, made every one applaud and laugh.

"I feel like saying what the Chicago girl said when she finally succeeded in getting a new shoe on her foot: 'This is a big thing, but I'm glad to be in it.'" said Miss Galbreath.

Miss Emma A. Weldow, who has just been graduated from Northfield Seminary, and who is going to do missionary work in Mexico, told the diners how she came to choose missionary work.

"My parents were quite poor," she explained. "I never even went to grammar school, but had to go and work for ten years in a mill. I tried to become a trained nurse, but failed. Then the wife of our pastor told us about missionary work, and I longed to become a missionary. But I had no money and all my friends discouraged me. Then suddenly, as I was reading a passage in St. John, I saw how a five years' course in Northfield College could be arranged and I have just graduated."

All the diners arose and cheered Miss Annie Montgomery, who has been a missionary for twenty-seven years in Persia, and Missionary Fulton, who has worked twenty-nine years in the Chinese field, told the new missionaries that "grace, grit, and gumption" were the three essential qualities for a successful missionary.
